Today

Hoover—
One Wild Day.
High Finance Overdid It.
Politics, Stocks, Money.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

MR. HOOVER, whose nomination is conceded by those that opposed it, is a trained engineer, understanding national problems, a first-class business man, a good organizer.

THE people know him, and have seen him at work for years. There is no uncertainty, no "dark horse," no meeting of "big men" in a back room to hand the people their candidate. This time they choose him for themselves.

THE Stock Exchange, yesterday, enjoyed what you might call a wild day. Five and a quarter million shares sold, the ticker still going frantically at 4:53 o'clock.

MANY, this morning, wish they had taken the advice often printed here, "DON'T GAMBLE."

The scare must run its course. Those new to Wall Street will sell stocks as foolishly as they bought them.

BUT VALUES HAVEN'T BEEN HURT. Stocks by the dozen are selling far below their intrinsic worth. The public will come to its senses, little fish will be thrown back out of the Street to gather more money. And the country's prosperity will go ahead.

HIGH finance, that didn't want Hoover and thought it wise to make business look doubtful for a while, succeeded perhaps beyond its plans.

GEN. DAWES probably will be nominated for vice president. The country, regardless of politics, will have wise leadership, as it has had under President Coolidge, and prosperity will go ahead.

Unfortunately, it will not restore to many the lost savings of a lifetime. Only experience can teach the majority.

YESTERDAY it was said "only a miracle can prevent Hoover's nomination." That would be miracle No. 2.

The first miracle is the possibility of Hoover's nomination, in spite of the fact that Wall Street didn't want him and said so. That's a big enough miracle for one convention.

IN case you have time to read about it, Miss Mabel Boll had hopped, and Miss Earhart, when this was written, had failed to hop across the Atlantic.

Who would have thought 10 years ago that anything could smother men's interest in two women starting to fly the Atlantic the same day.

"ON India's coral strands," and farther inland, Standard Oil has been selling gasoline at cut prices.

British Royal Dutch and Burmah Company, declare war against Standard. Standard Oil gets, in Russia, oil sold in India, outraging Britain's idea that no American should engage seriously in world wide trade.

British gentlemen will know, when they finish with Standard Oil that they have had a fight.

CHANG, the Chinese war lord is dead. A bomb killed him. Japan says so.

Hurricane in Poland, houses torn apart and burned, near Warsaw.

SAMOAN natives ruled by New Zealand protest to the League of Nations against prohibition. Forty million Americans can assure them that the protesting won't do them any good.

ATHENS is having more riots, soldiers stoned.

But nobody cares about all that. POLITICS, MONEY, STOCKS, command attention now.

BARGAIN day in Wall Street for big fellows with real money. Little fish throw good stocks overboard to protect cats and dogs. Good stocks drop, while the cats and dogs struggle for life.

That is the bargain hunter's opportunity.

DON'T GAMBLE. And, if it is too late to take that advice, turn over a new leaf, keep what you have left, if anything, and when this storm blows over, buy what you PAY FOR.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., June 13.—The trans-Atlantic plane Columbia, in which Miss Mabel Boll and three companions flew here from Roosevelt Field, L. I., on the first leg of a flight to Europe, was overhauled and refueled today in preparation for an immediate hop off. Miss Boll, Pilot Oliver C. Le Boutillier, Relief Pilot Arthur Argles and Mechanic Andy Surini rested during the morning following their hazardous 1,100-mile flight up the coast.

Although Miss Boll disclaimed any intention of racing the Friendship across the Atlantic, she said she was anxious to hop off before the rival plane could get in action.

"Naturally I want to be first," said the "Queen of Diamonds."

RIVAL PLANE BALKED

TREPASSEY, N. F., June 13.—(AP.)—The start of the monoplane Friendship for Europe was deferred until early tomorrow morning after two more unsuccessful attempts had been made to lift the plane from Trepassey harbor today. Wilmer Stultz, pilot, said the dozen failures of the plane to take the air in attempted take-offs last Thursday, yesterday and today had proved that the six-ton load was too great.

He planned to unload all the gasoline this afternoon and make test flights immediately afterward. Stultz and his co-fliers, Lou Gordon and Miss Amelia Earhart, plainly showed their disappointment at the delay.

PITTSBURGHERS

James Pedrow and Lois Henry, Pittsburghers, battled fatigue for 245 hours, 15 minutes in the Chicago dance marathon before they gave up as third place winners. They'll get $750. The winners, taking down $3,500, danced for 260 hours—12 days!

Dry Ace to Push Probe

There is to be no letdown in efforts of the prohibition authorities to bare activities of the local rum ring.

This was indicated today with announcement at prohibition headquarters that Joseph A. Frayne, the directing mind in the recent probe which resulted in 167 conspiracy indictments being returned by the Federal Grand Jury, would be relieved of all routine duties connected with his office as assistant prohibition administrator that he might devote his entire time to "major investigations."

While Frayne's activities will not be confined to Pittsburgh, it is understood he and a corps of officers will do much work to further strengthen the cases of the government against politicians and others indicted as well as ferreting out other violations.

O. J. Gettel, prohibition agent, has been named as acting assistant administrator to relieve Frayne for his larger duties.

Late today 96 of those indicted had given bond. Another is ill in a local hospital and still another is serving a term in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta for liquor violations, accounting for 98 in all.

Two defendants jailed last night because they were unable to obtain bond, were successful in getting bail today and were released. They are Oscar Reister, 532 Knoll street, and Steve Olekszek, 4708 Stanton avenue. Others giving bond today were John Zito, of 1026 Wolfendale street; James Swift, 405 Carson street; Matthew Shine, Foreland street, and Syril K. Schleicher, Wachter street.

1 Dead at Carnegie Crossing

One man was killed and another injured when a Pennsylvania passenger train struck their automobile at the Hudson crossing, west of Carnegie, early today.

John Pastor, 25, of Grant street, Heidelberg, died almost instantly. John Mebrosky, 23, of Carnegie, is in Mercy Hospital suffering from cuts and bruises on the head and body.

Hudson crossing has been the scene of quite a number of fatal accidents. Curves on either side of it, the roadway approaches render it difficult for autoists to see an approaching train, and as a result its death toll has steadily increased.

25 HIT PIRATES OUT FOR SECOND

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—Elated over their slam-bang triumph over the Phils yesterday, in which they pounded out 25 base hits and which saw the return to form of Ray Kremer, the Pirates prepared to face the Quakers in the final game of the series today with Burleigh Grimes on the mound.

The Bucs hit the ball to all corners of the lot yesterday in downing the Phils. Kremer, in addition to hurling a five-hit game, slammed out four safe hits himself, leading the Bucco attack.

The Phils are expected to play behind the hurling of Benge, one of Bert Shotton's rookie hurlers. Benge has shown no small amount of skill in his starts so far this season and may give the Buccaneers a tough afternoon.

HOOVER-DAWES; FARMERS RIOT

"Bring on Smith and We'll Bury Him," Republican Defi to Democratic Foes.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

CONVENTION HALL, KANSAS CITY, June 13.—"It looks like Hoover and Dawes." This was the word circulating about the floor of the Republican National Convention this morning as the delegates assembled for the second session.

As to the first part of the ticket, there was no doubt whatsoever. As to the second it appeared up to Gen. Dawes himself. His friends were advising him this morning both ways.

To one leader who got in touch with him at his home in Evanston and urged him not to accept second place, the general was non-committal. He said he wanted to see the platform first.

There are undoubtedly enough votes in the convention to put the Vice President across again if he gives the word. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon considers him a "logical candidate." He is acceptable to other powerful eastern leaders, and the Corn Belters are for him because of his espousal of the McNary-Haugen bill.

But a considerable number of the general's friends who are embittered over the Hoover victory are urging him to stay off the ticket and, as they put it, "Let the Hoover people stew."

CURTIS SAYS NO

Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, was still reported adamant at the hour of assembly this morning. To one of his supporters who urged him seriously to consider the vice presidency, the Kansan is reported to have replied he was a candidate for no other office than that of the presidency and would accept none other.

Meanwhile, the platform committee continued to wrestle with the knotty farm plank, and until they get together the delegates must more or less mark time. It was hoped when today's session opened to be able to adopt the platform today and clear up all other business, perhaps at a night session, thus paving the way for nominating speeches and the ratification of the Hoover nomination tomorrow.

"Out of the trenches by tomorrow night," was the cry of the delegates and the hope of the leaders.

Senator Fess, of Ohio, the convention keynoter, called the convention to order today at 10:37

Corn Belt Crowd Attempts to Crash Into Hall After Anti-Hoover Riots.

International News Service.

CONVENTION HALL, KANSAS CITY, June 13.—An embittered crowd of hundreds of anti-Hoover farmers made an unsuccessful attempt to "crash" the Republican National Convention today at the hour of assembling.

After staging another protest parade against Hoover's nomination through Kansas City streets to the convention hall, the Corn Belt representatives demanded admittance, and when barred by the police at the door, tried to carry it by storm. A tightly formed cordon of police and hastily summoned sergeants-at-arms barred their progress and finally forced them back.

THOUSAND IN LINE

Observers estimated there were about a thousand farmers in the parade, only the head of which, however, tried the crashing tactics.

The parade was led by Edgar D. Bush, of Salem, Ind., a candidate for lieutenant governor in Indiana.

Barred from the hall, the farmers stood about in the streets outside. They had a band, which vied with the band inside the convention hall. Just what they could do about it didn't appear clear, but they milled about. There were several impromptu and fiery curbstone speeches.

CANONSBURG MOTORIST HELD IN CHILD'S DEATH

CANONSBURG, Pa., June 13.—Arrested in connection with the death of Edna V. Yoders, 11, killed in an auto accident at Meadowlands Saturday, Howard Sprowls, of Canonsburg, was held for the coroner yesterday on a manslaughter charge. He was released in $2,500 bond. The child, police say, was killed when Sprowl's automobile collided with one driven by the girl's father.

THREE HURT AS AUTO HITS MONACA CYCLIST

MONACA, Pa., June 13.—Three persons were injured when an automobile driven by Lewis E. Winter, of Bridgewater, struck a bicycle ridden by J. Paul Beighey, 18, of Monaca. Beighey is in the Rochester Hospital. Mrs. Winter, wife of the driver of the auto, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Peter Winter suffered minor injuries.

AILSA'S PAL DASHING BRIDE

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Miss Olyve Graef, cousin and one time constant companion of the former Ailsa Mellon, the present Mrs. David Bruce—particularly when Mrs. Bruce was presiding over the household of her father, the Secretary of the Treasury—was married yesterday to J. Ballard Moore, Chicago lawyer and her childhood playmate. The wedding was more than "sudden."

Moore, guest at the Graef home yesterday, asked, "for the last time," if Miss Graef would marry him. Miss Graef, still unable to make up her mind, Mr. Moore left to return to Chicago.

When he reached the corner he was overtaken by the girl who suddenly announced she had changed her mind and would marry him. Preparations for the wedding were hurriedly made and only a few guests were present. The Rev. H. M. Hennig performed the ceremony.

Briton Reaches Lisbon in U. S. Hop

COURTNEY FINISHES 1ST LEG

LISBON, Portugal, June 13.—(AP.)—Capt. Frank T. Courtney, British aviator, arrived in Lisbon at 5:30 p. m. on the first leg of a trans-Atlantic flight to the United States.

PISA, Italy, June 13.—(AP.)—Capt. Frank T. Courtney, British aviator, hopped off at 4 a. m. today for Lisbon, Portugal, on the first leg of a trans-Atlantic flight to the United States.

He was flying a Dornier-Napier whale flying boat. His route will be from Lisbon to the Azores to Newfoundland and then to New York.

Capt. Courtney made an unsuccessful attempt to fly to New York from Plymouth, England, last September in a seaplane. After having made several attempts to hop off, during which his plane failed to rise from the water, he started, on September 8. He came down that afternoon near Corunna off the coast of Spain. After being delayed there for some time by bad weather he abandoned the flight on orders from the British Air Ministry after his backers had released him.

2ND SESSION DELAYED

"BRING ON SMITH"

A ringing and defiant challenge to the Democrats to "bring on Smith and we will bury him'" marked the session. The direct challenge to Smith and the Democrats was sent reverberating through the vast auditorium by Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, in his speech accepting the permanent chairmanship of the convention. It was an entertaining departure from the usual cut and dried prepared speeches of convention chairmen and it went over big.

Senator Moses, one of the original Hoover men, boldly took cognizance of the "defeatist" talk assiduously spread by the rebellious Corn Belt spokesmen and the anti-Hoover leaders.

"We enter this campaign," he declared, "in no posture of defense. We come upon the field aggressively militant. We intend to carry this fight to the enemy. And we challenge them to bring forth their strongest champion.

"Whether he emerge from another spectacle like the one-hundred-and-three round battle of Madison Bear Garden, or whether he come from an over-powered convention held spellbound by the glare of the Tammany Tiger, we are ready for him. Bring him on and we will bury him. We welcome him with hospitable hands to a bloody grave.

"And we care not whether his name be Brown, Jones, Robinson or Smith."

ATTACKS TAMMANY

In every line of Senator Moses' speech it was indicated that the Republican leadership now on the ground in Kansas City envisions the oncoming campaign as "Hoover against Smith," and is preparing for it.

The convention chairman provided a peek into the future by savagely attacking Tammany Hall by name, the dampness of Smith, the Democratic disfranchisement of the Negro in the South and Democratic fiscal policies Graft charges, too, were thrown in.

It was a militant, fighting speech, and calculated to raise the morale of those Republicans whose confidence regarding November has been shaken by the bitterness and bickering that has marred the fight between the Hoover people and the coalition for many weeks.

PLATFORM DELAYED

During the wait for the credentials committee, the outlook became more gloomy for the leaders' hopes of winding up the convention by tomorrow night. Word came to the platform from the resolutions committee that "there was very little chance of completing its work before tomorrow."

During the lull, P. D. Norton, a North Dakota delegate, asked the chair if it were in order for someone to while away the time by addressing the convention. He suggested that Senator McMaster (Rep). of South Dakota, be allowed to speak from the rostrum.

McMaster is one of the leaders of the Farm Bloc, and is anything but friendly to Hoover as a Presidential candidate.

Fess told him it wasn't in order, but the North Dakotan persisted in trying to regain his attention above the din of the band and the babel of voices.

HOOVER DELEGATES WIN

Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, chairman, finished the reading of the credentials committee report at 12 o'clock and moved that the temporary roll as framed by the national committee be approved. Daniel O. Hastings, a Deleware delegate, submitted a dissenting opinion concerning only the 22 district delegates from Texas.

After lengthy debate the minority report was rejected and the national committee's roll adopted as the final roll of delegates. The Texas delegates seated are credited to Hoover.

ANTI-BOOZE PLANK

plank calling for vigorous enforcement of the eighteenth amendment was incorporated in the 1928 Republican platform today by the resolutions sub-committee, following an all night session. Further, the plank pledged the party's nominees to observance and enforcement of the amendment.

Not since constitutional prohibition has been in effect has such a sweeping dry program been adopted by either of the major parties.

The plank was a victory for Senator Borah of Idaho, who has threatened to carry a fight before the convention and the country if the party straddled on prohibition this year. Its approval by the entire committee, to which it must go before being sent to the convention floor, was anticipated. The plank follows:

LAW ENFORCEMENT.

"We reaffirm the American constitutional doctrine as announced by George Washington in his farewell address, to wit:

"'The Constitution which at any time exists until changed by the explicit and authentic act by the whole people is sacredly obligatory upon all.'

"We also reaffirm the attitude of the American people toward the Federal Constitution as declared by Abraham Lincoln:

"'We are by both duty and inclination bound to stick by the Constitution in all its letter and spirit from beginning to end. I am for the honest enforcement of the Constitution. Our safety, our liberty depends upon preserving the Constitution of the United States, as our forefathers made it, inviolate.'

"The people through the method provided by the Constitution have written the Eighteenth Amendment into the Constitution. The Republican party pledges itself and its nominees to the observance and vigorous enforcement of this provision of the Constitution."

Senator Borah reported there were only two dissenting voices on the plank.

Bitter words were exchanged before Borah finally succeeded in obtaining a majority for his plank. Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, who proposed repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, led the fight for the wets.

SEEK FARM COMPROMISE

The farm plank row developed into a tedious struggle. At noon, Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, said he could see little hope of a compromise.

"Will you be out of there by Christmas?" he was asked.

"I don't think so," Borah replied. "I feel the committee ought to stay here at least until after the election, the way things are going now."

Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, however, was more hopeful. He said the committee was making "some progress toward a compromise." The committee remained in session during the lunch hour, sending out for food.

HELEN BAUGHAN

The "Grand Old Party," in solemn convention, has spurned Helen Baughan, national director, women's division, National Liberal Alliance, Washington, D. C. She was petitioning the platform committee for modification of the party's prohibition views—she's a "wet"—and the committee, despite her campaign from Maine to Missouri, which left her representative of more than 12,000,000 voters, adopted Senator Borah's platform ideas, pledging more vigorous enforcement of the eighteenth amendment.

Convention Day by Day

By

O. O. M'INTYRE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 13.—I was skittish about the opening of the convention today. I feared the excitement might bring on one of my spells. I found it as thrilling as an hour-glass demonstration.

But I walked down the aisle behind Senator Borah, and when he wasn't looking, touched his sleeve. That's something. I have come in contact with many big men in that way—that is, by "touching" them.

My seat was next to a beefy gentleman with a covey of chins who exuded a strong aroma of onions. I wanted to tell him about Marge Kennedy's line that onions may build you up physically, but they drag you down socially.

I could see no reason why among 14,000 seats he had to pick one next to me. Still—and I thought this up right in my own head—politics makes strange bed-fellows.

At the entrance of the hall a polite usher asked me if I had a proscenium seat. The idea of such a personal question. I never met him before in my life. I'd look silly anyway at my age running around K. C. with a proscenium seat.

* * *

About the loveliest looking lady I saw in the big hall was Alice Roosevelt Longworth, but there were many runners-up. Ziegfeld wouldn't do bad here, hunting material.

* * *

Kansas City awakened this morning with weepy skies, but just about the time most of us regretted not bringing our rubbers the sun popped out and everything was perfectly dandy.

Houston will have to go some to beat the weather here, so far.

The days have been like spring at Mentone, and the nights have the mild chill of Lucerne. (Oh, I've been around). Blankets have been in demand every night.

The informality of the West always impress the stranger. A corn-fed messenger boy has been calling at my hotel room every morning to do sundry chores. This morning when he popped in he greeted me with: "How's the kid?"

There is a breeziness, too, about the crossing cops. Some of them wear khaki uniforms with Sam Browne belts and a six-shooter strapped to their thighs. "Skip the gutter, bub," one yelled today, and he gazed down at my spats, smiling as though some of my underthings might have slipped from their moorings.

Nothing seems so out of place in Kansas City as a hotel clerk with a British accent, but there is one here, my word, and a fruity old bean, too. I heard him tell a bewildered codger who inquired for the elevator that "the lift is at the next turning."

The visitor who is here for the first time with any notion that Kansas City is one of those overgrown towns has received a jolt. It is studded with skyscrapers, vibrant with progress, and has one of the finest boulevard and park systems in America.

It has a residential development that incites a gasp among the most reluctant of gaspers, and if this doesn't touch the generosity of the Chamber of Commerce in a big way, nothing will. Please omit flowers.

All the talk, as the blood-red sun made its courtesy last evening, was of Hoover and Coolidge, and I hope whoever is sticking those scurrilous dodgers about Hoover under hotel room doors will be a better boy. That isn't nice, and is about as sporting as drowning kittens.

It smacks of the Ku Klux—and if there are any in the audience I'm just kidding. The best description I have heard of Coolidge is that he is "a close chewer and a tight spitter." If that isn't a complete biography in a phrase, see my solicitor.

And speaking of "chewing," when I was a square-toed country boy hereabouts it sticks in my memory, if any, that everybody chewed tobacco. But on this trip I haven't seen a single tobacco chewer. But maybe it is because long white whiskers have gone out of style.

Now that the convention is in full swing, everybody seems to be in a caucus. In fact, they are caucusing all over the lot. As one who can caucus or let it alone, it seems a lot of wasted effort to me.

I have been able to go for years without a single caucus, in fact it makes such a slight impression on me that I don't even remember my last caucus, but I suppose all these things are necessary in making history, and that, so the pretty word-slingers declare, is what is going on here. It won't be long now.

MID-WEST STUNNED BY SPEED

By RUTH HANNA M'CORMICK,

(Copyright, 1928, by Chicago Herald and Examiner.)

KANSAS CITY, June 13.—I confess to a deep sense of disappointment. It is the appalling lack of enthusiasm that marks this as the most extraordinary Republican National Convention within my memory.

I am puzzled, as I presume are most of the Republican spokesmen, and certainly great numbers of delegates.

What is it? What does it mean?

Is it sullenness? Is it suppressed anger? Is it indifference?

There is no excitement comparable in intensity and exuberance even to a Wednesday evening prayer meeting.

Does it mean that the vote of Pennsylvania, as represented by the dicta of Mr. Vare and "Uncle Andrew" Mellon, is all there is to this foregathering of earnest men and women, supposedly committed to the high purpose of perpetuating Republican principles of government in this nation?

TAKEN FOR GRANTED

The depression everywhere in Kansas City is like Kansas City on a hot, humid day, with the exception—there is no perspiration, physical or mental, seemingly.

Everything is taken for granted, apparently. The embittered farmers are not battling. The bands are not playing. The people are not cheering. It even is difficult to get up a first-class debate at the luncheon table.

Even the chortling, what little there is of it, seems hollow and forced. Everything is so strange. One would search in vain for a coup de poing.

There doesn't appear to be any stamina in this thing we have looked forward to with increasing pulse and infectious enthusiasm.

Have we become industrialized in our politics, so to speak? Is everybody out of step but us?

SPEED KILLS INTEREST

That is to say, have our efficiency experts finally taken over the business of speeding up production in our national convention—the greatest possible output in the shortest possible time?

But whatever it is, it is strange, unreal, uninteresting, depressing. So far as atmosphere goes, this is the dullest, flattest convention I have ever known.

There isn't any "mob psychology" here. That's because, for one reason, there isn't any "mob" here. There is nothing gaudy, nothing flamboyant even to add zest and color to the more serious business of the big scene. It is like a great theater without an orchestra. And there doesn't seem to be any actor on the stage with such outstanding histrionic ability as to make you forget there isn't any orchestra.

There aren't even a few lilting chords of jazz to relieve the sense of exhaustion.

It is so ladylike that you can hear every newsboy crying his papers blocks away. That helps some.

LESSON IN EFFICIENCY

One thing stands out as a superb achievement. That is the efficiency with which the gentlemen who are running the show today outlined and conducted the pre-convention campaign. If one stands in awe at marvelous and flawless efficiency, then there is plenty of aweing for everyone in Kansas City today.

Even Pennsylvania—Pennsylvania of the Lancaster Pike and Valley Forge and the Liberty Bell—gives one a thrill on the efficiency score.

It matters not whether "Uncle Andrew" Mellon consented to permit Mr. Vare to have his hour in the sun and say it first, or whether Uncle Andrew couldn't help himself and was forced by the realities of the situation to play a sort of second fiddle to the Philadelphia statesman—it seems to have been an efficient performance, and part of the program thought out with meticulous care long weeks ago.

But where do we go from here?

MIDDLE WEST SILENT

The voice of the Middle West is inarticulate for the moment, but it cannot be that it has been lost in sheer amazement at the exhibition of efficiency that came out of the East.

Whether it has been throttled down completely, so far as this convention goes, will depend somewhat, no doubt, on the party pronouncement and the selection of not only the head of the ticket, but the candidate for second place.

They are nailing the planks into the platform as these rambling sentences are written. It may be that this proverbial exuberance and fighting spirit of the Middle West we have rejoiced over, to, these many years, is going the way of all flesh. It may be that there is developing over the wide open spaces of the country a sort of spiritless surrender to the industrial East.

For my part I cannot believe it. I know it isn't true, and the rafters of the Coliseum will yet vibrate under the explosion, if my phophecy is worth a pinch of salt, in the event a farm plank being proposed is a mere gesture and not the substance of a practical and sympathetic declaration for relief.

NO SURRENDER

So far the voice of the West seems to have encountered a strata of static and is registering, if at all, in a confused jumble of sounds of the Vermont Hills and the Lancaster pike.

Let us hope and fervently voice our invocations, that that static, which is thick just now over the Alleghenies, will have sufficiently cleared up this summer to permit Middle West receivers to get a little better reception when Uncle Andrew and Mr. Vare approach the ndes of November and broadcast their appeals to Western votes.

But static or no static, the Middle West will carry its banner unsullied. It will stand for the fifty-fifty deal at all hazards. It may temporize for the moment or delay for the time being the final accounting, but it will not surrender its principle. It has just begun to fight.

CRIME AND TARIFF ARE LINKED

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 13.—The tariff schedule and the crime wave are inter-related, according to District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, of Tarentum, one of the Allegheny county delegates to the Republican convention here.

"Unemployment increases crime," he said in an interview today, "and unemployment is increased due to the inability of the last Congress to adjust the tariff rates to meet European competition that, even 10 years after the war, is making its bid for the markets of the world on cheap labor and starvation wages. The Pennsylvania delegation, in demanding a definite pledge to increase the tariff rates as affecting steel, glass and other products upon which the State's prosperity is based, is aiding every state official whose work puts him face to face with what is called the crime wave."

VAGUE PLANK PROBABLE

Just how far Pennsylvania will get in its demands for a more definite tariff plank, instead of the generalities in that respect that have marked the paltforms in recent years, is doubtful, in spite of the fact that the 79 votes of the state, turned to Herbert Hoover when Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon "suggested" the Secretary of Commerce yesterday, provided the impetus that will name the Republican nominee and, possibly, the next President of the United States.

The possibility, however, seems to be that, in place of the definite plank suggested by Joseph R. Grundy, head of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, there will be a sentence or two making a somewhat indefinite pledge of upward revision.

VARE SEATING FLOPS

Another proposal that is not getting much favor is the Vare plank declaring "we pledge the Republican party to the fullest support of the constitutional privilege that each state shall be held competent to choose its own delegates to the Senate." That effort to place in the party platform a pledge to seat Vare, does not appear to be even seriously considered. Despite the fact that his sudden decision for Hoover seems to have outmaneuvered Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Vare is not in a position to place the national party behind his effort to get a place in the Senate. The truth of the matter is that, according to many Pennsylvania delegates, that resolution was presented and adopted unanimously without warning and when many did not know its significance.

As far as Pennsylvania is concerned, the convention is over. All of the delegates look for the nomination of Herbert Hoover on the first or second ballots.

According to Secretary Mellon, about 20 are being considered for Vice President. The choice, of course, will not go to Pennsylvania.

GRADUATES 250 TONIGHT

Almost 250 students in the various schools of Duquesne University will receive their degrees this evening in Soldiers' Memorial Hall at commencement exercises which close the institution's golden jubilee celebration. The Rt. Rev. H. C. Boyle, bishop of Pittsburgh, will preside and the Most Rev. John T. McNicholae, archbishop of Cincinnati, O., will deliver the address. Prominent clergymen and educators, friends and relatives of the graduating students will attend.

SUES

Mrs. Anna Maurer, Los Angeles, was hugged by a monkey. She resented it, even if the monk did have a high falutin' name like "Mona Lisa." So she sued the owner, Mrs. Lita Grant, for $5,500 and said "Mona Lisa" was a "nasty thing." Mrs. Grant doesn't like that epithet applied to her pet and will contest the suit. The monk's named for its resemblance, if you'll bear it, to da Vinci's famous canvas, "Mona Lisa."

Pittsburgh AS OTHERS SEE US

"Pittsburgh . . . means . . . good looking girls, who are not afraid to laugh."

—EDDIE CANTOR.

EDDIE CANTOR

EDDIE CANTOR, comedian, born in New York City, January 31, 1893; educated at public schools and a business college. Began his career in vaudeville and burlesque. He has appeared in several Broadway successes since 1916, and took up motion pictures in 1926. Is active in Jewish charities. Lives in Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

Like many other actors, I know very little about any city outside of its theaters and its entertainment-seeking public.

Pittsburgh, to this comic's mind, means packed theaters, appreciative audiences, the most loyal baseball fans in America, and good-looking girls who are not afraid to laugh.

Years ago it was a standing joke to mention Pittsburgh "soot." It was considered a sure laugh to say "I just came clean from Pittsburgh." Nowadays, with the $70,000 a star can play to in two weeks with a musical show, the line has been changed to "I just cleaned up in Pittsburgh."

U. S. FETES MEXICAN LINDY

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP.)—With its anxieties for the safety of Capt. Emilio Carranza quieted and its preliminary reception out of the way, Washington turned today to a round of entertainments for the Mexican good-will aviator who returned his country's compliments for the visit of Col. Lindbergh to Mexico City in December.

Sophisticated by its long contact with noted fliers, the capital nevertheless, had a joyous welcome for the dapper 22-year-old pilot from the sister republic to the south who fought his way through fog and storm and made a forced landing in North Carolina, 320 miles away, under perilous circumstances.

After a long sleep Carranza was fit and ready for the program arranged in his honor including the laying of a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington National Cemetery and, accompanied by Ambassardor Tellez, a visit with President Coolidge.

Noted aviators, including Lieut. Lester Maitland, who flew to Hawaii, vied with each other last night in extolling the flying skill and cool judgment of the young flier in landing his plane at Mooresville, N. C., after a heavy fog had turned back even the seasoned air mail pilots who were well acquainted with the route.

CLAIMS POLICE BEAT HER

"They called me names and beat me," testified Mrs. Theresa Puniak, 23, against police in Morals Court today, after police had testified she had attacked them with a knife in a liquor raid in her home, 2823 Preble avenue. She was fined $10 on a disorderly conduct charge by Magistrate A. D. Brandon. The woman's husband, Anthony Puniak, a witness before the Federal Grand Jury's rum ring probe, was held for court, charged with violating the Snyder act.

RATE CUT EFFECTIVE MONDAY

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP.)—Reduced rates on lake cargo coal shipments from Ohio, Pennsylvania and Northern West Virginia points to Lake Erie ports, proposed by the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central and associated railroads, were allowed late yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission to go into effect June 18 next.

The reduction allowed is that proposed by the Northern railroads in their contest with Southern railroads over the lake cargo traffic.

The prolonged fight over these rates has been brought before the commission, the Federal courts and into Congress. By the commission's original action the lake cargo rates from the Ohio-Pennsylvania territory were cut 20 cents per ton and Southern railroads serving Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia mines, which compete for the lake cargo traffic, cut rates from that territory an equal amount.

When the commission sought to prevent the Southern rate cut, the railroads and coal producers successfully appealed to the Federal courts and obtained a restraining order. The step, carried forward today, was the proposal of a second 20-cent cut by the Northern lines.

The commission in acting yesterday gave no statement of its reasons for approving the Northern cut, but said briefly that it had "declined to suspend the tariffs." The Southern producers and railroads also have protested to the commission against the Northern second reduction, but without avail.

As a result of the commission's decision it is estimated that Pittsburgh's coal shipments to the lakes will be doubled. This means an annual output of 5,000,000 tons of coal will go into the lake cargo trade.

NORMA NORMAN

Request that Cleveland police search for an ex-convict believed to have carried her off has turned the search for Norma Norman, 20, Oakland bookkeeper, to that city. She was seized in front of her home here about two weeks ago and bundled into an automobile. Her screams failed to bring aid in time.

BLIZZARD ADDS TO NOBILE'S PERILS

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, June 13.—(AP.)—A blizzard sweeping across the ice pack today added to the perils of the survivors of the dirigible Italia.

Their fuel and food were running low, despite careful rationing. Their hands and feet were frostbitten and they needed medicine to treat the frost bites and for two of their number injured when the gondola of the airship crashed against the ice.

For 18 days these men have been castaways and no help has come to them. Three of the crew who tried to reach land were lost. If they were alive today it is doubtful if they would be able to make their way through the blinding snow and they would be in imminent danger of falling into the open water among the ice floes.

MAY LOSE SHELTER

The survivors, divided into two groups, faced the prospect of being driven by the wind out of the shelter of Northeast Land and carried on the ice floes between Spitzbergen and Franz Josef Land into the open sea. If they could make their way through the blizzard to Rips Bay, they would find a shelter hut on one of the small islands there.

With the wind increasing Gen Umberto Nobile's party was regarded as certain to experience trouble in keeping up wireless communications. The second group which come down on the ice nearly 19 miles from Gen. Nobile was out of touch with their companions and probably ignorant of relief measures. In view of this it was thought that any hopes they held of reaching safety were fast dwindling.

The wind blowing from the west hampered the progress of the sealer Hobby by piling up the ice floes along the north coast in the vessel's path. The vessel was struggling to get near enough to permit Capt. Riiser-Larsen and Lieut. Luetzow Holm to take off in seaplanes in search of the Italia's survivors.

These planes cannot carry enough of a load to rescue the marooned men. They can only give the castaways temporary aid to enable them to hold out until icebreakers and larger planes can make their way to them.

RUSSIAN SHIP SAILS

One of the most powerful ice breakers in the North, the Russian vessel Maligin, sailed from Archangel, Russia, with an airplane. It was estimated that she would reach Northeastland in about 10 days.

An Italian expedition in the flying boat Savoia-55 was on its way north. A three-motored plane capable of carrying 10 passengers, was expected to reach Spitzbergen tomorrow from Stockholm.

FILMS, DANCERS, DRAW CROWDS

Crowds! That's the story of the Grand Theater Monday and yesterday, as a result of the all-star motion picture and stage bill showing there this week.

In conjunction with "Hangman's House," dramatic romance filmed from the famous novel by Donn Byrne; Chita and Her Flaming Youths; the Our Gang Comedy and other novelties, the newspaper film, "The Making of a Newspaper," is being shown as a special attraction. Many hundreds of the Pittsburgh public, through it, are getting their first glimpse of how news is gathered and produced.

The feature picture, one of the best romances shown in the city, trails Victor McLaglen and June Collyer through a maze of Irish turf jealousies and intrigues. Many of the scenes were taken in Ireland, particularly the horse racing scenes. John Ford, who directed the film-taking, took the cast to the Emerald Isle to get the proper atmosphere.

Chita and her company of comic, ballet and acrobatic dancers and singers, is in conformity with the high standard of stage attractions recently introduced at the Grand Theater. "Chicken Feed" with Our Gang and their antics is the comedy picture.

Jiggs to Preside At Corn Beef Feast

"Jiggs," famous character in The Sun-Telegraph comic strip, "Bringing Up Father," will do the honors at a corn beef and cabbage feast at West View Park tomorrow, when Old St. Patrick's parish will hold its annual picnic. The Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's, announces that every effort has been made to sidetrack "Maggie," so that Jiggs may enjoy the day sans the usual rolling pin massage, but could offer no assurance that the testy dame would not appear to prevent his enjoyment of the royal dish made famous at Dinty Moore's place.

Rogers Judges Song Is Best K. C. Act

KANSAS CITY, June 13.—We met yesterday for no reason, and adjourned for the same.

Will Rogers

When Andy Mellon came in, everybody stood up as though a lady had entered the room, rather an effeminate move, I thought.

The best thing at the convention was Schuman-Heink singing, and oh, what a grand old lady she did look and how she sang! I wish she had sang Fess' keynote speech.

It looks like they met just to take photographs, every delegate had his photographer.

The keynote now is, not to "Stop Hoover," but to "Stop Smith."

I think we will have the boys out of the hotels by Thursday, so let's go on to Houston, where they, at least, know how to fuss.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

ANSWER BOND QUERIES

HOOVER LEADS SMITH AMONG DOCTORS

SMITH 38

Doctors, dentists and their assistants in two of the large buildings in downtown Pittsburgh, occupied largely by these professional men indicated a decided leaning towards Hoover in The Sun-Telegraph's straw vote canvass. The probable Republican party candidate, Hoover, was favored by 63, while Smith polled 38 straw votes. The occasional, but insistant, Coolidge man appeared, declaring he was going to vote for the incumbent, whether he "chose" to run or not.

The total personally canvassed straw vote, obtained by The Sun-Telegraph representatives in various parts of the city now shows 1,116 for Hoover, and 926 for Smith, while 34 have declared for Coolidge on the belief that he will be a candidate.

The present count, showing the various stratas of the community sounded on the straw vote, gives the following results:

	Hoover	Smith
Oliver Building	367	167
Westinghouse Plant	302	300
Ohio Street	131	202
Imperial	55	52
City-County Building	75	50
Seventh Street	123	117
Medical profession	63	38
Totals	1116	926

It was ascertained by the straw vote taken in the professionl offices that 77 had voted for Coolidge in 1924 and 9 for Davis. This gives a total vote of 1,169 for Coolidge and 255 for Davis at the last presidential election.

Including the recent mail vote taken by The Sun-Telegraph, which record 1,807 votes for Smith and 361 for Hoover, the grand total of both returns shows 2,733 for Smith and 1,477 for Hoover.

COUNTY ISSUE WINS FRIENDS AT QUIZ

Two hundred members of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, guests of the Peoples' Bond Issue Association at tea in the William Penn Hotel ball room yesterday, discussed the salient points in the proposed $43,680,000 county bond issue which will be voted on at a special election June 26.

Twenty-two questions propounded to the association by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith on the behalf of the League of Women Voters were answered in detail by James C. Chaplin, president of the association. Mrs. J. O. Miller amplified the question list from the floor, but harmony prevailed and it was declared that the bond issue proposal had made new friends.

Preceding discussion, a statement of the bond issue question as a whole was made by President Chaplin and special features of the matter were discussed by W. M. Jacoby, Thomas A. Dunn, John W. Vickerman, Henry Tranter and others.

Answering questions about the proposed Town Hall, comparisons were made with experiences of Cleveland with its auditorium, which brings a good return and is invaluable in obtaining conventions. Replying to the question why $110,000 is spent for a special bond issue election, the committee stated that there was no doubt as to the advantage of holding the election for such important undertakings at times when voters' attention was not centered on other local political issues.

Citizens of the North Boroughs indorsed all items in the proposed bond issue at a mass meeting held last night under the auspices of the Bellevue Board of Trade. J. W. Vickerman, president of the board, presided, and addresses were made by George S. Davison, Charles M. Reppert, George A. Young and others advocating the county improvement program.

In the Pittsburgh Hospital 11 stitches were necessary to close West's wounds.

WOMAN KILLED BY CAR; IDENTIFICATION SOUGHT

Efforts are being made at the county morgue today to identify the body of a woman, about 40, who was killed by a street car at Penn avenue and Twenty-eighth street late last night. The car was inbound on the North-South route. A purse carried by the woman contained names and addresses of North Side residents and it is hoped that through these that her identity may be determined.

When Skinny Men Grow Manly

Five or 10 Pounds of Flesh on Their Bones Make a Lot of Difference.

Out in the country they used to say "Just as thin as a fence rail" and after Jim had somehow managed to grow more shapely and add more weight they used to say.

"Jim's a real good looking fellow since he took on flesh."

And that's the way it goes all over the world: the skinny, gaunt man can never be attractive or look manly until he puts more flesh on his scantily covered bones.

Many thin men have gained in weight and at the same time in vigor and attractiveness—no thin man can do it unless he tries.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

57th ANNIVERSARY

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

ESCAPE

By LILY WANDEL

THE letter lay in Lucia's brown jersey lap like a star fallen straight from heaven. In idle moments when she had permitted her mind to wander to an impossible but exquisite future she had dreamed of something like this. After all these years in the dark back office of Darby Brothers, through never ending hours in all that dust and clutter, now must come this wonderful offer.

She had read the contents of this letter three times, but her appetite for a certain paragraph was insatiable, she must go over it again. "My shop—Lucia, it's the ultra modern, beautiful, glorious with color—well, it's an enormous success. But I'm rushed to death and I need somebody whom I can depend upon, somebody who loves beauty and understands business and I thought of you. Can't you come soon? If you wish to invest any money in the shop, you may, but it's all the same, only come. We'll get a tiny apartment—"

Lucia permitted the letter to slip back into her brown lap and then attempted to picture the happiness of working in Laura's lovely shop. Suddenly she felt the tremendous need of sharing her joy with somebody. It was so wonderful, after all these years of hopeless drudgery that she could not possibly keep it a moment longer to herself She must tell Aunt Jinny at once!

Swiftly, noiselessly she sped downstairs to stop, hesitating at the living room door Aunt Jinny was dozing in her rocker beside the radiator, the big maltese cat asleep in her aproned lap. It came to Lucia as she stood there, that the news might not awaken much joy in Aunt Jinny. It would mean a parting. Aunt Jinny going to her other niece, Beulah. "Well,' reflected Lucia slipping quietly into the kitchen, "Beulah can afford to take Aunt Jinny. I've made a home and provided for Aunt Jinny for 11 years and all Beulah has ever done for her is to present her at Christmas with a box of handkerchiefs!" Lucia smiled bitterly. "And Beulah's had everything—a nice home, children, and a prosperous, kind husband. She's going to take Aunt Jinny. I'll see to it that she doesn't get out of it!" A determined look flashed in Lucia's blue eyes. "I'm not going to pass up the opportunity for happiness and success. I'm not going to grow old and mouldy at Darby's hardware store. I'm not going to sit in years to come and think of the chance I let pass by."

The urge to speak to somebody was so strong that Lucia swung an old sweater over her shoulders and ran next door to Miss Tripp. Ordinarily Lucia was very careful what she said to the little dressmaker, but just now she was overflowing with joy and determination and threw caution to the winds.

Miss Tripp gulped in the news greedily. "My, my Lucia! Going to the city to a shop like that and being a partner! I'm right glad for you, indeed, I am. You've certainly done your duty by your Aunt Jinny and now this is your well-earned reward. I always said it's a shame the way Lucia Gray is ruining her eyes and looks in that dark little back office at Darby's. You'll be making big money, won't it be grand?"

Lucia ran home, happy and excited to write to Laura how glad she would be to come. She decided that she might as well put off telling Aunt Jinny for a day or two. Aunt Jinny was getting old and it naturally would upset her.

The following evening as Lucia came from work Miss Tripp hailed her. "I'm just coming from your cousin Beulah's," the little dressmaker chatted newsily. "I'm sewing there for the next few days, you know. Making her a brown silk dress, piped with red! Isn't that awful. I've tried and tried to talk her into having it piped with rose—beige—anything but red, but you know how Beulah is like a mule. I told her about you planning to go in business with your friend in the city and really, Lucia—" while Miss Tripp paused for breath Lucia felt a curious sinking situation, as if some one had stuck a pin in her lovely balloon of hope. "—really, I think Beulah is selfish. She said that you needn't think you could stick Aunt Jinny on her, that she hadn't any room for her. And that it was your duty to stay right here in town like you had been doing, that this shop business was all nonsense. Honestly, Lucia, I tried to talk to her, but she just got worse. She said the whole thing was a sneaky little plan of yours to get rid of Aunt Jinny and she positively wouldn't take her. There's no use talking with her—it's like that brown silk piped with red!"

Lucia forced a little laugh out of a dry, tight throat. "Awful," she managed to bring out, "brown piped with red, simply monstrous! Oh, there's Miss Penny, I must speak to her about more eggs. Aunt Jinny wants to make an angel cake Saturday!" Then she escaped.

When she entered the cottage a little later Aunt Jinny was bustling about the kitchen. "Kidney omelet and beaten biscuit tonight, Lucia," she beamed at her niece, "and lemon sponge and sunshine cake, we just must use up the eggs."

"Food for the gods! Nobody can make an omelet like you!" Lucia sniffed the savory air with relish, but in her mind pounded, "Beulah's going to take her. I'll make her. This is my chance for happiness. It'll never come again. I'm going, no 10 horses nor Beulahs will stop me. She's got to take her!" And then in seeped, "Brown piped with red! She's so obstinate —it's hopeless!" But suddenly an amused light flickered in her eyes and a mischievous laugh bubbled in her throat.

Two minutes later she stood in Miss Tripp's parlor, breathless and smiling. "Oh, I left you so suddenly this evening I came over to explain! I'd been here sooner, but I ate so much supper. You know how well Aunt Jinny cooks. Every meal fit for a king! Really I don't think there's a salad she can't make nor a cake either. Don't mention it to Beulah. Honestly, Aunt Jinny is a wonder all around. You should see the way she irons! Exquisitely! And her fine sewing! And she's so quick about it. The same thing with her mending. I never can tell where my stockings are darned. But, please, don't mention it to Beulah!"

"Good gracious, no!" Miss Tripp assured her, memorizing every word Lucia uttered.

"You see," Lucia went on confidentially, "Beulah might get it into her head that Aunt Jinny would be a big help in the house and with the children. And I meant to tell you before supper that the idea of Beulah getting such a treasure as Aunt Jinny made me laugh!"

As Lucia ran home she chuckled to herself, "If that doesn't do the trick my name isn't Lucia Dawn!"

The very next day a full form wedged itself into Darby's dark little office. "Lucia, my dear!" Beulah seemed to fill the whole room. "I happened to hear about your going to the city and I just dropped in to tell you that I think it's a marvelous opportunity for you. Don't miss it, and of course, I'll take Aunt Jinny, but she'll have to get rid of her cat."

A curious feeling came over Lucia, not of triumph at all, actually a sensation of a breathless escape as if she had dug a hole for Beulah and had almost fallen into it herself. A dreary vision of Aunt Jinny at Beulah's home appeared before her eyes which was instantly blotted out by a much more depressing picture of herself in the city coming back from work to a little apartment where no delicious supper awaited her and no bustling Aunt Jinny was in sight. Her fingers crept to her throat as if she were trying to press something back, perhaps the words, "How could I ever have thought of such a thing!" that blistered in her heart.

Aloud she said calmly, "I'm glad you approve of my going, Beulah. Rather, our going, because Aunt Jinny is coming with me and," she added firmly, "so is her cat."

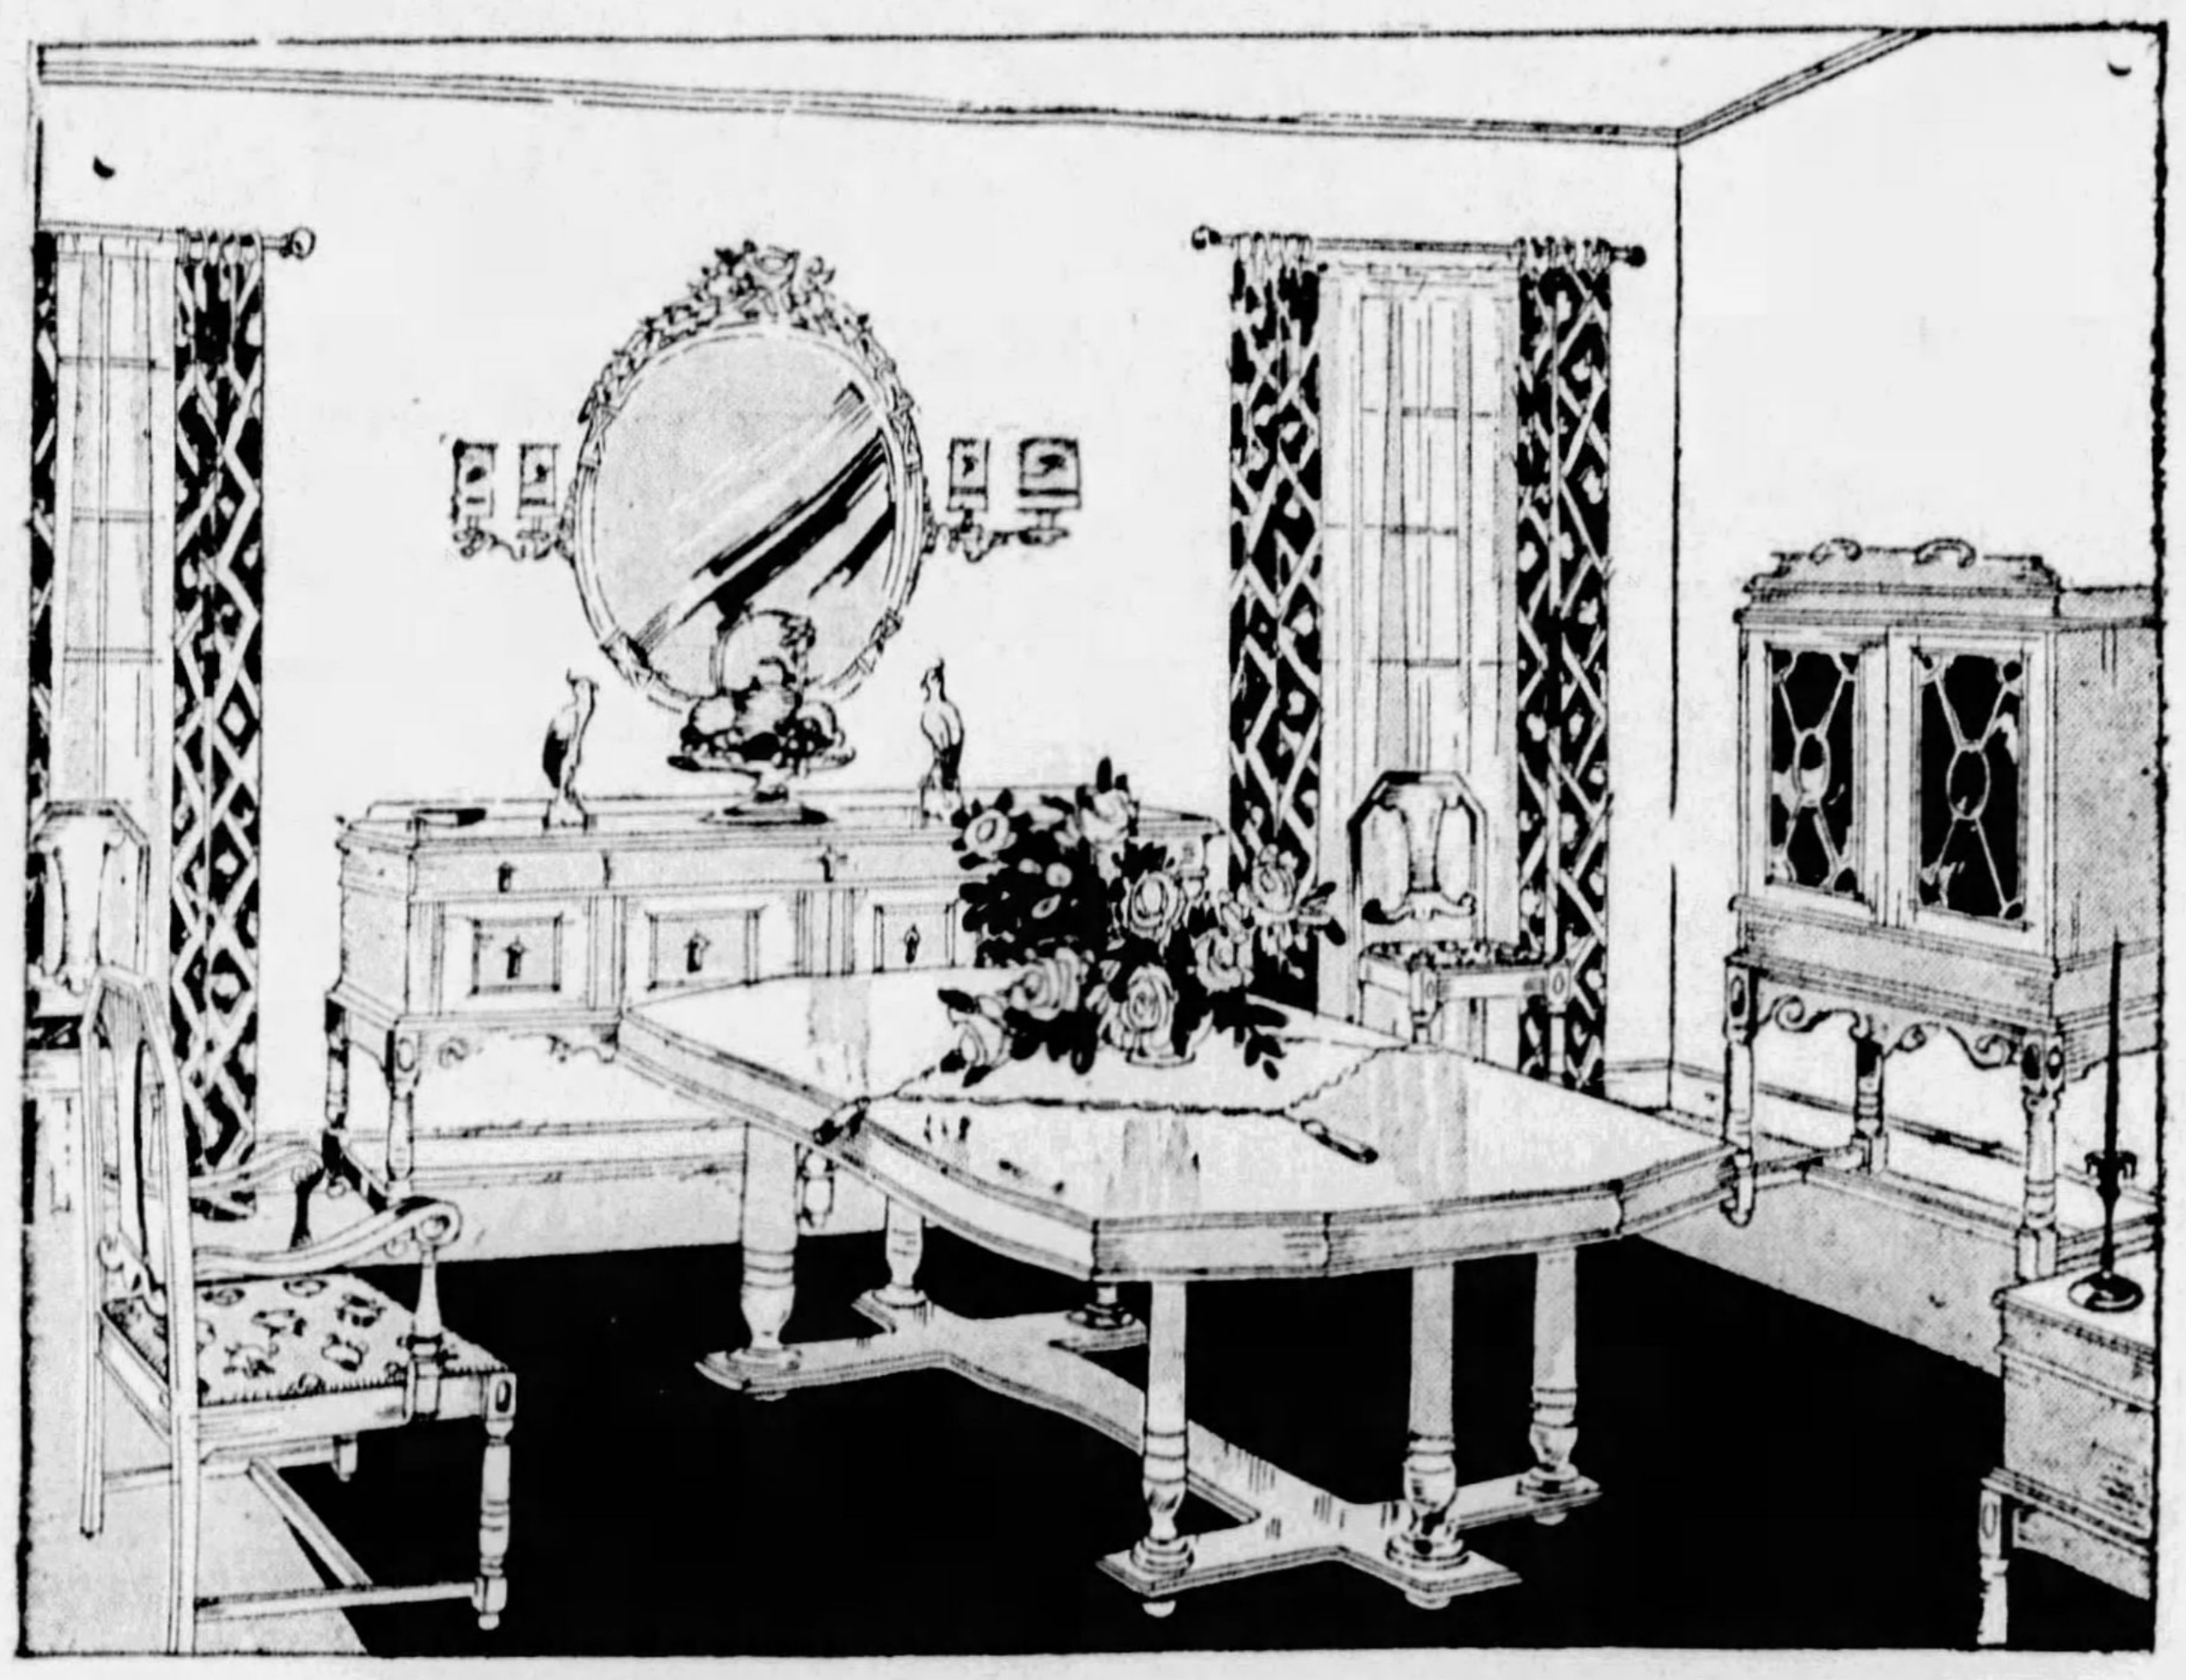
Dining Room Furniture



Priced for Quick Disposal

Forty-five sets of dining and breakfast room furniture sharply re-marked for prompt selling. Building operations have encroached largely on space in this department and these sets must go. Such low prices have been put upon them that we feel sure those interested in furniture will take advantage of the substantial savings.

7 Suites at $245.00

In the group at this price there is but one or two of a style. Practically all of them are of the sturdy, handsome English styles in walnut combined with gumwood, with fine bits of carving. Nine and ten pieces to a suite.

16 Suites at $345.00

All of these suites are from our regular stock, marked to very much lower than formerly. In this group will be found suites following Italian, Jacobean, Charles II and graceful Sheraton styles. Nine and ten pieces to a suite.

12 Suites at $395.00

Two styles in this group. both characteristic of the Jacobean period and adapted to the modern home. Both are in walnut, handsome and dignified.

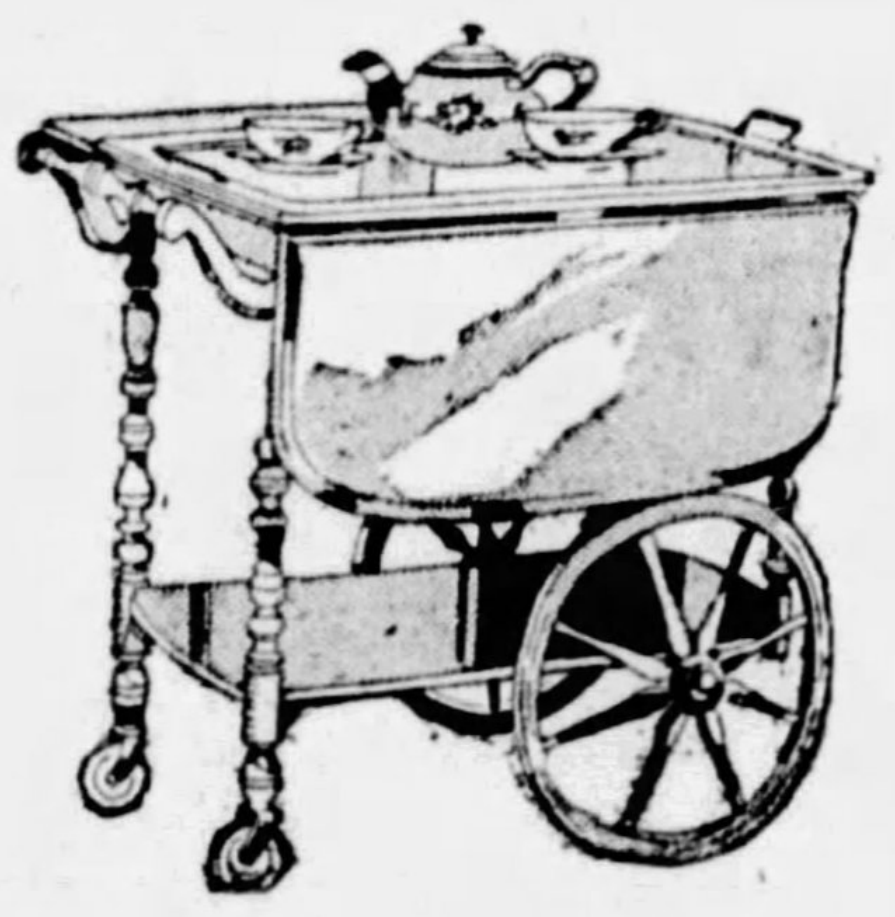
Dinette Suites $165.00

Just two of these in early American style, designed for the modern small dining room. There is a draw end table, small sideboard and four chairs. One suite in maple, and one in walnut.

Breakfast Room Suites, $95.00

Four suites of light and graceful proportions. In crackled green finish. Table, server and four chairs. Same style, table and four chairs, in green or red crackled finish. $63.00.

Tea Cart—Special $24.50



An undoubtedly good value is this specially low marked tea cart. Of walnut and gumwood, with glass tray top, a cutlery drawer, and a collapsible handle.

250 Campers Can Have These Heavy Blankets

at $1.75 each

They were made for a large industrial firm, which was forced by circumstances to cancel its order. We took them at the reduced price quoted, believing that local campers, motorists and river cottagers would like to have them.

They are 60x80 inches, gray in color, with a black and white striped border and stitched ends. Part wool, extremely heavy (4 lbs. each), and of coarse texture, which makes them highly serviceable for outdoor use. They also make excellent, inexpensive auto robes.

Mail or telephone your order—Court 3000—if you can't get in tomorrow, because the entire lot is likely to be sold in a day!

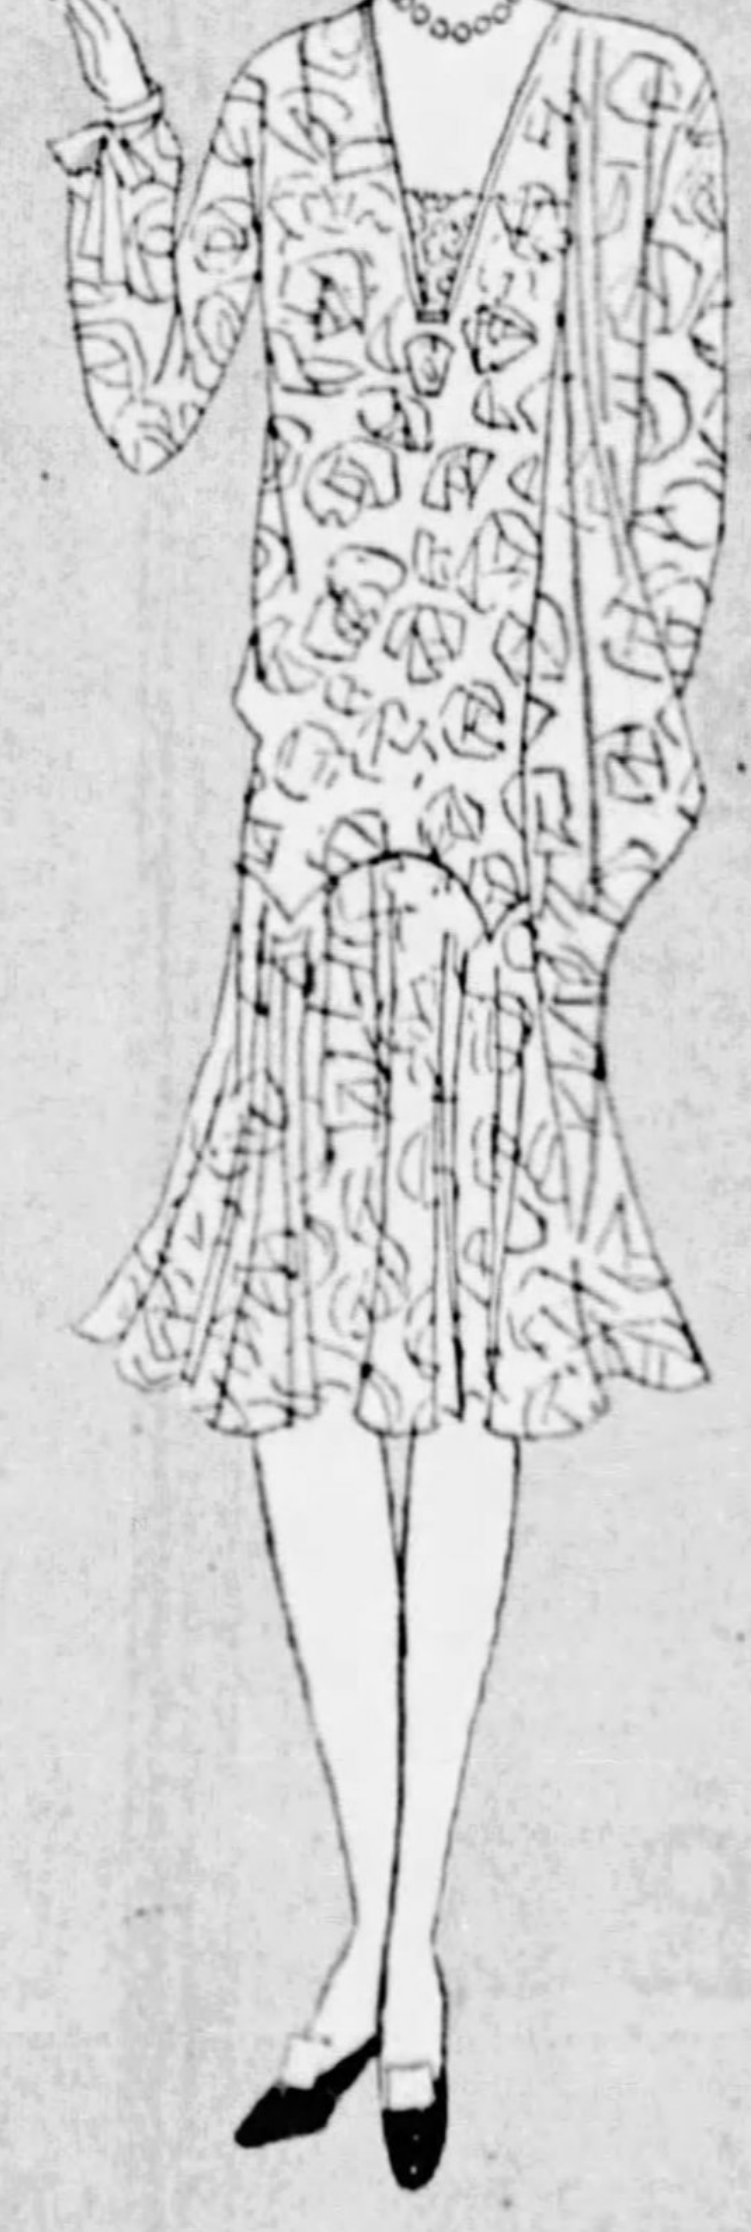
A New Group of Printed Chiffon Dresses

$39.50



These fluttering, colorful frocks, lately arrived in the Women's Finer Dress Section, bring new patterns, new color harmonies and new styles, to add interest to the increasing vogue of printed chiffon.

They are in large flower patterns, which are most highly approved for picturesque summer afternoon frocks, with bright or soft colors on light grounds.

Also at this price, polka dot chiffon frocks with a pleasing suggestion of unconventionality.

Chiffon is such a delightful summer fabric, and women should get the full enjoyment of wearing it by having their chiffon frocks early.

SPREAD NEWS OF SUN-TELE PICNIC

CHILDREN HELP ICE FUND

With another boost or two such as a group of Highland district children have given it and the Sun-Tele Milk and Ice Fund will have reached its first $100 for this season. These youngsters, who gave their benefit late last fall, have added $20.70 to the fund, bringing it to a total of $60.54. Judging from the size of their contributions they must have found many a passerby who liked candy and lemonade which they dispensed from a Wellesley avenue garage as their place of business. The pseudo-salespeople, who are so encouraged by their past success that they are planning another benefit for the fund, are Virginia Grace Martin, Irene and Margaret Gelbman, Dorothy, Anne and Mary Louise Wymard, Virginia Miller, Sarah Segall, Evelyn Rosenberg and Rita O'Brien.

The Milk and Ice Association, beneficiary of the fund, is at present operating on borrowed money.

BAKER'S MASTERPIECE

FOR ELEPHANT'S BIRTHDAY

This cake has been baked to celebrate the one hundred and twelfth birthday, June 16, of Tillie, elephant performing at Kennywood Park, who will hold a knife in her trunk and cut it for children at the park Saturday. The cake is 3½ feet in dimeter, 14 inches high, weights 350 pounds and contains 50 pounds of butter, 50 dozen eggs, 60 pounds of flour and 50 pounds of granulated sugar. It required 120 pounds of pulverized sugar for decorations and a man five days to bake and decorate it. The cake is on display at Rhea's bakery, 441 Market street, until Friday evening, when it will be taken to Kennywood Park.

PRINTERS RUSH WORK ON FREE TICKETS

You boys and girls who read the Sun-Tele, have you told your parents and uncles and aunts and cousins and the other grownup folks about the big free Jubilee, Tuesday, July 3, at the National Amusement Company's park above Aspinwall?

Here's just a hint: It would be well for you to tell them that you would like to go, for no doubt they will help you with your plans. Tell everybody at home all about what you have read from day to day in The Sun-Tele about the Jubilee.

The printers are now at work turning out the big tickets with their 14 coupons—each coupon good for admission to park attractions, and everybody at the Jubilee will have a coupon. One coupon, you remember, will be good for these French vanilla bars, "The Cream of the Valley."

A visit to the new National Amusement Company's park will be a treat in itself and before summer is over it will be known as one of the greatest amusement centers about Pittsburgh. It is on the Freeport road just above Aspinwall, on a splendid automobile road and on the Allegheny Valley trolley line. Those who go on the railroad take trains on the Pennsylvania Railroad at the Pennsylvania Station.

Tomorrow's Sun-Tele will tell you more about it. Watch for the story about Jubilee Day.

How To Be Beautiful

by Maria Jeritza

Straight From the Shoulder

HERE are a few facts straight from the shoulder:

You cannot look well in the most enchanting and becoming costume unless you carry your neck, back and shoulders straight. When the spine and neck are straight, the shoulders naturally fall into correct, easy position. If your health is vigorous, it should be easy for you to keep your shoulders erect.

Maria Jeritza.

Is your right shoulder lower than your left? This is often the case and may be caused by carrying all heavy weights with the right arm, by standing as a rule with the weight on the right leg or by playing games, such as tennis, which bring the right arm and shoulder into play more than the left. You can correct the defect by removing the cause.

Swimming or rowing every day, and the daily practice of shoulder and arm exercises will help straighten your neck and shoulders. Regular exercise will reduce superfluous flesh and also add needed pounds to scrawny arms and shoulders.

Here is an exercise which should flatten and strengthen your shoulder-blades and straighten your shoulders, provided you make it a part of your daily setting-up drill:

Stand with your feet about six inches apart, pointing forward, your weight over the balls of your feet, your back and neck erect, your wrists resting on top of your head, your hands straight up, palm to palm. Now throw your hands and fore-arms back as far as you can, keeping your arms on a line with your shoulders, your elbows bent, your fore-arms up and parallel. Return to first position.

Repeat this exercise accurately 10 times, as energetically as though you were doing it with a gun pointed at you in response to the order "hands up!" If you practice it persistently, soon the muscles between your shoulder-blades, which hold back your shoulders, will grow strong and supple.

Smooth, satiny skin texture is just as important to lovely shoulders as are symmetry and graceful carriage. Dust and soot are likely to lodge on your neck and slip down to your shoulders and arms. Then your frock may rub them into your skin pores.

You look far lovelier and you feel more comfortable when you know your neck, shoulders and arms are at their very best.

Gentlemen:

For a period of seven years we have been consistent users of your regular American-Strate Motor Gas and also your Amoco-Gas. The quality of your products is such that we have yet to make our first complaint.

We have no hesitancy in recommending your products to Buick Owners. We further wish to state that Amoco-Gas is economical and efficient for satisfactory operation of Buick automobiles.

Yours truly,
PENN BUICK COMPANY, INC.
W. A. Richwine
Sec-Treas.

SEVEN years is a long time in the motor world--for seven years have seen many a change take place. But for seven years the Penn Buick Company, Inc., has used and recommended AMOCO-GAS--and in all that time they have never had cause for complaint. And that's not an unusual record! For hundreds of Buick users--and drivers of all other makes of cars--can tell the same story! The motor fuel without a fault--now and always--AMOCO-GAS!

Joseph Schildkraut Gets Job As Ravenal in "Show Boat" and Five-Year Universal Contract

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 13.

JOSEPH SCHILDKRAUT, heart-smasher of a thousand films, may well say with Little Jack Horner of the nursery rhyme, "Oh, what a bright boy am I." For Joseph passed five stiff screen tests on the Universal lot for the romantic role of Gaylord Ravenal in "Show Boat." And—P. S.—He got the job, and a five-year starring contract to boot.

Just what a triumph this is for the talented actor may be better understood when it is known that every player even approximating the "Ravenal" type has been playing his cards for the part with every ounce of skill in his possession. For "Show Boat" is the topic of much conversation in Hollywood, and is scheduled to be one of the greatest productions of the year.

To peer a bit further into the future, Schildkraut's second starring vehicle under that long-term contract may be an adaptation of a story titled "A Gentleman of the Gutter."

Now all that remains is decision as to which of several will play Magnolia. I still stick to my Mary Philbin prophesy. But I hear that Sally Eilers is very much "among those present." Incidentally, sets for "Show Boat" have been erected for some time on a location in Sacramento.

"Uncle Carl" Laemmle has faith in Director Wesley Ruggles as a discoverer of talent. And why not—when Ruggles did the Christopher Columbus act in finding Gilbert Roland. "The Plastic Age" was the picture. Anyhow, "Uncle Carl" has suggested that the director develop another star in the strong role of "Salvage," and a youngster named Goodwin has been selected for the great opportunity. Ruggles will work with him for a few days. If he makes the grade—Okeh. If not, Johnny Harron gets the part.

That two-faced feller, Lon Chaney, whose features launched a thousand quips along the nation's boulevards, is Hollywood-bound after a vacation spent on Broadway. Metro's meticulous press department insists that Lon visited Texas Guinan's disguised as a sandwich and some one bit him. Just as though anyone bites sandwiches at Guinan's! It must be an alibi. Just the same, had Lon gone madeup as a bottle, he might have had his neck cracked.

Another of Hollywood's adopted sons en route to the old homestead is Ernest Torrence, who has been spending some time (get that) in Scotland. Presumably, Ernest brings a fresh supply of Scotch stories—which may, or may not be something for which to be thankful.

Georgie Jessel is doubling in brass, or soon will be. For beside working in "George Washington Cohen," Broadway's boy friend will pinch hit as master of ceremonies at a local vaudeville and picture house during the absence of the regular M. C., Benny Rubin. Benny, by the way, a great card with the home folk, has been mentioned—just mentioned—for a film role in "Nize Baby." Corliss Palmer, who changed her name to something-or-other and then changed it back again, has the leading role opposite Jessel.

Robert Z. Leonard, who used to be "Mr. Mae Murray," has just celebrated the second anniversary of his wedding to Gertrude Olmstead. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard threw a thoroughly enjoyable party to celebrate the event. Second anniversaries call for wooden presents, and doubtless Bob and Gertrude received enough to keep the kitchen range going for many a California rainy day.

FRATERNAL OUTINGS ON HOMER SMITH

Members of the Fraternal Patriotic Americans, Star of the West Council No. 465, will be on board the steamer Homer Smith tonight. Tomorrow night Carnegie Review No. 134, Women's Benefit Association, will hold its annual outing. The Homer Smith leaves nightly at 8:30 o'clock from the foot of Smithfield street.

ROLE CREATOR WITH SHARP

John Marsden, who originated the leading male role in "White Collars," will appear in the same role with the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week. Marsden was with the company that played "White Collars" in the Pitt before the New York opening, and he remained with it through its long metropolitan run. He recently closed an engagement in "Behold the Bridegroom," in which he was co-featured with Judith Anderson.

"The Gold Diggers," a comedy by Avery Hoopwood, will be given in the Nixon by the Nixon Players next week. Harry Bannister, Katherine Wilson, Josephine Whittell, Louise Quinn, Kathryn Card, Fred Sullivan, Clifford Dunstan, Howard Freeman, C. Russell Sage, Joseph Thayer, Frank Reyman and others will have parts.

The six acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville in the Davis next week, will be supplemented by the showing of "Tillie's Punctured Romance," a new version of a famous film comedy, with W. C. Fields, Chester Conklin and Louise Fazenda.

RIDGWAY (PA.) ANGLER LANDS 14-INCH TROUT

RIDGWAY, Pa., June 13.—A 14-inch trout, the largest caught in Elk county this season, is on exhibition at a shop here. The fish was caught by Bruno Pelleschi, in Spring Run.

The Miracle of Chemistry Blood Cell Serum

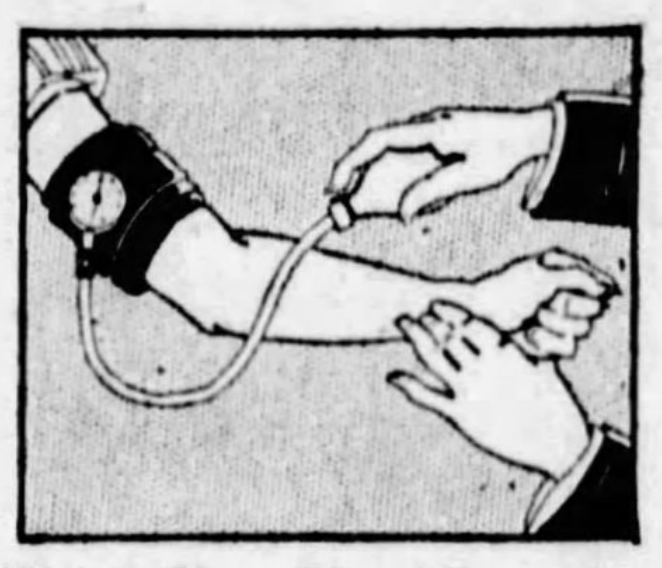
The time has come when doctors will be estimated by the suffering they prevent.

Misguided youth, tell me if you want to know the truth. Unfortunate father, what good will you be to your son with a weak blood stream and a poor blood count? It is the liquid person. How can you have vitality, strength and energy if the blood cells are not normal?

Each days brings its multiplied examples sufficient to show the preliminary changes in the blood stream. Man is sheltered from infection.

To purify the Blood, to make it nearly perfect as possible and bring it where it is most needed, must be the basis of all treatment which is successful. The healing force of nature resides only in the blood. It is the very fluid of life and in it is mirrored all disease. No form of medication can have a curative effect until it reaches the blood stream.

Why drug the stomach when your Blood Cells control High Blood Pressure and most all Chronic Diseases?



Watch Your Blood Pressure

The lessons taught by the ancient medical observations are in no ways compromised; before every illness, every sikness, there is a disturbance in the blood stream, for the Blood Cell is the life. The first step before coming ill may bring about a change of the forces which liberate certain substances elaborated by the living organism. It may modify itself, augment or diminish itself while preserving the normal proportion, or it may bring about a disproportion of the constituent elements. A serum for every chronic ailment.

FRICK BIRTHSITE GIVEN AS MEMORIAL

Under the patronage of Miss Helen Clay Frick, the birthplace of Henry C. Frick, in the historic Overholt mansion at West Overton, Fayette county, will be dedicated as the Westmoreland-Fayette branch of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania Saturday afternoon. The mansion and the little springhouse loft where the coke king and steel manufacturer was born December 19, 1949, have been restored to their original appearance by Miss Frick, who will maintain it as a historical museum in memory of her father.

William H. Stevenson, president of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, will preside, and addresses will be made by Col. Henry W. Shoemaker, chairman of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission; Frederick A. Godcharles, Pennsylvania state librarian; Judge E. H. Reppert, of the Fayette county courts and chairman of the executive committee in charge of the historic house, and J. M. Boucher, Westmoreland county historian. The dedication exercises will take place at 3 p. m., daylight saving time.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

June Brides Thankful for Beautiful Settings Provided by Summer's Belated Arrival

HOME FROM SCHOOL -:- DINNER DANCE HEAD -:- MARRIES TODAY

BESSIE A. HUBACH

Miss Bessie A. Hubach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hubach, Ben Avon, is home from National Park Seminary. Miss Hubach took honors at the annual riding meet at the school.

MRS. G. C. KING

Mrs. Gordon Coltart King is chairman of the special prize committee for the circus dinner dance to be held Friday night at The Willows by the dispensary board, Skin and Cancer Foundation.

MARGARET A. BERES

Miss Margaret A. Beres is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Beres, whose home is in Duquesne. Miss Beres' marriage to Victor G. Seibert, McKeesport, is solemnized today.

ONCE it was the dream of every girl to have her wedding in an old-fashioned garden, redolent with blooming roses. Even though these traditional flowers may not be in bloom for the June brides of 1928, still they will have a lovely setting for their nuptials. Never has there been a June more beautifully veiled in the bright-hued green of spring. The brides have something for which to thank this tardy season.

Many of the weddings this month will be rather simple, but none the less impressive. Few of the brides-to-be have named large bridal parties.

Typical of the simplicity of weddings this season will be that of Martha Green, daughter of the Jonathan Sherman Greens, of St. James place. Some time ago she named Saturday, June 30, as the day for her marriage to Samuel Clarke Reed, Jr., son of the Samuel Clarke Reeds, of Murrayhill avenue.

The ceremony will be performed in the Calvary Episcopal Church, which has been the scene of many a notable ceremony. And the hour set for the wedding is 5 o'clock.

Martha has decided to have only one attendant, a maid of honor. And the maid of honor will be her sister-in-law-to-be, Clarissa Reed. James B. Reed will be his brother's best man. All of the ushers but one, George Clark, of Minneapolis, are Pittsburgh men. They are James Wayne Brown, Charles Marshall Brown, John Milligan Fisher, and James Anthony Kuhn.

Another young Pittsburgh girl has decided upon a June wedding. Margaret Constans, daughter of the Leslie H. Constans, of South St. Clair street, has named June 23 for her wedding day. Her engagement to John Armstrong Robinson, of Chicago, son of the John Alexander Robinsons, of Rocky Ford, Col., was announced, you'll recall, in March.

Margaret will have a home wedding, and the ceremony will take place at 6 o'clock that evening.

She has asked Mrs. Merrill Sondles, of Cambridge, Ohio, to be her matron of honor. And the bridesmaids wil be Elinor Horr, of Newark, New Jersey; Mary De Motte and Mary Louise Succop, of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Robinson will have as his best man Charles E. Dinkey, and W. H. Locke Anderson, of Cannonsburg, and Henry Cooper, of Pittsburgh, and Merrill Sondles, of Cambridge, Ohio, will be the ushers.

Mary De Motte, one of the bridesmaids, will give the rehearsal dinner on Friday, June 22, in her home on Dalzell place. The wedding breakfast on the day of the ceremony will be given by Mrs. Robert G. Gillespie in her Fifth avenue home.

Mrs. Jerry Henne will entertain this Saturday at a bridge luncheon in her home. Later on Harriet Jones, of Aiken avenue, will be hostess at a bridge luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Williams, of Wightman street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen Williams, and Harold W. Fulton, which was solemnized Monday. Mr. and Mrs. C. Raymond Russell were the attendants. A breakfast for the families followed the ceremony and later Mr. and Mrs. Fulton left for a motor trip. They will be at home in Wightman street after July 1.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pandolfo, of Perrysville avenue, will sail Saturday on the Homeric to spend four months abroad, visiting the principal cities of France and Italy.

MT. LEBANON WOMEN PLEDGE HOME FUND

At their annual luncheon in the St. Clair Country Club yesterday, members of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club pledged $1,140 towards the community house which they propose to erect for a club house. Part of this amount came in pledges of one cent and five cents per day, in response to a cleverly-projected talk from Mrs. I. G. Amsler, the treasurer. About 225 women attended the luncheon, which was a most attractive affair, made so by a great profusion of flowers from the gardens of members. The club choral under Lucille Miller Werner's direction and with violin accompaniment by Mrs. R. H. Allen and Mrs. C. S. Simonsen, and piano by Mrs. J. P. Boore, opened the program. There was a group of songs by Mrs. J. E. Burke and another by Miss Winifred Beach, accompanied by Mrs. Burke. Mrs. J. S. Huey, the retiring president, stressed the value of unity, which she said is the club's greatest asset, and following her talk a song written to her was sung with a great deal of vim and vigor and she was presented with a Colonial candlestick. Mrs. H. L. Beach, Mrs. Huey's successor, announced her committees and assembly singing brought the afternoon to a close.

An exhibition of articles made from old or second-hand material was a unique feature of this afternoon's meeting of the Bryn Mawr Farms Woman's Club, for which Mrs. E. I. Staples, of Wilkins road, was hostess. Prizes were awarded for the four best articles on display. Assisting Mrs. Staples were Mrs. Arthur Bosworth, Mrs. John Collins, Mrs. L. H. Defibaugh, Mrs. W. Hasselman and Mrs. A. J. Schade.

A short program of speeches marked the annual alumnae rally day which closed the year for Thurston Preparatory School yesterday. The alumnae gathered for luncheon in the gymnasium and the talks were as follows: "The Reference Librarian," by Miss Alice T. McGirr; "Here and There, Now and Then," Miss Margaret Scully; "In the Montessori Class," Miss Margaret Schreuder; "Social Service," Miss Marjorie Wallace; "In Business," Mrs. Edith Johnson Dilworth; "The College Alumnae Secretary," Miss Edith McKelvy; "The College Freshman," Miss Maxine Yorty; "The Presidential Candidate," Mrs. Lucy Kennedy Miller.

Mrs. J. H. Clark and Mrs. B. J. Hannigan will be hostesses at a benefit card party to be held at the Council House of the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women, Saturday afternoon, June 23. Their tenth annual luncheon will be held at the Edgewood Country Club tomorrow by members of the Children's Charity of the Presbyterian Hospital. One o'clock is the hour.

What the Romans do in Rome.. be they smart or otherwise— is no concern of ours...

WE ARE interested first, last and always in what the smart woman of Pittsburgh does and what she wears while she does it!—Interested enough, we should say, to present for her acclamation the smartest and the most chic of the intime fashions.

Permanent Waving
By the Original
MAURICE BENACH

Maurice Benach . . . famed in Paris and New York for his artistry in every branch of beauty culture . . . announces with great pleasure two new processes of permanent waving, acclaimed by society leaders here and abroad for its surpassing excellence.

The Naturelle Wave
and
The Realistic Wave

Waves such as these bring out hitherto unguessed beauties of your hair. These are waves that frame your face becomingly—and individually! The Realistic and Naturelle are both perfect from a scientific standpoint, and when administered by the famous Maurice Benach they become artistic achievements. Neither type of wave requires a finger wave or additional "setting."

We Invite You to See These Waves on Living Models in Our Beauty Shop, at All Times.

Look at Your Hair
Every One Else Does!

Is your hair beautiful? Perfectly waved? When people look at your hair, do you feel confident of its faultless perfection? If you don't, you should! And we can do it for you!

May we recommend a French permanent wave? A soft, glossy exquisitely beautiful wave, with the marcel effect so much in demand among up-to-the-minute women, women who know. More natural-looking than naturally wavy hair! And as though that isn't enough, the glorious French waves require no combs, no finger waving, no resetting. An investment in beauty. At the special price of $6.00 for bobbed hair, and $8.00 for long hair, shampoo inclusive.

All work done under the personal supervision of MR. JACK BENACH. No appointments necessary. No waiting. 20 expert operators. Evening appointments Monday and Thursday.

THE CONSTANT FLAME

A Fair Maid Meets Love In Strange Surroundings by WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Cole Calls Her His 'Golden' Girl and Makes Love To Her

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Emily Day and Kitten are daughters of a worker in the Rossiter factory. Both are prevented by poverty from mingling with the socially elect of the little town. Emily has made an ideal of Kent Rossiter. Mary Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," is devoted to her. Mrs. Frances Haiden, a wealthy interior decorator, takes an interest in her and tells her the only aristocracy is that of work. She gets a job with Mrs. Haiden. Her father dies and Rossiter offers help which her mother declines. Avis Rossiter's father threatens to disinherit her unless she changes her ways. Avis proposes to Marty and is refused. Kitten meets a wealthy boy and wants a new dress. Emily decides it is better to stay in her own class, so turns down Kingdom Coles.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

EMILY felt herself wondering about him a little. Wondering what it might be like to think of him as someone besides just a friend of Frances. Pleasant, perhaps, to go on receiving this homage. Other girls had that and now she knew she had missed it.

When his hand folded around hers she glanced down but did not move. It was when he spoke, his voice a bit husky, that she turned her head.

"Why did you do that, Emily? Don't you like me?"

"Of course I do."

He moved abrutply. But she sat there with the soft light on her fairness, a silver creature, infinitely gracious. He tried to look away, but his gaze came back.

"If I'm not satisfied with that, dear? Not just your liking? Have you ever been in love, Emily-of-my heart?"

"Oh, love!" She smiled, thinking backward.

"You don't believe in love? You don't think it the greatest thing in the world? After waiting long, being deceived many times, you think a man can't find it at last?"

Kingdon Coles rather liked to dramatize himself. Not insincerely; he truly saw himself as the hero of situations and this was his scene. It rolled along smoothly:

"The first moment I saw you Emily—heard you speak—beautiful, so different from every other woman in the world! Can't expect you to care, I suppose.

"Some day, darling? There'll never be anyone else for me. Always I'll be loving you."

He crushed her fingers to his lips and she was stirred. Love? Well, the world didn't whirl in a rosy light as it had seemed to that night at Highcliffe. Nothing to strike down her heart in this, open it to hold the earth and a star.

She thought that, vaguely, and wondered why she could only think—not feel.

"So new to me, this is," flashed through her mind. "And I do like him. A lot. If I could care more—forget Kent—"

"There's no one else, Golden Girl?"

She remembered Marty then and what she had promised her mother. It was like a cloud going over the sky. But she tore her thought from it. Fate to step in and rescue her—perhaps Kingdon Coles was fate. Muz would like him. Who wouldn't?

He took her silence for denial: a time came when she looked back on the spell of that moment and was glad she had said nothing.

He put his head down and would have kissed her but Mrs. Haiden rose.

Emily turned back at the door and looked out over the river. A freighter was going up stream, lights about the pilot house like gleaming jewels. Another swept downward; their whistles spoke as they passed.

She glanced at her yellow flounces and the night wind seemed cold suddenly.

CHAPTER XX.

THREE little girls were rushing down Main street again; fleeing before long rays of light thrust far out by the sinking sun.

Three heads nodding, the black, the brown, the red; three pairs of eyes darting this way and that, coming together,' glancing away. Three pairs of scarlet lips—too scarlet for young faces—smiling at anything or nothing.

People turning. Some saying, "There's the Brent kid. They're telling how her sister—"

Some asking, "Who's the little devil in the middle; one with the bright hair?"

One who said nothing but stared. Not a tall man, but one women usually saw. A dark face; depths in the eyes. Depths with an undertow. A half smile, inviting as an upraised hand, curiously mocking.

Trim, dancer's figure in gray flannels; bronzed skin. A person some way akin to the huge, sleek, wolf-dog pacing beside it.

Flossie wriggled and pinched Kitten's arm. "Know who it is? Nicky Wickert. Gosh! Say, look't the hound. Say—"

Kitten snapped, "Be yourself, can't you? What do I care who he is? Hope he remembers us next time."

But she knew he hadn't seen the others. And when she tried to stare back at him her lashes drooped and her face stained brightly.

Just passing there on the street his personality was like a flame searing through her; she quickened her step—hurried the other two on—but even when they stopped before the ice cream shop she could feel the tingle.

Now she glanced backward; he was standing where she had seen him first, the dog at his side, looking after her.

"Well, they say he's a great ole sheik. All the swells crazy over him. What you sore about Kitten? Sure gave you a tumble, he did."

"Will you shut up? Talk like a rubber dumbbell. I'm not going in here with you."

"Ah, we didn't mean anything Kitten. C'mon now—"

"No. Listen, Dottie: sneak home the back way so Em won't see you. If she snoops over stay out of sight. I'm with you, see? How about it?"

"Oh, Kit, tell us! Is it a date? Listen—"

"Maybe I will sometime. You'll do that, Dottie? Em's that grouchy."

Dottie said she would, her eyes very round. She turned into the ice cream ship reluctantly, and Kitten went on down Main street alone.

She turned at the River Road and began to walk slowly. At Brookside the big car of another adventure drew up and Ted Lanier helped her in.

"Thought you'd come, Redhead. How's my new girl?"

"You needn't be so sure of yourself and I'm not your girl."

"All right, Spit-fire. Will be, though. Where'll we go?"

"You're driving."

"Careless as that, eh? Right-o, and don't forget you asked for it."

She stretched herself out on the deeply-cushioned seat and took off her hat. The car moved rapidly and smoothly and the feel of luxury wrapped her like velvet.

Living, this was; not the stupid, cat-on-the-hearth nonsense Emily always was dinging at her.

What did it get Emily? Working her head off, getting all her kick out of scrimping to buy a shop. As if a girl wanted to slave all her life! Em never did know how to play; when she found it out some day she'd be wrinkled and gray and noboy'd give her a tumble. Some people were so darn goody-good it hurt to look at them.

"What you thinking about, Firefly?"

"Not you."

"Sweet tempered little thing, aren't you? Need taming."

"Suppose you're the one can do it, too."

"Maybe, the boy drawled with a laugh. He turned the car up South Mountain and headed for the country, the way they had taken the other day.

He was a good looking chap, iKtten decided and not stuck upsie even for the Norrises. A slender young fellow, not more than 21, with a pleasant, frank face and eyes that looked straight at her when he spoke.

His hands weren't like a rich boy's either; they were hardened and stained. But that, she thought, might come from working around the car, since he probably drove a lot. She asked him if he were visiting in Lyall.

PITTSBURGH DANCERS QUIT CHICAGO DERBY

International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Couple "Number 100," James Pedrow and Lois Henry, of Pittsburgh, Pa., dropped out of the endurance dance contest early today after being on the floor 245 hours and 15 minutes.

Pedrow and Miss Henry will divide third prize of $750.

Robert Johns, ex-marine, and his partner, Miss Serna Bergandi, were declared winners after the second last couple collapsed on the floor.

The contest came to a dramatic end at 7:45 a. m. after continuing day and night for 260 hours—12 days. Johns and Miss Bergandi will divide the grand prize of $3,500.

The runnersup, winners of the $1,000 second prize, were Walter Grafsky, Pyle bunioneer of St. Paul, Minn., and Marcella Meadows of Chicago.

Miss Meadows collapsed in a heap just 30 seconds before the last rest period.

Three couples were on their feet at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the dance marathon at Nu-Ken Garden, New Kensington. They had been dancing 230 hours. John Costello and Helen Sheks gave up the ghost at 1:30 this morning.

Four couples had survived 136 hours at 2 o'clock at the Academy Theater, Nellie Spaide and Felix Angelo quitting at 7 o'clock, with 132 hours. Betty Russell and Martin Reel quit at 8 o'clock.

The Negro contest at Motor Square Garden saw three couples drop out during the night, 28 remaining as the fifty-eighth hour ticked off.

The Duquesne Garden foot derby, opening tonight at 9 o'clock, will offer vaudeville acts during the rest periods to revive the flagging interest of marathon spectators.

ROGERS REPORTS 'BOOMS TO LET'

By WILL ROGERS.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 13.—If you are interested in vice presidents and such things you will perhaps be interested in this convention.

Nobody in the history of conventions ever saw a convention start out and end so quick.

A man that couldn't even get into the United States Senate arrived here the evening before the convention opened and announced who he was for and they started paying off.

Mellon came here with the Pennsylvania delegation, and there his authority ended.

Mellon had the money, but Vare had the votes.

The Allies "Stopped Hoover"—they stopped him from being Secretary of Commerce.

If you haven't had a room to stay in while here, you can get one now. There is six candidate headquarters that are to be sublet.

The convention opened with a prayer. If the Lord can see His way clear to bless the Republican Party the way it's been carrying on, then the rest of us ought to get it even without asking for it.

Then they brought in Simeon D. Fess (be careful how you spell that or you will confuse the name with evolution). He delivered what is called the keynote speech.

A keynote speech is press notices of the Republican Party written by its own members.

Here are just a few of the things that I bet you didn't know the Republicans were responsible for:

Radio, telephones, baths, automobiles, savings accounts, enforcement, workmen living in houses and a living wage for Senators.

The Democrats had brought on war, pestilence, debts, disease, boll weevil, gold teeth, need of farm relief, suspenders, floods famines and Tom Heflin.

He told of so much money that we had saved that I think if he had talked another hour he would have paid us a dividend.

When he got onto Coolidge, I thought shure he was referring to Deity till they told me: "No, it was Coolidge."

The way he rated 'em was Coolidge, the Lord and then Lincoln.

It was an impromptu address that he had been working on for only six months.

He made no attempt at oratory, he just shouted.

He dramatized figures. When he told how many million we had saved, his voice raised. But when our savings had reached the billions, why, his voice reached a crescendo.

All expenditure was spoken in an undertone.

They adjourned till today for the sake of the hotels. They could have finished this convention in 10 minutes yesterday.

Men who yesterday wouldn't allow their names to be associated with the vice presidency are today announcing they would consider being drafted.

Jim Watson is even wondering if he can get his Senate seat back again. Goff is gone back to the nineteenth hole. Lowden has left for his Pullman. Hoover is drawing plans for one of the biggest engineering feats he ever embarked on. So it's all over but Hoover and Curtis.

WOMAN SUES STORE FOR INJURIES IN FALL

A leaky bottle, dripping polishing oil on the floor of the J. G. McCrory Company store at 6019 Penn avenue, was made the basis of a $10,000 damage suit filed against the company by Sarah M. Trail, 6025 Broad street, in Common Pleas Court. The woman says she was shopping in the store September 2, 1927, and stepped in the pool of oil and fell. Her knee was injured and her back and spine wrenched, causing permanent injuries, she claims.

3 DROWNED IN FALL OF SPAN

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., June 13.—(AP.)—Rescue crews aided by a diver last night had failed to locate the bodies of two of the three men drowned yesterday when five sections of a bridge under construction across the Ohio River between St. Marys, W. Va., and lower Newport, O., collapsed.

The missing men, Ralph Andrews, of Radford, Va., and Raymond Perdue, of Ceredo, W. Va., together with Harry Martin, of New Martinsville, W. Va., were hurled into the river when the temporary trestle erected to support sections of the bridge weakened by high water due to recent rains, collapsed, permitting the five sections of the bridge to fall. Martin's body was recovered shortly after the accident from beneath twisted girders.

THAW NOW REPORTED IN VIENNA

LONDON, June 13—(AP.)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Vienna says that Harry K. Thaw arrived there last night.

Barred from England because he had committed—in killing Stanford White—an offense extraditable by British law, Thaw had gone to Paris from Southampton, where he had been kept aboard the Aquitania.

Slipping out of Paris almost at once his destination was believed to be Vienna, although Thaw had left no forwarding address.

$75,000 DONATED TO GETTYSBURG COLLEGE

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 13.—A gift of approximately $75,000 from an unannounced donor for Gettysburg College was reported by Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president, to the trustees at the annual commencement meeting yesterday. The contribution represents $25,000 in cash and sufficient funds for the complete remodeling of the interior of Glatfelter Hall. Commencement exercises were to be held today, with Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette College, as the principal speaker.

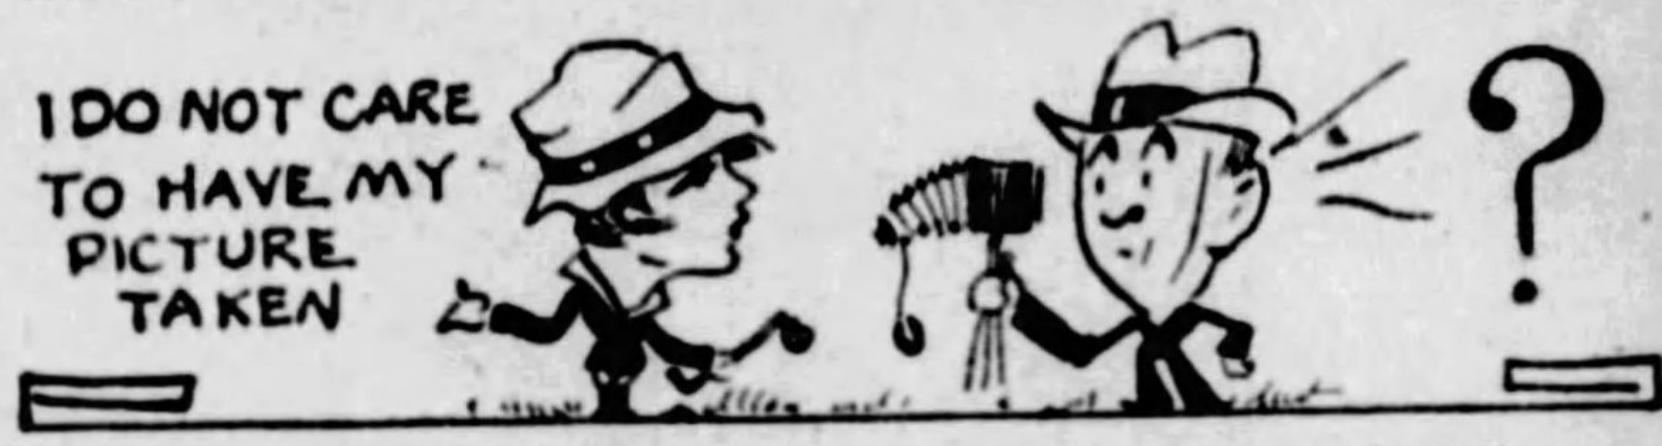
SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

BY a coincidence Pittsburgh recently celebrated two classes of horses. While the enthusiasts of blueblooded stock were displaying their horseflesh at the horse show in Sewickley the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society was honoring the workhorse in a parade which amused and entertained thousands who watched.

Whether he is on the street pulling a wagon, in the paddock at a race track, or at a horse show Dobbin has a faculty of appealing to his human friends.

THE horse show held here recently, by the way, is one institution which cares little for the usual run-of-mine publicity. The exhibitors are so interested in their hobby that they don't crave public notice. As an example, a photographer was shooed away several times from getting pictures at the Sewickley show. Anytime you see anyone shooing away a photographer that is news.



I DO NOT CARE TO HAVE MY PICTURE TAKEN

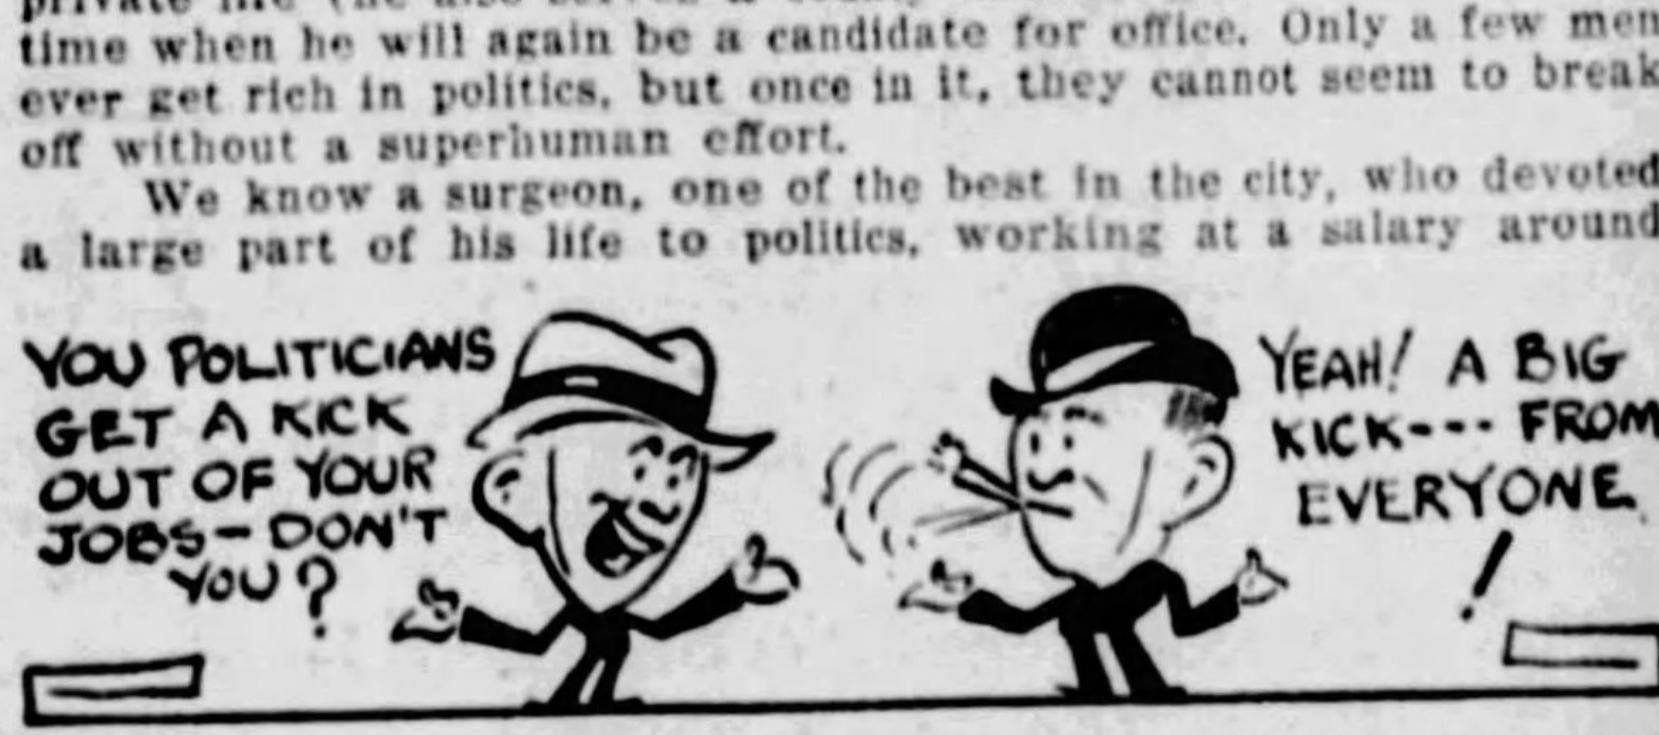
The good care taken of the workhorse, as shown by the parade, brings back a spirited picture: A nasty driver beating a tired horse interrupted by a woman with an umbrella who laid it on the driver's back. It was in the old suffraget days.

ENCOUNTERED James Houlahen, former Democratic county commissioner, who is now selling real estate and insurance, resuming a business he had before he entered the county commissioner's office eight years ago. Politics must be like smoking or drinking—hard to break off. For Mr. Houlahen, while contented in quasi-private life (he also serves a county board) looks forward to the time when he will again be a candidate for office. Only a few men ever get rich in politics, but once in it, they cannot seem to break off without a superhuman effort.

We know a surgeon, one of the best in the city, who devoted a large part of his life to politics, working at a salary around $6,000 a year. As a surgeon he would have made 10 times that amount in a year. He explained it once: "I contracted the germ and could find no serum to kill it. However, the voters in one campaign gave me quite a hint in the form of a defeat and then I quit." Yet we'd hate to tempt this same lovable man with a nomination for something or other now, although he laughs away any idea that he would ever re-enter the political ring. The fact about this man and many others is that they get a bigger kick out of accomplishing something in public life, beyond the money consideration, than other men get out of piling up a bale of the well-known green goods. Possibly, they lack the commercial instinct—which is not always a sin.



YOU POLITICIANS GET A KICK OUT OF YOUR JOBS—DON'T YOU?
YEAH! A BIG KICK--- FROM EVERYONE!

When a small boy, during the time when we carried gold-colored lanterns in honor of McKinley and some of the neighbors picked quarrels because they liked silver-topped lanterns in honor of William Jennings Bryan, a lot of us thought that all Democrats were just a little unclean. In Allegheny county this was a natural conclusion. When we grew up we were amazed to discover that in the South the good people down there thought that the jails were built only for Republicans. To show how broad-minded we have become with the passing of years, we find ourselves wishing success to James Houlahen, a black Democrat, as we used to say, in his new venture.

WHETHER public officials are over-paid or under-paid it is not in our province to say, but that men subject to elective whims net just about half of their salaries to devote to their homes and personal use is something that everyone knows. The term "politician" connotes a certain opprobrium, yet it seems here that on the whole they are the most tolerant and broad-minded of men.

We always get a kick out of a politician calling us by our first name. And this in spite of the fact that we know that he knows that we get a kick out of it.

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

MYSTERY!! THRILLS! ADVENTURE! LOVE!!!

by FRANK L. PACKARD

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of Tom Kingsley is picked up by Capt. "Scarface" Sweeney and his mate, Marlow, off Singapore. Tom's brother, Robert, also an old "sea dog," is notified of the death and receives articles found on the corpse. Among these are two small but handsomely carved Ivory Idols. Robert Kingsley has good reason to believe that Hsi Yan, an ancient enemy, has returned after 30 years to seek vengeance. The Idols are stolen and Young Bob starts out to recover them. Hidden in the hold of the ship he overhears five Chinamen plotting. The East Indian "Holy Man" is stabbed to death by one of the Chinamen. The Holy Man turns out to be Verna's brother, and she accuses Bob of the murder. The boat sinks and after many hardships Bob rescues Verna with the help of a Malay whom he had saved. Bob tells Verna his story of the idols. The natives come to the island bringing a white man with them. Bob is made a prisoner and threatened with prison.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

THEY had brought meals to him twice—in the morning and at noon. He had seen no one save the Malay who had unceremoniously served the food by thrusting it through the door and banging the door shut again. No one would come near him, and, do what he would, his appeals for a hearing had gone unheeded.

At moments throughout the day he had shouted, when panic seized him, for Richardson—shouted until he could shout no more—shouted until in the minds of the natives, he knew, they thought him a madman caged. At other moments, he had beaten at the door, rained blows upon it with his manacles, swinging his fettered hands above his head—not that he might break it down, but that through persistence his summons might be answered. And outside he had heard the natives gather and laugh and chatter; and when their source of amusement was at an end, because through lack of strength he could beat no more upon the door, they went away still laughing and chattering, childishly pleased with the entertainment that had been provided because the soul of the man was in extremity, he cursed Richardson with naked oaths and in abandon.

And now it was near evening. There was no windows in the shed to mark the approach of dusk, but there were cracks and interstices in the rough ill-jointed wall boards, and the little light that previously had seeped in therefrom was fading rapidly. He lay stretched out at full length on the ground, his head pillowed on his forearm. It was one of his calmer physical moments—and perhaps the more bitter therefor!—for his mind refused him an instant's respite. It went on and on, always in a cycle that began with Richardson's refusal to listen to him on the beach, that embraced thereafter the dire possibilities that promised to result from that refusal, and that always ended in making the situation appear but more starkly logical than before in its deadly peril—not for himself—for her. But, though it brought no reassurance and even tormented him, the cycle never ceased. There was always the desperate hope that there might be some way out, that he had seen only the black, ugly, premonitory side of the picture, that he had missed the lighter and redeeming shades, that his perspective was distorted and at fault.

He lay very still now—like a man so deeply immersed in thought that he was lost to all outside and extraneous influences. The cycle always began that way—unemotionally, with abnormally calm concentration. His subconsciousness recognized this phase, and he was not deluded thereby into the belief that at the end he would do anything other than beat futilely at the shed door again in a state of almost maniacal desperation—but his mind drove him on.

A cycle was beginning now:

After Richardson's refusal to listen to him, he had come in from the beach peacefully enough with his Malay guards. It would have been not only useless, but the part of a fool to have done anything else. He had even talked to them, and after a while, though they kept close watch on him, they had allowed him a certain latitude, and, at his request, had eventually permitted one of the rescued Malays from the Monotah to walk beside him for a little way.

From his guards he had discovered that Aoru was a two hours' journey away from the scene of the wreck, and that it was, as he had suspected, little more than a "one-man beach." There were several plantations that used it as a shipping point, but they were all widely scattered inland—Richardson's house was the only one on the shore, and his nearest neighbor was some two or three miles away. Also, they had told him, when he asked them, that there were no white women in Aoru.

Bob Kingsley moved nervously now. His hands, outstretched beyond his head, began to work one over the other.

The road had led through many open spaces so that when broad daylight had come he had been able to get at least a distant view of every one who marched or shuffled along in the strange and rather bedraggled procession of which he formed a part—and it was certain that no one of the five Chinamen was there. And when at last the opportunity had come to speak to one of the rescued Malays who had spent the night on the beach, he had asked the man what had become of the Chinamen—where they had last been seen, and when?

"Tuan," the man had answered, "we were all together on the shore. Those who came in Tuan Carter's boat, of whom I was one, made it known to the others that the serang had gone to find the way to a place whose name I do not yet know, where white men lived and there were houses and food. But because the serang knew not of it might be near or far, or even if he might find it at all in the night, he took only one man with him, and the rest, as I have told the Tuan, and as the Tuan knows, remained on the shore to await the serang's return. It was soon after we had made known these things to those who had come in the second boat that the men of whom the Tuan speaks went a little way off from us and sat upon the shore and talked together. When I looked again, Tuan, they were gone. It was very dark. I do not know where they went, but they were seen no more. We thought they, too, had gone to make search for the place of which we had spoken, even as the serang had done. It may be, Tuan, that they are still searching, and have become lost."

Bob Kingsley's hands were working more fiercely together now—the fingers of one hand gouging at the back of the other until under the tight-drawn skin the knuckles became a row of white, bloodless knobs.

They had been near the end of their journey, approaching Richardson's plantation, indeed, when the Malay had told his story, and, a few minutes later, he, Bob Kingsley, had been thrown into this shed here and put in irons. It had taken him those few minutes to grasp the full significance (apparent enough now!) of Chen-shu's move; and it was then and from then on, that he had begged and pleaded and shouted for Richardson to come to him—and he had battered and beaten with his manacles against the door, entreating to be heard.

Once apparent, the significance of Chen-shu's strategy was brutally apparent; and there was something brutally sardonic about it. Chen-she did not know of Verna's belief that Bob Kingsley, was the one who had murdered her brother; instead, Chen-shu believed, and had said so, that the ties between them were close and intimate—that, in fact, they loved each other. Therefore, Chen-shu had feared exactly what he, Bob Kingsley, had once thought of doing out there in the boat as a means of turning the tables on the Chinamen, though he had almost immediately discarded the idea as a hopeless possibility because of the practically foregone conclusion that Verna would discredit both himself and his story. Chen-shu had expected that Verna would join with him, Bob Kingsley, in a demand that the Chinamen be made prisoners and put under guard; and, having learned that the serang had gone to Aoru for help, had not waited for the restrictions that he feared would be placed upon his liberty, but sneaked off in the darkness.

But that was only one phase of it. Chen-shu and his devil's brood couldn't get far away, of course, because there was probably no means of transportation; but, in any case, they certainly would not go away at all without that cursed white idol, which they had already given ample evidence they meant to obtain at any cost. They would therefore have to lie doggo, naturally—but that would be a simple matter. They could subsist easily on the natural products of the soil, to say nothing of what they could purloin from the various plantations; and even if a search were made for them, the chances were almost nil that they would be found. There was no lack of area in which to find, if necessary, one hiding place after another—and that area was so sparsely populated that it practically rendered them immune from even worry on the score of capture.

Their first consideration would be the recovery of that ivory idol. They might, and probably would discover sooner or later that he, Bob Kingsley, had been made prisoner instead of themselves, but that would only make them the more certain that the idol was in Verna's possession, only induce them to remain the more cautiously in hiding until an opportunity offered, or until they made one, of pouncing upon her unawares.

In the night! Perhaps even in broad daylight! A sudden rush! What was to prevent it?

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, June 14

A DAY of mixed influences or fluctuating fortunes is the presage based upon the predominant lunar transits. While there may be an opening for an advantageous change or journey, with some prospect of financial gain, yet there is also an augury of loss as well as some reverse. There may be some talk of new contracts, and employment is not under fortunate rule. Neither are personal relations.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of fluctuating fortunes, with some benefits, possibly through change, and some reverses. Be careful of employment and personal matters and be prepared for small postponements or delays. A child born on this day may be skillful and ingenious, but restless and fond of many changes, which may bring advantage. In the end it may score a worth while success.

There are many planes (planets) which we will evolve to as our minds and vision sufficiently expand and relate to those planes.

The scarlet berries of romance! As you savor their sweet tartness, you recall golden mornings when you slipped down shady lanes to roam in sunny fields—

Now their bright plumpness is comfortably wedged between layers of crisp-baked shortcake that's as light as the heart of a blackbird in June.

Other ripe, juicy berries—lightly sugared—are tumbled over the top of the shortcake, in rich profusion.

And over the whole, running down into crimson juice, is poured thick plain cream.

That's Old-fashioned Strawberry Shortcake Pennsylvania—a dish that will bring back memories of mothers whose baking was an art.

ZILATONE

Enthusiastic users praise remarkable scientific treatment for its promptness in ending stomach and intestinal disorders. Recommend it heartily.

NO MORE indigestion or constipation worries for me . . . I feel like a new person". . ."What glorious relief . . . I can eat anything now". . ."It has improved my complexion, too". . ."I am so much healthier all around since taking Zilatone.". . .

These are typical of the delighted remarks people are making about Zilatone. Nervous, frail people who used to suffer from indigestion, gas, constipation, headaches, sluggishness are surprised to see how Zilatone safely and naturally does away with these ailments and builds new energy and vigor. They praise Zilatone whole-heartedly—recommend it to their friends.

Zilatone is not like anything you have ever tried before. Not a mere temporary remedy — but a complete treatment — based on nature's laws. Gets at real cause of trouble—activates liver and pancreas. Normalizes flow of bile and other digestive juices, enabling them to sweep away intestinal poisons. Elimination is hastened. The whole digestive tract is toned, purified. And when the digestive system functions normally, you feel healthier and more vigorous.

Doctors endorse Zilatone. Try it according to directions contained in carton. If Zilatone disappoints you in any way, your druggist will gladly refund your money.

Zilatone is recommended and sold in this city by all the May Drug Stores and other live druggists.

NOTE—If your regular druggist cannot supply you, write us and we will see that your order is promptly filled. Will also send you FREE, a copy of the story of "Zilatone—what it is and how it acts." Address Drew Pharmacal Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THROUGH THE LORGNETTE.

WHEN a man stops at merely kissing your hand, these days, it is because he is AFRAID. Not necessarily afraid of you, dear heart, but of the other woman!

"Home and family" used to mean a big house and half a dozen children; now it means a roadster with a dog strapped to the running-board.

* * *

Many a man who has "taken a girl's heart by storm" has fervently wished he could return it with thanks in the dead calm of the next morning's reconsideration.

HELEN ROWLAND

Modern fairy tale: "Now," said the husband, when he had finished his argument, "tell me what YOU think about it. I'm dying to hear!"

* * *

When Samson let his hair grow he recovered his strength; but it will take more than just letting her hair grow to revive woman's feminine charm and lost sex-appeal.

Most wandering husbands would never have discovered that their wives were "incompatible" if they had not found some other woman who was more PET-ible.

The average woman suffers as much agony trying to decide whether or not to go on having her hair cut as a man does trying to decide whether or not to go down and have a tooth out.

Most of us don't realize how or when we killed love until we reach the post-mortem.

The open season for shooting husbands seems to be on again. Put a pretty gun in your hope chest!

Preventing Bad Effects of Arthritis

WHAT are we to do for the effects of arthritis? What are we to do to overcome the deformities and the stiffness of the joints and the annoyance resulting from the disease?

DR. COPELAND

I am not impressed with the various forms of massage and manipulation applied in some instances. While massage may be useful, there is no doubt that if severe manipulation is used, especially by an untrained person, great harm may result. In the acute stage, particularly, such treatment is dangerous.

On the other hand, after the acute symptoms have disappeared, it is important to exercise and move the joints. They must not be permitted to remain motionless. If they are allowed to become fixed, the joints will become permanently stiffened and bent in uncomfortable positions.

Of course, it is difficult to overcome the psychology of these cases. The victim is afraid to move his joints. He is afraid it is going to hurt. You must exercise a lot of will power and persistence to overcome this desire to keep the part fixed. However, unless there is this movement and exercise there is sure to be deformity and permanent impairment of the joint.

One of the most important things to do is to encourage the victim of arthritis, after the acute symptoms have subsided, to exercise his joints and make all the use of them he possibly can. This is essential.

The application of heat, the use of baths with the massage are very useful. If the victim has wrong eating habits they must be corrected.

I took pains to ascertain what the great specialists of the country are doing in the control of the bad effects of arthritis. It is interesting to find that in their clinics the vaccine treatment is used.

You may think it funny, but it appears to make no particular difference what vaccine is used, so long as it is one capable of creating some reaction. The typhoid vaccine is a favorite one. Almost any of the so-called foreign proteins or other foreign substances like mercurochrome, silver compounds and milk preparations seem to produce reactions which excite the defensive mechanisms of the body. The injections are given every five or six days for a month or two. If they result in relief, they are continued. Otherwise they are dropped.

I simply speak of these matters in order that you may talk them over with your doctor, but it is important to know that there is some prospect of relieving these cases of obstinate arthritis. In the cure we depend upon heat, massage, education in the necessity of movement, the vaccine treatment I have mentioned, and such remedies as your doctor may consider desirable.

Let your winter clothes hang in the closet this summer

WHY bother to pack winter clothes in trunks and boxes this summer? Why use the old-fashioned method? Why take out creases and wrinkles next fall? There's a much easier way. Just let your clothes hang in the closet, then spray them with Dethol once a week. They will be absolutely protected against moths. Easy, isn't it? And safe!

Dethol kills the flying moth—destroys the hungry worm. Dethol saves clothes and furs—rugs, draperies and upholstery. There is no danger—Dethol won't stain.

Just as Dethol kills moths, Dethol kills bedbugs, ants, roaches, flies and mosquitoes. If Dethol doesn't work, you get your money back. Dethol Mfg. Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

ON GOLDEN SANDS

What a Seafarer Sees
by the Summer Seas

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

©1928 by Int'l Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

STRANGE tales these sea-faring folk tell us when they return from their travels. Sometimes we are inclined to doubt the stories of wondrous lands and gorgeous beauty with which they regale many a weary hour. But not any more. Nowadays one is thoroughly convinced of the truth of all the yearns these rovers of the deep sea spin for our edification. Why?

Well, here's picture of all the loveliness that could be imagined in one tiny spot. And it's typical of any beach in the country on a hot Summer afternoon. And I dare and defy you to deny the tales of lovely maidens and gorgeous scenery that the next seafarer pours into your bored ears.

They're lovely to look at as you idly wander down the sand, but—from where the seafarer looks through his glass, with the golden haze hovering over the horizon and the shadows of the ocean lending an enchantment beyond description, and the feathery little foam bubbles rushing up to kiss their toes and then racing back to the safety of the Mother Ocean—ah, there is a picture that discourages the boldest and bravest artist to accurately transfer to canvas.

They look like a huge bouquet of beauty, and where one views them from the horizon, one's imagination can easily picture the mermaids that all true seafarers dread to meet. Only in this case, one WANTS to meet them; wants to see their loveliness and grace and hear their joyous laughter.

That's what the seafarer sees and that's the basis of all his yarns, so don't ever disbelieve him again, for it's all true, every bit of it, and if you don't believe me, just go and see for yourself some sunny day.

Dicky Vents His Wrath on Madge for Playing Tutor

DICKY'S words were almost incoherent as he tumbled them out in answer to my statement that Miss Lincoln had said he wished to speak to me.

"You're shouting I want to talk to you. Look here! What is all this about your playing governess for old Veritzen's protege?"

I knew that though Eleanor Lincoln had gone back into the library, yet my replies would be perfectly audible to her, and I knew that to keep her from comprehending Dicky's rancor was going to take every bit of resourcefulness I possessed.

"Yes, isn't it a delightful arrangement?" I caroled. "Miss Lincoln and I are enjoying it immensely, although she's far too kind in her encomiums. But I can reply that she is a wonderful pupil. It is a joy to work with her."

"Are you climbing a walnut tree or a hickory?" my husband demanded in wrathful amazement. "Didn't you hear what I said? Now you listen to me while I spill a question that can be answered by yes or no. Is it true what she said, that you're teaching her history?"

"Yes. What time will you be out tonight?"

"It's no use your trying to stall," Dicky declared furiously. "There's only one possible train I can get now, the usual one, and I'm taking it. That's that. Now! Who's paying you for this stunt, old Veritzen or Miss Lincoln?"

"The former."

"Oh-h!" His tone held sudden enlightenment. "Is Miss Lincoln where she can hear you?"

"Yes."

"Then I'll postpone the rest of this until I get there. But just let me inform you, milady, that you might save time and trouble by telling your young neighbor to get another teacher. There's a limit to what I'll put up with, and this marks it."

"All right," I answered cheerily. "I'll meet you at the train. Good-bye."

My hand was shaking as I hung up the receiver, and I had to stand still for a few seconds until I was sure that I could present an unruffled face to my pupil.

For a wave of hot anger against my husband had swept over me at his unreasoning demand. He had agreed to keep to himself his aversion to my work with Philip Veritzen, a dislike which I knew was rooted in his prejudice against my doing any work for money. And now for some reason which I could not fathom, he had broken that agreement and made a threat of interference which I knew was no idle one. I had a bad quarter of an hour in store for me when he should come home.

I had no intention of surrendering, however. I was not particularly enamored of this tutoring of Eleanor Lincoln, but I had promised my employer to undertake it, and it was neither honorable nor politic for me to break that promise. However, it was with a feeling of definite depression that I returned to the library.

My pupil, however, was anything but depressed. Her eyes were so bright as I entered the library that I had a sudden eerie impulse to close the shutters and see if they would glow in the dark. Her whole manner, too, was full of excitement tense, though suppressed, and I surmised that she was rejoicing yet fearful over her decision to pose for Dicky which she just had announced to him. I had not realized before how strong had been the natural romantic desire of a well-known artist, but I could not help the jealous wonder as to how great a part Dicky's undeniably fascinating personality played in her excited anticipation.

HENRY HADLEY, composer of "Bianca," will act as guest conductor of the National Grand Opera Company when that group presents Mr. Hadley's work as their weekly operatic offering through the Red Network, including WCAE, tonight at 10:30 o'clock.

"Her Regiment," a light opera in three acts by Victor Herbert, will be presented as the Philco hour feature, with Jessica Dragonette and Colin O'More in the leading roles, through stations associated with the Blue Network, at 9:00 o'clock. KDKA will be in the hookup. The book and lyrics of the operetta are by William Le Baron, and the production is under the direction of Harold Sanford.

"Londonderry Air," an old Irish tune, will be sung by the Sylvania Foresters during the program to be broadcast through KDKA and associated station, at 8:30 o'clock. Other songs which the quartet of Foresters will sing as they sit about their camp fire will include "The Story of the Rose," "You're a Grand Old Flag," "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," "After a While" and "De Sandman." As drowsiness after the day's sport creeps upon them, they will close their program with "Sylvania Song" and "Home, Sweet Home." Two instrumentalists, who will be guests of the Foresters, will play "I Love My Old-Fashioned Man" and "A Little Two-by-Four for Two" as specialty numbers.

KDKA, WJAS in Convention Broadcast

KDKA and WJAS are among the stations broadcasting the Republican National Convention in Kansas City. The convention goes on the air over these stations at 12:00 Noon (Pittsburgh time). The session will be in continuous broadcast from that hour until adjournment for the day, with the exception of breaks in the program now and then to allow for some of the regular presentations of the stations.

Broadcasting plans of the convention are subject to last minute changes, it is announced.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

OVERHAUL CAR BEFORE BEGINNING SUMMER TRIP

PA. WINS SECOND DODGE PRIZE

Pennsylvania had the honor of producing the second prize winner in the Dodge Brothers' $20,000 contest to find the best slogan that described the Victory Six car, with the announcement that F. R. Shoemaker, Erie, received a prize of $500. The Keystone State also had the highest number of prize winners with 28 out of a total of 354 offered.

Mr. Shoemaker's slogan was "Try to Get By Without One," and was selected for second prize from a total of 340,000 slogans. First prize of $1,000 went to C. C. Michael, of Colorado Springs, with "Making A Good Name Better."

The 27 other prize winners announced from Pennsylvania were:

Fourth place—$100 each—Mrs. John King, Scranton; Mrs. Helen Smallwood, Point Marion.

Fifth place—$50 each—D. M. McBride, Parnassus; J. O. Smith, Williamsport.

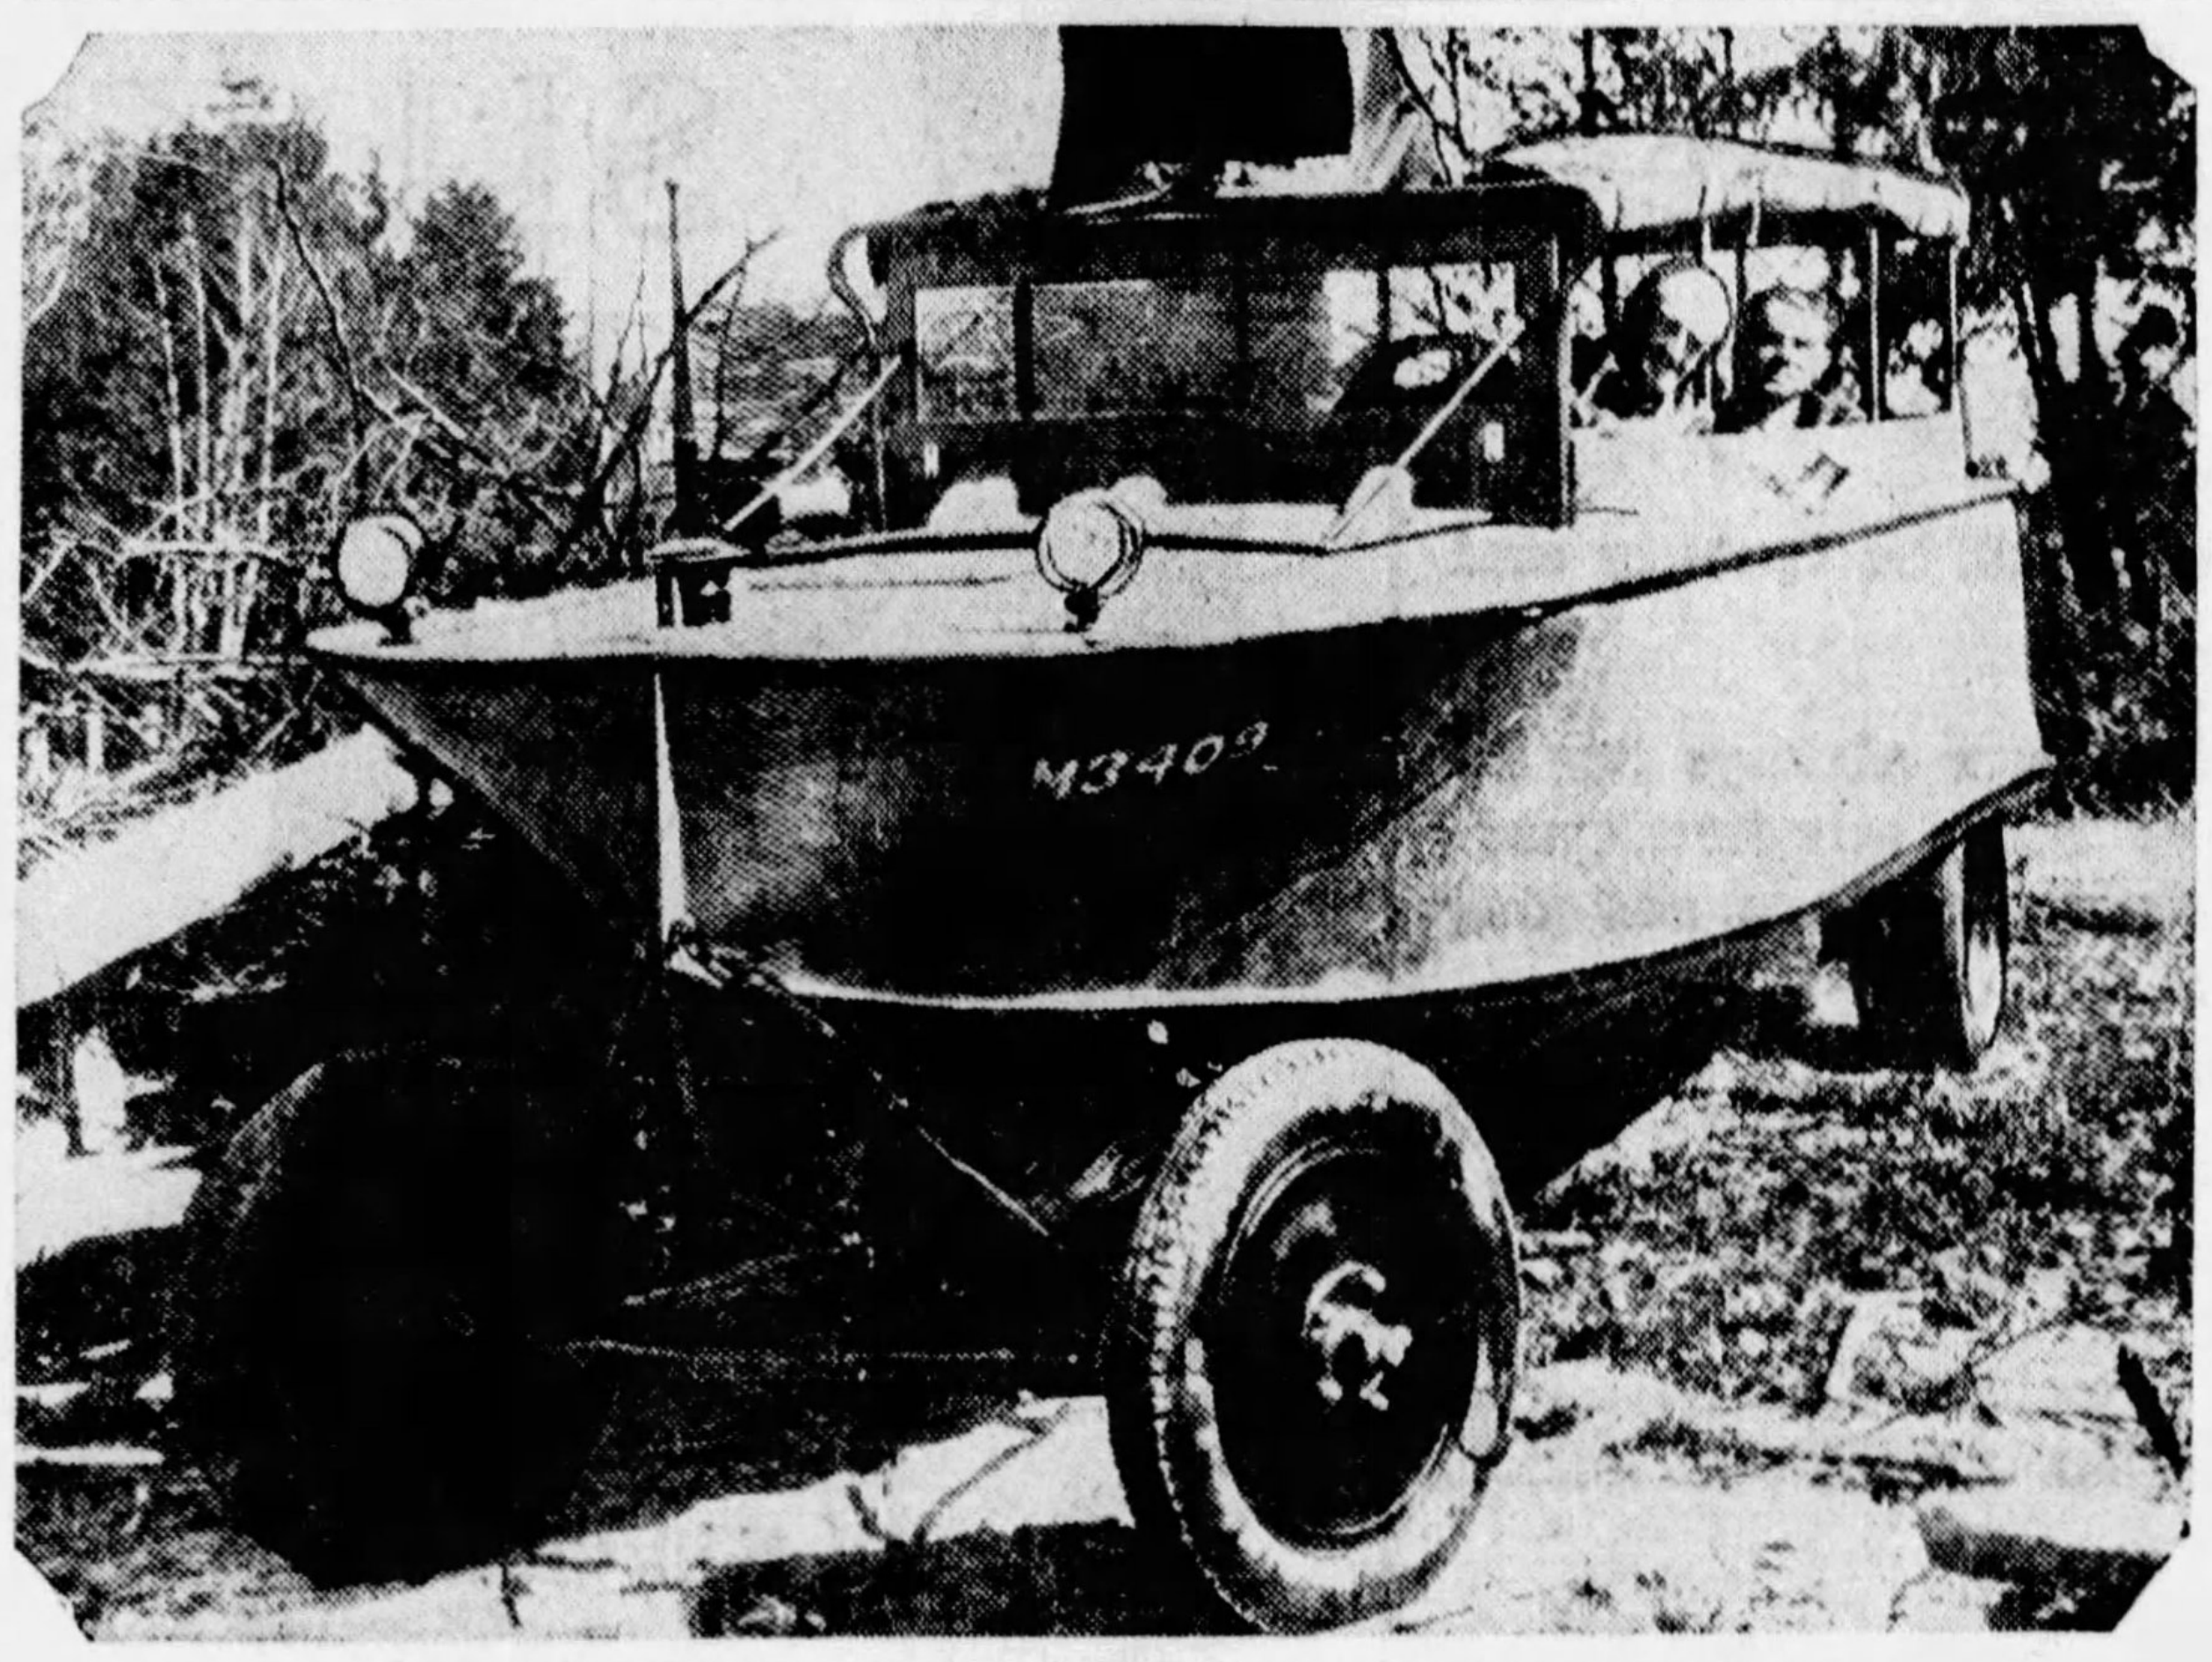
Sixth place — $25 each — Ella Michael, Chicora; J. R. Hoffert, Camp Hill; O. J. Vogel, Altoona; Dr. M. J. Brennan, McSherrystown; Mrs. Nona W. Howell, Manor; Albert F. Stump and G. B. Fenstermaker, Lancaster; Edith Schillinger, Munhall.

Seventh place—$10 each—Alice M. Smith, Philadelphia; Paul Serfas, Allentown; J. B. Fredenstein, Matamoras; W. W. Powell, Sharon; J. E. Fyock, Indiana; George Grimm, Wyano; Elwood Lotz, Reading; Lynn Hill, Erie; J. C. Patterson, Butler; B. McLain, West Newton; Norland H. Martin, Chambersburg; Martin Krasovic, Steelton; H. P. Russell, Scranton; Mrs. A. Taylor, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. James Keefe, Overton.

PLAN SUPER HIGHWAYS ABOVE RAILROAD BEDS

Highway engineers in Chicago have plans for the development of a roadway capable of handling tremendous automobile traffic. Utilizing air rights over railroad tracks, broad thoroughfares would provide a means for high-speed traffic with grade crossings eliminated. The cost of the comprehensive system of elevated through highways is estimated at $250,000,000 or more.

LACKS ONLY WINGS OF PLANE



HAS RUBBER TIRED WHEELS AND PROPELLOR

Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar is shown trying out the National Geographic Society's amphibious boat which he will use on the society's expendition to explore the Alaskan-Aleutian volcanic chain. Dr. Jagger made this test on Lake Whatcom, near Bellingham, Wash., just before the expendition sailed for Unga Island.

EXPERTS NAME PARTS TO BE TESTED

Since the "old buzz wagon" annually is called upon to show herculean strength and endurance when the summer vacationing begins, it is suggested to motorists that now is a good time to test the operation of the machine's mechanical parts.

The enjoyment of summer trips is seriously hampered by any part of the car that does not function properly, and when the old bus is purring smoothly and powerfully at all times much is added to the pleasure of the journey.

Battery, generator, distributor, spark plugs, valves, carburetor, fuel feed system, clutch transmission, differential crankcase, lubricant, steering mechanism, brakes, tires, cooling system and wheel bearings are the units chiefly recommended by automotive experts for attention on the eve of the tour. Summarizing probable services that each will need, the mechanical service department of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association suggests the following:

Battery: Remove corrosion from terminals and inspect connections to see that they have not been eaten by the acid. Replace suspected connections. Coat terminals with vaseline or grease. Fill cells to recommended level with distilled water.

Generator: If device is not automatically controlled as to output, have charging rate reduced for the tour. It diminishes the load on the generator, while turning on the lights serves no other purpose than to keep the battery from becoming overcharged, which is not so likely as generally believed.

Distributor: Clean and adjust breaker points. Apply a thin film of grease to the cam.

Spark Plugs: Clean and check points for condition and clearance. Replacement, if the plugs have seen a year's service, is generally advisable.

Valves: It will pay to have the valves ground if this has not been done for 7,500 miles, regardless of the gasoline one uses. Valves must seat properly for efficient engine performance. It is not wise to adjust them too closely. This means quick valve deterioration and poor performance.

CLEAN CARBURETORS

Carburetor: Clear strainer at bottom thoroughly. If mixture is suspected of excessive richness, have it adjusted by an expert.

Fuel, feed system: Drain traps at bottom of main gasoline tank and vacuum tank. Blow out the feed lines.

Clutch: If the release bearing is not the self-lubricating type, take up one turn on the grease cup, the commonly used substitute. Be careful not to turn down the cup so far as to get grease on the plates. Slipping of the clutch is sure to follow.

Transmission and differential: Drain and flush case and housing and fill up with fresh lubricant.

Crankcase: Drain out old oil, flush with light oil, and refill with the normal—not heavy—lubricant, unless the car is accustomed to that grade.

Steering: Check for wear, looseness, or binding, and lubricate thoroughly. Hours at a wheel that works hard are exceptionally fatiguing and dangerous.

Brakes: Check for wear on linings and postiveness of equalization. Strange roads and high speeds call for perfect brakes.

Tires: Don't tempt fate with tires that are badly worn. Wear out the old ones in day-to-day service, not on the tour. Higher speeds call for higher tire pressures. From three to five pounds over the normal is essential.

BE SURE SPARK PLUG FITS

To get maximum power and efficiency from an engine it is absolutely necessary that the proper type spark plug be used. When a plug is too short it does not bring the firing points far enough into the combustion chamber. Good ignition under this condition is impossible. The engine is bound to be sluggish and inefficient. A plug that is too long extends too far into the firing chamber. This will cause the lower end of the plug to become overheated, resulting in igniting the fuel too early. The correct length of plug fits so that the bottom of the spark plug shell is just flush with the inside wall of the cylinder head and the spark gap extends beyond into the combustion chamber.

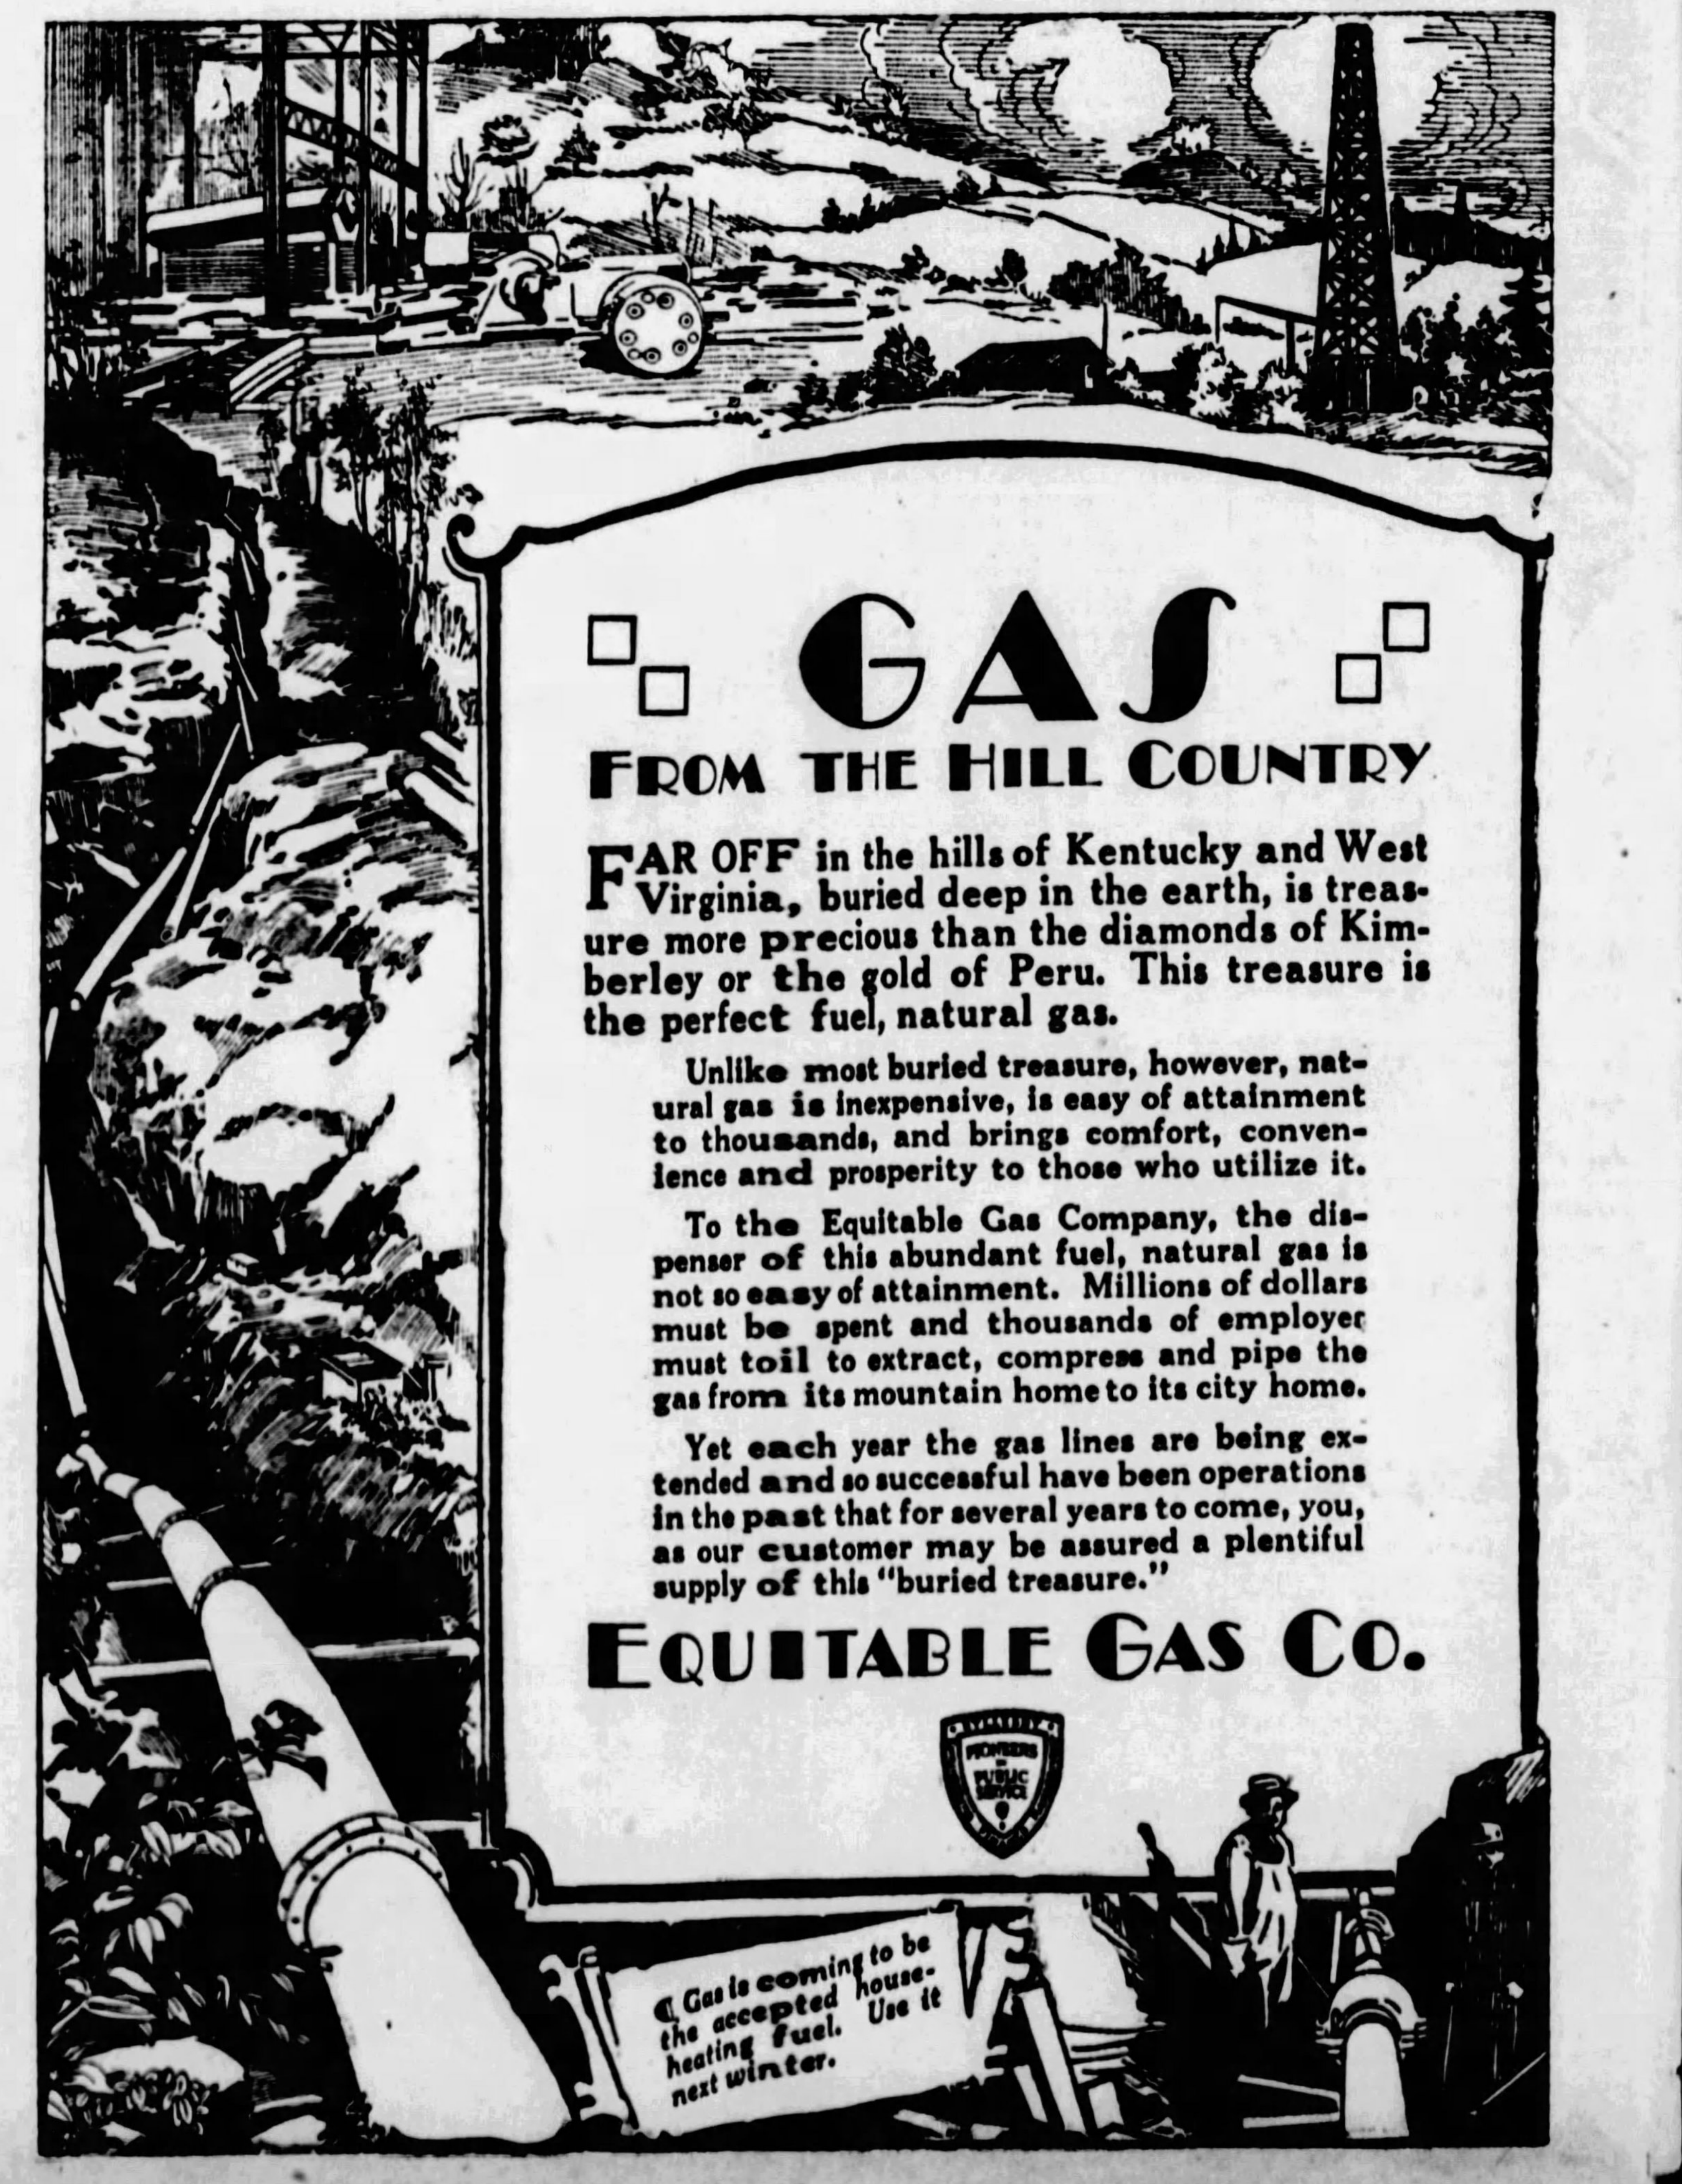
WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT . . . BUICK WILL BUILD THEM



Gas is coming to be the accepted house-heating fuel. Use it next winter.

GAS FROM THE HILL COUNTRY

FAR OFF in the hills of Kentucky and West Virginia, buried deep in the earth, is treasure more precious than the diamonds of Kimberley or the gold of Peru. This treasure is the perfect fuel, natural gas.

Unlike most buried treasure, however, natural gas is inexpensive, is easy of attainment to thousands, and brings comfort, convenience and prosperity to those who utilize it.

To the Equitable Gas Company, the dispenser of this abundant fuel, natural gas is not so easy of attainment. Millions of dollars must be spent and thousands of employer must toil to extract, compress and pipe the gas from its mountain home to its city home.

Yet each year the gas lines are being extended and so successful have been operations in the past that for several years to come, you, as our customer may be assured a plentiful supply of this "buried treasure."

VACATION MECCAS BECKON NATION'S TOURISTS

11,000,000 CARS TO GO ON ROAD

By ERNEST N. SMITH,
General Manager, American Automobile Association.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Summer is already here and the road gods are calling. More than 40,000,000 people in 11,000,000 cars will answer the call. Every vacation region, woodlands and lakelands, mountains and shores, will receive their quota of this veritable outpouring of America. This vast army of motor nomads will distribute billions of dollars along the highways of the nation before the first snow falls. All the favored recreational areas and the communities located along the highways leading thereto will benefit enormously from this modern Midas touch. But more important still, a large cross-section of the American people will lay up that annual replenishment of health and happiness that has become a very real, though perhaps intangible, factor in our national progress.

Barring a sinister mood on the part of the fickle weather deities, touring conditions during the 1928 season should be better than ever before. There are many reasons why this should be so. Motoring services have been co-ordinated, developed and extended; roads have been added to and improved; agencies catering to motor tourist patronage have sought to better the standard of the commodity they sell; cars are on the whole better equipped for long-distance travel; communities everywhere are more keenly alive to the importance of maintaining health standards requisite to the needs of a nation on wheels, and finally, the 1928 motor tourist himself is better able to apply the lessons of experience to those fundamental things that make or mar the pleasure of the tour.

The 1928 motor tourist will find himself the beneficiary of the keen competition that has arisen between the various vacation areas for his patronage. There is no doubt that the competition from Europe, from Canada, from new areas in the United States made accessible by new roads, have done much to put the older playgrounds on their toes. Money speaks and the tourist dollar has proved a potential argument, though it is but fair to say that many of the older areas have still much to learn by way of exploiting their resources in a highly competitive era. But these older playgrounds are awakening. Men of vision realize that there is a new generation of motor nomads who are not bound by years of habit to one spot in one region. Hence, they are making belated efforts to maintain motorist patronage and increase it by offering better hotels, more recreational facilities, better roads and other attractions.

Since the close of the 1927 vacation season, there has been added to the United States highway system 9,500 miles of paved roads, bringing the total of paved roads on the main trunk, interstate lines up to 75,000 miles. This is supplemented by approximately 300,000 miles of excellent state highways.

Mileage per se is not the only consideration. In this connection, let us hope that highway officials have learned two important lessons, namely, the necessity of avoiding interference with the numbering systems during the active touring season, and the advisability of giving advance notice of construction projects on highways. More general adoption of the principle of caring for one shoulder of a road at a time will unquestionably prove helpful in eliminating many long detours.

TWO BILLION MILES COVERED BY BUSSES

Common carrier buses operated over a total of 2,001,870,000 miles during the year 1927.

BUICKS TRAVEL ACROSS CHINA

FLINT, Mich., June 13.—The British motor expedition which left Pekin last summer in two Buick cars, with London as its destination, is now on the last leg of its journey, according to information received from the travelers. They have traversed jungle, desert, and mountain, and are now in Europe, speeding toward the Channel, with comparatively fine roads under them.

When the expedition reaches London, it will have traveled one-third of the distance around the globe. The trip has been notable not only for the great distance covered but for the hazards encountered along the way. Floods, snow, and sandstorms have threatened the expedition, sometimes delaying its progress, but never turning it back.

A recent article in the London Times, from that newspaper's Beirut correspondent, sketched the experiences of Maj. McCallum and his companions in their trail-breaking journey. Through French Indo-China, a part of Siam, down the Maylay Peninsula, and through India, Baluchistan and Persia was the stiffest part of the trip. In many cases the "road" was mere track, with rain and snow to aggravate the difficulties of following it.

How To Drive & Care For It

WASHING THE CAR "BEHIND THE EARS"

THE family car that has been washed at home is often like the small boy who has taken his bath without motherly supervision. The dingy spots behind the boy's ears are more pronounced because of his shining face. And the dirt streaks that didn't quite come off are more noticeable because of the spick-and-span appearance of the rest of the car.

The owner who likes to fuss around the car on Saturday afternoons or Sunday mornings can do a good job, however, if he is well prepared.

Almost every house has a vacuum cleaner, and even if the garage has no electric lights, it is no great task to run a drop cord extension out to the car. Carpets can be removed and shaken, then gone over with the vacuum cleaner. The floor can be swept and brushed and cleaned in like manner. At this point, it is well to put distilled water in the battery, if it is mounted under the floor, for the battery is more accessible at such times. Lastly the upholstery should be vacuum cleaned, when the dust has had a chance to settle.

With the windows closed, it is time to start work with the hose, using a gentle stream rather than a harsh spray, for the dirt needs to be softened before an attempt is made to remove it.

With the dirt thoroughly softened, a sponge can be used to loosen it, at the same time using the hose and plenty of water. If the sponge is allowed to get full of grit, it will tend to scratch the finish. It should be used lightly and rinsed out frequently. After the washing operation, a soft cloth or chamois should be used to dry the finish. Then a good body polish should be applied with a soft cloth or chamois.

Rancid butter is an effective agent for removing spots from the finish, as are vaseline and kerosene.

RISE OF AUTO KINGS BARED

What brings success?

Is it hard work—luck—opportunity—brains—or some other factor?

Success is an elusive maiden, wooed by millions and won by few. And the millions still pursuing her are alaways eager to find out from the fortunate ones by what means they have won her favor and fortune.

A number of the prominent figures in the automotive industry have been asked for their magic formula, and in a frank and illuminating series of interviews they have told of the devious routes they have pursued on their way to the top.

The series, known as "The Romance of Auto Celebrities," is appearing each Sunday in the Automotive Section of The Sun-Telegraph. Don't miss them! They will interest you.

Alfred Robert Glancy's rise to Oakland presidency was a real romance of business conquest. His adventures and labors are told in an intimate chat with him, the next of the series of interviews.

AUBURN CARS TESTED

Large numbers of residents of this district have accepted the invitation of the Pittsburgh Auburn Company to be "shown" what the car would do, reports J. A. O'Malley of that organization.

The Auburn Company is staging a "show me" campaign throughout this week, and has asked the general public to call any of Auburn's showrooms and ask for a demonstration. No obligation is attached to the call, says Mr. O'Malley, and the inquirer may put the car through any test that he desires.

AUTO SALESMEN IN CONTEST

Salesmen of the various automobile distributing and sales organization of this district are competing in a sales contest, under the supervision of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, for a trip to Bobcaygeon, Kawartha Lake, Canada.

The contest will continue throughout the month of June and the leading salesmen of each of the individual organizations will be taken on the trip, which will be started here Saturday, July 7. The trip will be made in a special train to be run over the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie and the Canadian Pacific railroads. Col. F. L. Dennis, R. D. Brown and George P. Gray are in charge of the trip and contest. G. D. Jay, Jr., R. R. McVicker and C. D. Cooley are the publicity committee.

—and the Roads That Once Were Open Will be Open Once Again

Twenty million automobiles crowd the once open roads.

A hundred million people seeking freedom from the drabness of daily life ride up and down the modern version of the trails of pioneers.

Yet still there throbs in every vein, the old American call to romance and adventure, still the lure of going somewhere to meet the thrill of the unexpected.

But it's hard to get beyond the multitude in ordinary cars. There are so many of them. They fill so much of highways that were lonely yesterday.

There is a way to leave the crowds behind. There is a car so swift, so comfortable, so dependable, that you can reach and cross the farthest horizon with ease.

It is the Reo Flying Cloud of 1929.

Roads that once were open are open roads again when you drive this pleasure car.

For the Reo Flying Cloud laughs at sluggish traffic as it alertly beats the rest to every opening.

Hour after hour, it will hit a higher average speed to take you farther than the average car can cruise.

Gayly it takes the roughest roads, the steepest climbs, the widest plains.

With a zest that's all its own, it sails you out to the roads that are still open, while making the roads that once were open seem uncrowded because it does so many things better.

There's a new Reo Flying Cloud of 1929 here for you to test. Try it out in every way you wish. Let it tell its story to you in its own sweet-running way. It will show you how the roads that once were open will be open once again.

LOMSKI FAVORED OVER LATZO

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1928

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

Kremer Breaks Slump and Cops His Third Victory When Bucs Smash Year's Hit Record—Lomski to Find Latzo Tough Foe—Ford Slips But Benton Adds Another.

IT was difficult for fans in the Pittsburgh district to determine which feature of yesterday's victory in Philadelphia called for the greater celebration—the return of the Pirate attack so strongly that it smashed all hitting records for the year in the two major circuits, or the fact that Remy Kremer had finally gone the distance and won a ball game.

Remy Kremer

No doubt the Kremer end of it will mean the greater amount of good to the Bucs in the long run, if it may be taken for granted that his return to form will be lasting.

True, it doesn't require the finest pitching on record to win a game in which your supporting company has piled up 15 runs and 25 hits, but even at that Kremer showed so much improvement in holding the Phils to four runs and five hits that it augurs well for his success during the remainder of the season.

WHEN you consider that a pitcher who went into the 1928 race still looked upon as the best moundsmen in the country has won only three games this season counting yesterday's victory against eight lost, it will be realized that this individual loss of form alone would have been enough to cause the Pittsburgh team to drop into the second division.

Yesterday's conquest in Quakertown was the first game won by Kremer in almost a month, or since May 18, when he was credited with a victory over the same Phils at Forbes Field, 6 to 4. Even then he had to be taken out in favor of Burleigh Grimes with one out in the ninth inning.

PRIOR to yesterday he had been lifted from four straight games started, and from five out of seven in a row. He has pitched only four complete games this season out of 12 started. Let's hope that his change of luck yesterday and the new encouragement it will give him will start him on the road toward making up for lost time.

DONIE BUSH surely did accomplish for one day at least his avowed object of strengthening the Pittsburgh attack when he sent Sparky Adams back to second base yesterday. With Adams himself contributing his share in the form of two singles and a double and scoring three runs, the Bucs, who have won seven of their last 10 games, hung up a new record for the year in the majors by making 25 hits. The previous high mark was 23 hits, made by Cincinnati at Boston on June 2 against Greenfield, Delaney, Hearn and Wertz. Pittsburgh's highest total prior to yesterday was 21 hits, made against Greenfield, Edwards and Genewich, of Boston, on May 4. The season's run records in the majors, is 20, made by Cincinnati on June 2.

Sparky Adams

FIGHT fans in New York who have been complaining during a series of unsatisfactory shows that the days of real battling are over, may change their minds tonight when Leo Lomski and Pete Latzo get their 10-round slamfest under way at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn. There will be all the fighting any one wants if these two live up to their reputations for casting aside all pretense of skillful boxing and wading in to slug with both hands, willing to take one or more punches in order to land one in return.

Pete Latzo

IT'S a tough fight to pick, too. Recalling Lomski's feat of knocking Tommy Loughran down twice in the first round and keeping him groggy for the first four rounds, only to lose out in the end, it would seem that Leo should have the call over Latzo tonight. But again the thought strikes you that a fighter who could do that to Loughran, and then fails to beat him, must lack something. All of which leads to the conclusion that you've got to concede Latzo a chance to win tonight. Pete is a pretty smooth ring workman, measured from all angles, and a knockout, which is unlikely, appears to be the only means by which Lomski may beat him.

AFTER going through 21 consecutive errorless games, during which he accepted 126 chances without a slip at shortstop for the Reds, Horace Ford interrupted his string with two errors in 12 chances yesterday in New York.

In the same game, however, another record was kept clear. Larry Benton won his tenth victory for New York and placed to his credit the twelfth straight game he has pitched without being taken out. He has finished every game he has started this year, pitching a total of 102 2-3 innings, the fraction being due to the fact that the Phils won out on him on April 26 after two men had been retired in the ninth inning.

ACCORDING to a Californian who is one of Jack Dempsey's intimates and in close touch with the fight game on the coast, those boxing fans who have refused to take seriously the reports that Dempsey will return to the ring for another battle with Gene Tunney—provided, of course, that the latter beats Tom Heeney next month, of which there is no great amount of doubt—are making a poor guess.

He insists that another Tunney-Dempsey match is a certainty for some date or other, even if Tunney makes the European trip has has planned, following the Heeney affair, and he intimates that this time Tex Rickard may change the usual order of things and stage the fight on the Pacific coast.

THE westerner declares that Dempsey is the most popular fighter the coast ever produced, not excluding Jeffries, Corbett, Britt, Ritchie or any of the other famous ones of the past who were native sons by birth or adoption.

It is said that Jack is followed by just as big crowds now as when he was champion, and is considered the real king of the fistic realm on the coast.

BUCS SET SLUGGING MARK IN 15-4 WIN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—Convinced that they have mastered the range on the fences of the famed Baker bowl, the Pirates today were eager to mix with the Quakers in the last game of the series.

Burleigh Grimes, who ranks with Larry Benton, of the Giants, as one of the league's best pitchers of this season, will heckle the Phils in the finale. Recruit Benge, who made the Pirates step on the gas to win in Pittsburgh some time ago, is due to work for the cellar champs.

The Buccos hung up a record for the year yesterday as they pickled three of Burt Shotton's flingers for a total of 25 blows, and strange to say, none of the hits were of the round trip variety, a species of safety that is easy to achieve in the Baker demi tasse. The home boys, on the other hand, made all of their tallies on their two homers, but when the curtain went down they were as far behind the Buccos as the proverbial dark horse.

The base hit barrage netted the Pirates so many tallies that the contest was not in doubt after the second frame, even in the band box playground at Broad and Huntington. The final score was 15 to 4.

KREMER HITS HARD

And it was a big day for M. Kremer, the sometimes celebrated flinger, who has been having a very bad season. The slump of the Bank of Italy stock gave Kremer a wallop in the morning, but instead of looking for a towel as a token of defeat, Kremer hitched up his belt under the spell of a warm afternoon, forgot all about the market and proceeded to hold the Quakers to five hits.

Kremer played a double-header as he mowed down the home team. Remy led the terrific offensive of

by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

JUST how ridiculous some fight decisions may be is demonstrated by what happened up in Boston the other night, when Jim Maloney fought Jack DeMave. The glass-jawed Maloney went down five times in the first round and four times thereafter up to and including the fifth round and then rallied and came on to win the decision in 10 rounds.

Now, we may be a bit captious, but it is difficult for us to conceive how ANY fighter could come from behind in four rounds and make up a nine-knockdown deficit without scoring at least one knockdown himself. In fact, how he could hope to get much more than a draw by even knocking out his opponent after taking such a terrific walloping.

Phil Scott ought to go great in Boston, if that's the way the cod and bean-eaters figure 'em out.

A GOOD STORY is told about the celebrated One Eye Connelly, the gate-crasher, in the July issue of College Humor. It's too good, not to pass it on. It seems the slippery one got past the gate the first day of the Washington world series in 1924 disguised as a scorecard vendor. The next day it was a little tougher,

WESTERNER TO HAVE WEIGHT MARGIN

NEW YORK, June 13.—Leo Lomski and Pete Latzo, exponents of the art of wading in and taking 10 to give one, slug it out over the 10-round route at Ebbets Field tonight.

Lomski's stiffer punching powers and the sensational but losing battle he fought against Tommy Loughran, king of the light heavyweights, have contrived to make him a slight favorite.

The experts figure that the Aberdeen assassin's deadly body punching will take most of the fight out of Pete before the battle has gone very far.

Lomski will also have a weight advantage of some 10 pounds over the ex-welterweight champion, no mean advantage.

The Scranton coal miner, once welterweight champion of the world, himself put up a great, but also losing, battle against Loughran at Ebbets Field recently. His stock, as a result, rose about 50 per cent.

SETS SHOOT MARK

TECUMSEH, Ont., June 13.—(AP.)—E. F. Woodward, of Houston, Tex., shattered the record for consecutive hits on Amateur Trapshooting Association registered targets yesterday when he ran a three-day string of shattered birds to 506 without a miss.

VETERAN WHO MAY WIN FLAG

Hendricks is serving his fourth complete season as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, having succeeded to the position upon the death of Pat Moran, for whom he acted as an assistant, and he and the Redland fans have visions of nailing the National League pennant to the mast. Hendricks generally has his club in the thick of the fight, but it is galloping along at an unexpectedly fast early pace this year. He has a good pitching staff and a flock of socking hitters to back it up.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS

TOMMY JONES of Atlanta, twice victor over Billy Wallace of Cleveland, boxes Ray Miller of Chicago in a 10-round bout in Cleveland tonight. Bobby Brown and Gorilla Jones meet in a return bout in the semi-final.

Leo Lomski, although not as experienced as Pete Latzo, whom he meets in a 10-round bout in Brooklyn tonight, is one year older than his opponent. He is 26. Phil Kaplan and Harry Martone box the semi-final to this battle.

Tony Canzoneri, featherweight champion, boxes Vic Foley of Canada in the main bout of a card of four 10-round bouts at the Montreal baseball park tonight. In the other bouts, Joe Trabon boxes George Chabot, Bobby Garcia meets Bert Brown and Tommy Ryan, formerly of McKeesport, engages Benny Schwartz.

UMPIRE WILSON DEAD IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—Frank Wilson, National League umpire, died of appendicitis at Victory Hospital in Brooklyn yesterday after a brief illness. Wilson was stricken a week ago and operated upon last Wednesday and Saturday. He progressed well until last night when he suffered a relapse. He sank steadily until he died.

Wilson is survived by his widow and two young sons, who were with him when he died. He received his start in umpiring around the sandlots of the metropolitan district after throwing out his arm while serving as a catcher in the South Atlantic League before the war. He went to the Western League about eight years ago, and joined Ban Johnson's staff in the American in 1922.

The Brooklyn umpire served only briefly in the young major circuit. He ordered Cobb and Heilmann from a game in Detroit early in the season, and resigned when Johnson failed to give him the support he considered his due.

Wilson then returned to the Western League for a few months, but was called to serve in the National League at the start of the 1923 season. He soon became one of the best men on Heydler's staff, and was recognized as the fastest umpire on the bases in either league.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Newark, N. J.—Pierre Charles defeated Bud Gorman, 10 rounds; George Smith defeated Gene McHugh, 10 rounds.

At New York—Stanislaus Loyoza defeated Joe Glick, 10 rounds.

At Montgomery, Ala.—W. L. (Young) Stribling knocked out Joe Packo, 7 rounds.

At Indianapolis—Howard Bentz won on a foul over Bobby Williams, 6 rounds; Joe Zink knocked out Jimmy Klump, 4 rounds.

At Wilmington, Del.—Tommy McConaghey and Tony Caranaglic drew, 10 rounds; Jack Daley defeated Joey O'Donnell, 6 rounds;

LANGLEY WINS SCHOOL TITLE

Langley High is looking forward today with high hopes to the City League championship game with Schenley High scheduled for Forbes Field Friday evening following the 3-1 victory over Dormont yesterday which clinched the W. P. I. A. L. championship for the Tunnelites.

Patsy Rogazza and Lefty Moschel staged a hurlers' duel in yesterday's encounter, with the Langley ace having the better of the argument, though Dormont outhit the victors 4 to 3.

Both teams scored in the first inning and then Langley stepped out and won in the fifth, adding another run for good measure in the sixth.

This evening Dormont will play Rankin for the independent county school championship at Dormont.

No Setup, Gene Says Of Tom

By SID MERCER,
International News Service Special Correspondent.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y., June 13.—No matter what others think of his ability to beat back the challenge of Tom Heeney at the Yankee Stadium next month, Gene Tunney is convinced that he has a hard fight on his hands and is making his preparations accordingly.

"This is going to be different from my two experiences with Jack Dempsey," the heavyweight champion told a group of Canajoharie fans at a dinner. "I knew I had it on Dempsey in general condition and I simply had to watch out for stray punches that might have wrecked my plans for those fights. Heeney is different. I look for a gruelling fight and I realize that I must be in tip-top condition to go 15 rounds with a man who is much more punch-proof than Dempsey and who can keep plugging away.

"I won't do a lot of boxing," he said, "until after July 4, although Billy Vidabeck showed up today to give me some workouts and I am working a little with Charley Rosen to get up speed."

If Jack Dempsey is coming back in September his opponent will be somebody other than Gene Tunney. The heavyweight champion today confirmed an announcement by Thornton Wilder, English writer, that he and Tunney are to take a literary stroll through England and other European countries next fall.

BASEBALL STAR KILLED IN MINE ACCIDENT

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 13.—John Mehalic, 28, of Lloydsville, widely known Westmoreland county pitcher, is dead at his home as a result of being fatally injured yesterday in a fall of slate in the Nemacolin mines, Fayette county. Mehalic, in 1927, was a pitcher for the Latrobe club of the Pennsylvania League, and was considered one of the best in the circuit. He is survived by his widow and one child.

OFFICIALS WILL GIVE OUT WORD TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER.

JOHN HOLOHAN

DUQUESNE UNIVERSITY, through Father M. A. Hehir, president of the institution, will announce the appointment of John C. Holohan as graduate manager of athletics following his graduation from the School of Accounts at the annual commencement exercises of the university in Soldiers' Memorial Hall tonight.

Holohan has been the leading candidate for the position since it was decided to create the post. He has been chief of the managerial end of the athletic department for the past three years, and has been connected with Duquesne for the past eight years, being a graduate of the prep school. His official title since 1924 has been that of student manager, though his duties have been identical with those of graduate manager of other schools.

The athletic board of the university has passed on Holohan's qualifications for the job, but has withheld the formal announcement of his appointment to the post until his graduation. He has drawn up the 1928 football schedule and the 1928-29 basketball card, which would indicate the intent of the authorities to retain him in the official capacity of graduate manager.

Holohan has been active in the business of the Tri-State Class B Conference, and was one of the original school managers to form the circuit, which includes besides Duquesne, Geneva, Bethany, Waynesburg, Thiel and Westminster. He has served a term as secretary of the Conference.

The present student manager has been in a great measure responsible for Duquesne's rise in Tri-State and Eastern athletics to the position it now occupies. His fair and square dealings with other schools with which Duquesne has had relations has won for the Dukes valuable recognition.

THREE-SPORT MATCH AT BRACKENRIDGE

One of the most unique matches of the year, baseball and archery vs. golf, between three stars at each game, is being played over the links of the Brackenridge Heights Golf Club this afternoon. Honus Wagner, at one time king-pin in baseball, and Jim Jiles of Beechview, a former national archery champion, are playing with Ben Loeffler, local pro, at their respective games. Honus is batting his ball around, Jiles is using his bow and arrow and Loeffler is socking the pill with his hickories. The low score will win. They started at 2:50 o'clock.

SPEAKING of SPORTS by HARRY KECK SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

and, finally, the last day of the series, he tried to smile his way through, approaching the keeper of the pass gate with that "old pal" stall.

"Who are you anyway?" demanded the gateman.

Grasping one arm in an affectionate manner, One Eye said: "Don't you know me, old pal? I'm Connelly."

"Tommy Connolly, the umpire?" queried the gatekeeper.

"No, I'm not the umpire; I've got one good eye, thank goodness."

DON'T be surprised if Pete Latzo, the reformed welterweight, who made matters interesting for Tommy Loughran, the light-heavyweight champion, recently, should defeat Leo Lomski in their 10-round battle in Brooklyn tonight and knock Leo out of bouts with Loughran and Mickey Walker, a couple of titleholders. Leo had Loughran on the floor twice in the first round of a 15-round mix, but couldn't keep him there, and Tommy easily boxed his way to victory. Latzo had Loughran beaten for 10 rounds and tired and lost the last five and the bout. Pete, the former coal miner of Hazelton, Pa., is a combination boxer and rugged fighter who likes to stir up matters, and, unless Lomski knocks him out, he looks like a good bet to grab the decision. Pete has the edge in experience, at least, and possesses the fighting heart to sweep aside Lomski if the latter is not fortunate enough to lay one on his whiskers.

Lomski is no bumski, y'understand, but, although he is the favorite, he'll have to beat Latzo before we'll believe he can do it.

NOTRE DAME'S baseball nine defeated Harvard, 20 to 1, the other day. It seems now that the crack that fair Hah-vahd should trade its faculty for a good running backfield will have to be revised to call for a swap for a good battery.

PRESIDENT MURRAY HULBERT of the A. A. U., will broadcast an appeal for funds for the United States Olympic squad from Station WJZ of the National Broadcasting system at 7:15 o'clock tonight. He may be heard in Pittsburgh through KDKA. President Hulbert has an interesting story to tell the sports lovers, if they will tune in, and when they get through hearing him they ought to loosen up to help make up the quotas of the various sections. The money has to be raised to take our athletes to Amsterdam and bring them back, and the sooner the fund goes over the top the sooner the officials can forget about that end and devote their energies to developing a winning team.

SANDLOT BASEBALL by TOM BIRKS

BELTZHOOVER battled its way into the leadership of the Allegheny County League last evening when the Hite aggregation nosed out Dormont at the South Hills park by a 7-5 score. Dormont had the tying run on the bases, but Jones went to Woods' relief and saved the game.

The Dormont game was a hard-fought battle. Creedy was wild and had few of the breaks. Woods, late of Johnstown, pitched steadily until late in the game, then Dormont started to get to him.

CAPT. Heinie Boll played a big part in the Homewood victory, over Bellevue at Bellevue, his home run in the eighth inning with two of his mates on the sacks, cinched the game. Two wonderful stops on seemingly sure basehits from the bats of Stewart and Art Rooney prevented a Bellevue rally.

THE casual observer, watching the game, came to the conclusion that Johnny Mitchell was left in the box too long. The Homewood sluggers were taking a toe hold on Johnny's slants all through the game, but Lees did not remove Johnny until the eighth frame. It might have been a good move to take the Manchester favorite out when the bases were jammed and Harry Geisler due to hit. However, the Bellevue catcher called for a slow ball and Geisler slammed two of his mates over the pan.

BELLEVUE is another town that evidently does not support a losing ball club. The home folks had very little to enthuse over last evening, and the stands started to get deserted long before the final out was made by Jimmie Durkin.

RUNNING a ball club in the major loop of the district is not going to be accomplished by only having a couple hundred fans in the stands, especially with Homewood, one of the best attractions in the league, providing the opposition. Unless something is stirred up Bellevue is going to be in a bad way. There seems very little fighting spirit either among the officials or the players. One thing that Bellevue alas had, if nothing else, was that old fight. It won them many a ball game.

THERE seems to be quite a feeling in the district that Hilty, the speed ball star, will not be seen in a Bellevue suit this season. The Bellevue officials have stated that Hilty would be available in the near future. That was two weeks ago, since that time he has pitched a nifty game in the Eastern Ohio League.

COMMON gossip has it that another club in the County loop is bartering for his services and prepared to go deeper with the coin of the realm. With this in mind, is it possible that Bellevue will be left holding the bag.

This is quite possible. It has been done in the past and can be done again. At the present time Bellevue could use Hilty, as the rest of the club's pitching staff evidently cannot strike winning ways.

ART ROONEY played the outfield under a terrible handicap, a sprained ankle prevented him making any plays that required any running, but if there is any headier a ball player in the district, bring him along. Rooney was figuring ahead of the play when he let a slow grounder roll through the fence to allow the batter a single under the ground rule. A runner on second had already scored on the play, but Rooney did not field the ball and the runner was brought back to third.

Tex Plays Wild Bears, Cleans Up $64,000

NEW YORK, June 13.—(INS.)—Although the falling stock market was a tragedy for many yesterday, it was quite the reverse for George (Tex) Rickard, the boxing promoter. Today he estimated he had reaped a profit of $64,000 on the day.

"I was playing with the bears," he chuckled. "I've played with the Wild Bull of the Pampas, the Wild Cat of Nebraska, and the Wild Panther of New Orleans, but I never seed anything like the Wild Bears of Wall Street."

DOEG WINS, ADVANCES IN STATE NET PLAY

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—(AP.)—John Doeg, of Santa Monica, Cal., has entered the fifth round in the men's singles of the Pennsylvania and Eastern States tennis tournament at the Merion Cricket Club.

The Californian won two matches, defeating H. M. Brandt, Drexel Institute, 6-1, 6-4, in the third round, and eliminating Joe Olhausen, Penn A. C., 6-4, 8-6, in the fourth round. Only one fourth round match was played.

Survivors of the third round included Ben Gorchakoff, Occidental College; Fritz Mercur, Bethlehem, Pa.; Jack Wright, Canada, and R. Norris Williams, Philadelphia, who is defending his title.

SETS NEW RECORD

CHICAGO, June 13.—(AP.)—A new track record for the seven furlong dash has been made at Arlington Park, the home of the American derby. Crystal Pennant, the last Coffroth Handicap winner, is the holder of the new record at 1:23 4-5.

ALL HIS HEALTH TROUBLES ENDED!

Elderly Homewood Man Claims Ten Herbs Benefited His Whole System.

"I have never got satisfactory results from any medicine until I used Ten Herbs, which ended all my health troubles," was the statement of Mr. Bernerd Meenen, Lincoln Ave., Homewood, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at

MR. BERNERD MEENEN

May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine to crowds of men and women.

"Before taking Ten Herbs, I had a poor appetite, and what little I ate did not seem to do me any good," continued Mr. Meenen, who is 65 years old, and employed by Booth & Flynn, contractors. "Food did not digest properly, but would distress me. I could not get rid of the waste matter that was poisoning my system. No physic seemed to give satisfactory results. I had an extremely nervous feeling all over my body, and could not sleep at night, but would roll and toss by the hour. And, besides, my kidneys had me up seven or eight times a night, and I had pains across my back.

"I heard so many people praising Ten Herbs that I was induced to try it. I found your medicine to be just what I needed. First, my appetite was improved, and gas and bloating disappeared. Then my nerves got stronger so I could sleep more soundly. My bowels have been regulated, and my liver and kidneys are working better. Ten Herbs did not work on one organ alone, but seemed to give my whole system a thorough cleansing. I feel better, and have more energy and ambition. Your medicine has helped me so much that I have induced my mother-in-law to try it, and I am sure that she will get the same good results that I did. I believe that Ten Herbs has the true merits that many suffering people seek."

Many men and women in this section are daily reporting that Ten Herbs benefits and invigorates the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and gives the system a thorough cleansing.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

THEY'LL CALL HIM "MONCY"

BOSTON, June 13.—(AP.)—Fred Monciewicz of Brockton, for four years shortstop on the Boston College baseball team, signed with the Boston Red Sox today. He will join the club at Washington next Tuesday.

PIRATES

his club with four safeties. Six of his Pirate buddies kicked in with three hits each, but Wiz was one up on all these good hitters, so he will have the last word in the fanning bees of the next few days.

Manager Shotton called upon Russell Miller to oppose Kremer, but the International Leaguer was out of the picture in the first before a Pirate had been stopped. Meantime, four Buccos had sunk their steel in the home plate. Out went Bob McGraw, who performed for six rounds before being relieved by Claude Willoughby.

The Pirates piled up seven tallies in the first two rounds through smart and savage clouting. And they pecked away at the enemy hurlers as the battle progressed.

Fred Leach poled out a round-tripper with two on in the first that cheered the small gathering of fans. In the sixth, Don Hurst gave a fine impression of Cy Williams as he dropped a homer in Broad street.

The return to the lineup of Sparky Adams pepped up play of the Buccos especially on the offensive. Fred Brickell continued in left field and was a member of the three-hit club for the afternoon.

W.-J. Jinx Hits Buddy Overend On Links

The jinx that always seems to crop out and make life miserable for Carnegie Technites whenever a Tartan team plays Washington and Jefferson is still chasing the fellows who run athletics at the Schenley Park Institute. Last Monday at the Pittsburgh Field Club Buddy Overend, who guides the destinies of things athletic at Carnegie Tech, and Andy Kerr, athletic director at W. and J., played a friendly little game of the great outdoor sport. Buddy, who is given credit for ability to swing a mean set of clubs, admits that in his little affair with Andy, he played the worst game of golf in nine years. And he blames it all on the old W. and J. jinx. When the scores were totalled, it was almost unanimously agreed that Andy had won by a score of 101 to 102. All of which bodes ill for Carnegie's chances of knocking off the Presidents in football next year.

KIDNAPED BANK CASHIER SLAIN, BODY FOUND

FOURTH DEATH IN KANSAS HOLDUP

LIBERAL, Kas., June 13.—(AP.)—The body of a man identified as E. A. Kessinger, who was kidnaped in the holdup of the First National Bank of Lamar, Col., May 23, was found in an abandoned shack near here late yesterday. He had been shot to death.

Kessinger, assistant cashier of the bank, was abducted by the four desperadoes who robbed the institution and killed A. N. Parrish, president, and his son, John. Escaping into Western Kansas the men later kidnaped Dr. W. W. Wineinger, of Dighton, Kan., and shot him to death. Presumably the physician was lured away from home to attend one of the bandits wounded in an exchange of shots in the bank.

Loot obtained in the holdup amounted to $10,000 in cash and $76,000 in bonds.

Numerous clues have been followed by officers engaged in the hunt for the killers, but the men thus far have not been captured.

Burns Fatal

MILDRED BAUER

The purchase of a penny box of matches proved fatal to Mildred Bauer, 3, 521 Mary street, Millvale. Her clothing ignited as she was playing with them near her home. She died a short time later in St. Francis Hospital.

PITT CONFERS HONORARY DEGREES

The one hundred forty-second June commencement of the University of Pittsburgh, in Syria Mosque this morning, was featured by the conferring of many degrees and the awarding of scholarship prizes.

Honorary degrees were conferred upon Dr. William J. Holland, former chancellor of the university and director emeritus of Carnegie Museum, who was also the commencement speaker; Howard N. Eavenson, consulting engineer; George M. Gadsby, engineer and president of the West Penn Power Company; Kenneth C. Heald, staff geologist, Gulf Oil Company; Adolph Ziefle, dean of the Oregon Agricultural College School of Pharmacy, and Benjamin Preston Clark, trustee of Cambridge Theological Seminary, and a leading citizen of Boston.

Two students at the university, Marjorie Kimball and George Hall, both in the college, were graduated "with highest honors;" 11 were graduated "with high honor." They included: David Buerger, Sylvan Libson, Benjamin Rosen, Andrew Schmeltz, Charles Reinherr, Dorothy Albert, Julia Miller, Muriel Hillard, Anna Rabinovitz, Mary Reeser and Gertrude Swift.

Graduating "with honor" were Campbell Stanton Belfour, Leonard Alvin Civill, Samuel Levinkind, Maurice Louik, Jean W. Gilson, Jean Webster Hay, Mary C. Henderson, Hyman Hoffman, John Knipp, Milton W. Golomb, Bianca Rachel Lia, Joseph Louis Svirbely, Myles Chester MacGough, Warren Riley, Roy Albright, Robert Perry, Richard P. Snyder, Harold W. Wamhoff, William Earle Brinker, Jr., Milton D. Crane, James Erskine Hamilton, Thomas Kelley, Louis Feldstein, Theodore Frey, William Markus, Hensy Rothenberg, Leah Bluestone, Rebecca Rosenbaum, Katherine Olivia Schucker, Elizabeth Becker, Ruth Thompson, Ethel Woodburn and Dorothy Koch.

Have a hobby in life and be strong of heart and full of courage, Dr. Holland told the 1,000 members of the graduating class. He traced briefly the changes that have come about in science, politics, education and life in Pittsburgh since his arrival more than half a century ago.

Among his words of advice to the students were:

"Banish fear. As one who has come a long way in life, let me bid you be strong and full of courage. Learn, if you have not learned the lesson already, to be patient and to wait. Do not be impatient if success does not immediately crown your efforts in your chosen vocations.

"Learn to recognize opportunity when it arrives. Cultivate cheerfulness. And while performing the tasks of life to which you may be professionally called, have a hobby. We need diversity in our occupations."

MARLIER SEEN AS C. OF C. AIR GROUP HEAD

Raymond M. Marlier, architect, and for two years president of the Aero Club of Pittsburgh, will be named chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Aeronautics Committee, it was rumored today in aviation circles.

At the Chamber of Commerce it was declared that no announcement of new committee appointments would be made until after tomorrow's meeting of the board of directors.

Mr. Marlier, it was indicated, will succeed Col. Harry C. Fry, Jr., chairman of the committee since its organization in 1926. Mr. Marlier has been vice-chairman. During the war Mr. Marlier was in the Army Air Service. He designed the Langley Beacon memorial to pioneers of aviation which is to be erected at Pittsburgh's historic Point. He also has been active in aiding the Chamber of Commerce committee in selecting a new airport for Pittsburgh.

ATTACK SUSPECT SHOT WHILE FLEEING POLICE

Sought for an alleged attack on his wife, Ernest Lewis, Negro, 34, of 327 Braddock avenue, East Pittsburgh, was shot in the jaw last night when he attempted to flee while being questioned by police. Mrs. Emma Lewis, 30, the wife, was reported in serious condition today from injuries received when she was either pushed or jumped from a second story window of her home.

NEW ST. CLAIRSVILLE SCHOOL HEAD NAMED

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 13.—O. O. Crawford, of Nelsonville, O., yesterday was named by the local school board to succeed W. E. Arthur as superintendent of St. Clairsville schools.

PITTSBURGHERS STILL IN DANCE

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, N. Y., June 13.—As the first "International Dance Marathon" swung into the fourth day, the Pittsburgh entries continue to lead the field. Of the 135 starters Sunday night, 54 remained in the field at 9 o'clock this morning, at the end of 58 hours. In the 81 couples that have passed from the contest, not one was from Pittsburgh.

John and Stella Cappella, brother and sister from Swissvale; Tommy Nolan and Anna King, Eddie Leonard and Marianne Jacque, Edward J. McGovern and Mae Farland, his New York partner; K. D. Pihakis and Maria Wood, William (Shorty-Cut) Bush and Mary Promitis, the Lawrenceville lassie partner of the former Pyle runner; C. L. McMillen and Elsie Shell, Green Cab entries, and Robert Schade and Rea MacGregor, look almost as strong as when the event opened. These Pittsburgh couples look like the "best bets."

Bush and the Promitis girl were winners during the night of a $25 mile "sprint" given by Jack Bolger, former Pittsburgher, now conducting a night club.

Eddie McGovern, Pennsylvania Railroad boy, and Mae Farland, pretty French maid of New York, received a large basket of flowers from admirers of the team from uptown New York.

Charlie McMillen and Elsie Shell received a telegram of encouragement with wishes for best luck from Gay Collins and Myrtle Lydick, of North Highland avenue, East Liberty, early this morning. The message cheered the couple.

A New York restaurant owner has offered Eddie McGovern and the Farland girl $100 if they continue in the contest for a hundred hours. He has a $200 bet on them and will split his winnings.

Capella's black cat that was born in Motor Square Garden during the last marathon, is in ew York with the brother and sister and occupies the same "tent" with them. Occasionally the team will take the cat for a tour around the Garden floor on their shoulder.

Last night's attendance was the largest of any preceding night, but not up to expectations. Tonight, the New York "wise men" say, the people will start to pour into the spacious Garden. During the night Harry Gellis and Helen Irwin of Altoona, Pa., gave up the race as did the Johnstown team, Tony Cardone and Carrie Rose. Promoter Crandall expects that the contest will last over Sunday and has arranged to handle capacity crowds the latter part of the week.

Futility of Some Fame, Fay King's Theme

PAPER
DISCOURAGED SINGER TRIES SUICIDE
THEY USUALLY ONLY REGRET THE SUCCESSES THEY MISSED AND RARELY APPRECIATE THE FAILURES THEY HAVE AVOIDED!
IN EVERY SUCCESS SHE READS ABOUT, SHE SEES THE SUCCESS SHE MIGHT HAVE BEEN!
HOME SWEET HOME
"IT'S BETTER TO BE A JENNY LIND TO THOSE WHO LOVE YOU, THAN TO BE JUST ANOTHER STRUGGLING SOPRANO TO THE WORLD
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

MANY ambitious persons have had to, for some reason or another, give up the fight for fame.

But they never fail to read in every success in their lines the success they might have had.

All their lives they regret reading of what should have been their fame, their fortune, their applause.

They never seem to feel that the failures they read of also might have been their fate.

However, many talented ones who were appreciated and applauded in the smaller circles that loved them have entered the bigger world to have their hearts broken by a cold reception and scathing criticism.

It is a fair criticism, perhaps, from the viewpoint of those qualified to compare lesser gifts with greater, but talents need not be the greatest to give much pleasure and happiness in the world.

Some singers who have been acclaimed by the critics do not register too well with the folks who prefer the sweet songs of some local singer they love.

I have been bored by the technical perfection of some artist when I have been soothed and inspired by some sweeter singer whose God-given gifts are more natural and real!

The real mission of music is to make the world happier. A simple song, sung soft and low, can do this as well as the opera singer.

TIETBOHL NAMED HEAD OF DUNBAR TWP. HIGH

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 12.—William E. Tietbohl has been reelected principal of the Dunbar Township High School for his twelfth year.

JAIL-BREAKER GIVEN 12-YEAR SENTENCE

James Watson, 26, Negro, of 70 Crawford street, who escaped from the county jail on May 27 by scaling a wall, pleaded guilty before Judge Miles I. Potter and was sentenced to the penitentiary for one to two years on the escape charge and five to 10 years for entering a building. Watson was being detained in jail for entering the home of Hyman Slavkin, 2019 Webster avenue, when he escaped. He was at liberty only a few hours.

BUGS BAER Says

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service.)

KANSAS CITY, June 13.—Convention was called to order by Butler, who should have known better.

Then the disorder began.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The singing of the Star Spangled Banner was led by Schumann - Heink with nobody following.

If singing will save the country, it looks like a Democratic year.

Senator Fess was elected temporary chairman and made the keyhole speech.

After listening for an hour we realized why Coolidge vetoes so many Senatorial debates.

Judge Landis is in town supporting the rural relief bill. The judge says the Boston outfield makes him a farmer.

Bellboys complain that the delegates are sleeping with their shoes on.

And putting their badges outside the door to be shined.

Nobody can claim to know what is going on.

If knowledge is power, then everybody is back in the repair shop.

Looks like the farmers had to stay home to prevent the neighbor's cattle from taking a straw vote on his hay.

Teddy Roosevelt, Jr., ran around the convention.

But couldn't find any politician of junior size.

The convention was opened with a flashlight picture. We saw the proof and it made the affair look like a convention of Lon Chaneys.

After having wasted Tuesday, the convention adjourned until Wednesday.

A convention is a game where everybody gets on base.

Five farmers actually got into Kansas City today in their flivvers.

Not one of them seemed to know that Henry Ford is making a new car.

In spite of the proposed changes, it looks as if the convention will continue to struggle along with the busted-down platform of 1852.

If all the new planks were adopted, it wouldn't be a platform. It would be a covered bridge.

Way it looks now, the farmers will be lucky if they even get one rainstorm during the next administration.

BIDS FOR DUQUESNE VIADUCT ARE OPENED

Bids for the east abutment, filling approaches, paving of bridge and approaches of Duquesne viaduct, were opened today by County Commissioners. Pitt Construction Company was low at $165,559. Delmar Electric Company submitted low bid for wiring the span, $6,749.

THE PACKARD SIX is available in a wide range of body types priced from $2275. The Five-Passenger Sedan, at Detroit is $2285

The Packard Six Sedan now costs $49.70 less

Removal of War Tax lowers prices

WHEN President Coolidge signed the bill removing the Federal war taxes from automobiles, he automatically reduced Packard prices from $49.48 on the Six 5-passenger Phaeton to $95.55 on the Eight Custom Sedan-Limousine. For Packard, of course, at once passed on these tax savings to its customers.

These are substantial savings—amounting in fact to more than enough to purchase your spare tire, tube and cover.

These new price reductions serve to impress again the remarkably low cost of the Packard Six. We want you to realize that the Packard Six is priced as low as $2275 at the factory—that the distinguished 5-passenger Sedan, the most popular of all models, lists at but $2285.

May we give you an estimate on your used car based on the highest figure for which we can hope to sell it? If it is of average value it will make or exceed the down payment on a Packard. The balance you may pay on terms you will find easy to meet.

How to Develop Pride in Your City's Manufactures

—By B. C. FORBES—

BALTIMORE, June 12.—Here's a suggesion for other cities: Products Week was recently celebrated. Every progressive merchant in the city devoted his window to Baltimore-made products. A few backward-looking storekeepers sneered at the idea. The people would not be interested. It would be a waste of valuable show-space. And it would be free advertising for manufacturers.

The results astonished even the most optimistic. Crowds thronged the streets every day. Visitors by the thousand came from nearby localities. At many points interest in exhibits was so great that sidewalks were blocked. This was especially true where manufacturers staged actual demonstrations—by employes and machinery—of their manufacturing processes.

On all sides, amazement was expressed over the extraordinary extent and variety of things made within their own city. It was an education and a revelation. Many windows carried decorated placards giving facts and figures about the exhibitor's operations.

Sales went up, but, much more important, Baltimore Products Week sold Baltimore to its own citizens. They caught a truer picture, a better conception, a larger vision of Baltimore as a city of manufactures.

FORTUNATELY, Baltimore is not a one-industry city. It has more than 2,000 manufacturing plants making more than 2,000 different commodities. It ranks seventh among the nation's industrial centers.

You can understand how diversified an exhibition it was possible to stage in the city's thousands of shop windows. Other cities having a wide variety of manufacturers could profitably adopt this practical idea, valuable in immediate results and still more valuable in its effect on local civic pride. Most of us get into such a daily routine, such a rut, that we rarely ever think of visiting any local plant. And most manufacturers regard their operations as too commonplace to interest the public. Baltimore's experience proves that people are interested in seeing things they have never seen before, provided the things can be brought under their eyes.

WHILE Baltimore has not become a towering center for newer industries, it has not recently been standing still by any means.

Its manufacturing industries employ more than 85,000 workers producing approximately $700,000,000 worth annually. Its industrial payroll annually equals almost a dollar for every man, woman and child in the United States.

It has the largest American sugar refinery on tidewater, the largest spice factory in the country. It makes more straw hats than any other city, New York alone excepted. It has the world's largest plant for manufacturing sulphuric acid and phosphates, the world's largest tin decorating plant. It leads the world in manufacturing sealing devices and bottle stoppers. Its men's clothing industry employs 10,000 workers, its metal industries between 15,000 and 20,000.

IN meat packing and slaughtering Baltimore ranks tenth in the whole country, and ninth in the manufacturer of candy products. It is one of only three cities in America which knows how to make bells and chimes. It is one of the leading cities in the manufacture of pianos.

It has the largest copper refining plant in the world, refining approximately 20 per cent of the world's supply. The largest steel plant on tidewater (Schwab's) is located within 10 miles of the heart of Baltimore. Baltimore is the largest fertilizer-producing center in America. It is famous for its fine printing, engraving and lithographing, having been a pioneer in the latter.

The city claims the honor of having been the first in the United States to establish an industrial bureau to bring about the scientific location of manufacturing plants.

THE modest state of Maryland leads the country in tomato packing, with Baltimore putting up about half the total. Only five states exceed it in the canning of vegetables, fruits and oysters—the excellence of Chesapeake Bay seafood is known far and wide.

Last year was a banner one in attracting new industries. The relatively low cost of living here doubtless appeals to those seeking locations for plants. The National Industrial Conference Board of New York has issued a comprehensive analysis covering 31 of our leading cities. Using 100 as the average cost of living in the United States, the cost in Baltimore is only 84.8, the lowest of all. The only other cities where the cost is under 90 per cent are given as Richmond, Scranton, Cincinnati and New Orleans.

The new Baltimore delights to show and to speak of its record and prospects as a port—last year it ranked second to New York as a foreign trade tonnage port.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, June 13.—Unexpected higher quotations at Liverpool gave the wheat market here an early upward trend today. Offerings at Liverpool were reported to be scarce, and previous sellers becoming buyers, indicating a general oversold condition. Opening ⅝c off, to ½c up, Chicago wheat afterward scored moderate gains all around. Corn and oats were easy, with corn starting at ½c to ⅝c advance, but later showing declines. Provisions displayed firmness.

At noon, wheat was 1⅛c to 1⅜c net lower and corn 1c to 2⅜c off.

In connection with Liverpool wheat price advances today which were reflected here, an official summary was at hand saying that subnormal temperatures prevailed in Northern and Eastern European areas, and that cereal crops in general were backward. It was added that buyers would respond readily to unfavorable American crop developments. Meanwhile indications pointed to a fair export business in North American wheat overnight.

Purchasing of some new crop No. 2 hard winter wheat for shipment to Europe from Galveston during the first half of August attracted notice today. The price paid was stated to be 3½c a bushel over the quotations for Chicago September delivery. Reports that early seeded wheat in the Judith Basin, Mont., had retrograded badly and that many fields of spring wheat had started to lose color were also given attention.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

Honolulu Host To Japanese Princess

HONOLULU, June 13.—(AP.)—Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to the United States and his party, including his daughter, Miss Setsu, who is to wed Prince Chichibu, brother of the Japanese emperor, in September, were in Honolulu yesterday during the few hours their vessel laid over here.

The distinguished visitors had a busy day. They were greeted at the pier in true Hawaiian style, which meant that much leis and music was on the program. During the morning they were taken on a sightseeing trip, then they were guests of honor at a luncheon given at Gov. W. R. Farrington's residence. A public reception was held during the afternoon at the Japanese consulate. The party departed for Japan late in the day.

STOCK MARKET STAGES BRISK RECOVERY

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—Responding to the placing of large supporting orders and the buying of "bargain hunters," stock prices made a brisk recovery today after the disastrous break of yesterday. A few soft spots cropped out here and there, but the general trend was upward. Standard industrials and rails rallied 1 to 5 points and several of the specialties were marked up 6 to nearly 10 points.

Trading which crossed the 5,000,000-share mark yesterday for the first time in stock exchange history, was only moderate in volume today.

Call money renewed at 6 per cent with a fair supply available in view of the heavy mid-month demand for funds.

While the morning rally helped to revive confidence, considerable uneasiness was still apparent with a rather widespread tendency on the part of many traders to lighten holdings on the rallies. R. H. Macy and National Tea, which did not sell yesterday, changed hands today at prices 49 and 22 points, respectively, below their previous quotations. Rossia Insurance broke 15 points to 145, but made up its loss by early afternoon. Radio opened 5 points higher at 176, but encountered rather stiff resistance around that level and was pushed back several points.

The recovery was stimulated, however, by bullish news developments; confirmation of reports that negotiations were pending for a merger of the Pierce-Arrow and Studebaker Automobile Companies, and an advance in Pennsylvania crude prices, the first since December, 1927. Weekly Steel Trade Review reports a further falling off in production with new business light in volume.

High priced specialties led the rally. Case Threshing Machine ran up 9 points, Curtiss Aeroplane 7, Pierce Arrow preferred 6, International Telephone and Wright Aeronautical 6 each, and American Express, Allied Chemical, Adams Express, American Linseed, American Telephone and National Biscuit 5 points or more. Among the many issues to sell 3 to 4 points higher were General Motors, Montgomery-Ward, Sears Roebuck, American International, New York Central, Union Pacific and Consolidated Gas.

STRONGER TONE NOTED ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

LONE STAR GAS SNAPS BACK

A steady to firm tone was noted on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange in the early session today, the list here reflecting the firmer tendency in New York where the heavy selling of the past week appeared to have been halted, temporarily, at least.

In a few instances some lower figures were recorded here shortly after the opening, but support was good and only small amounts of stock came out on the initial dips. Lone Star sagged back to 49 but snapped back later, while Arkansas Gas common sold under 3 in the early dealings, but firmed up in short order. The preferred did not break through the $7 level, where it has been meeting strong support for several days.

Scattered transactions in the miscellaneous manufacturing division showed only minor changes from the previous prices and in no case was there any evidence of pressure or forced liquidation.

NEW RECORD IN STEEL SEEN

NEW YORK, June 13.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

Steel buyers are increasingly cautious as mill output continues to decline. The opening of books for third quarter in finished products has found buyers unresponsive, and new business, as a rule, is too light to develop further changes in current prices.

The recent announcement of a price of 1.90c a lb., Pittsburgh, on plates, shapes and bars for next quarter has not yet had the expected effect of driving in heavier specifications on current contracts.

The drop of 455,311 tons in the unfilled orders of the Steel Corporation in May, is a better measure of the changed psychology of buyers than of the trend of consumption. Early in the year, when prices were advancing, users had an incentive to anticipate their requirements. Today, hand-to-mouth buying is again the rule. Mill backlogs are being reduced, but operations remain at a high level. Ingot production in the greater Pittsburgh district ranges from 70 to 75 per cent, against 70 per cent a year ago. It is evident that mill operations not only are maintaining their lead over last year, but also over 1926, and little doubt remains that there will be a new high half-year total by a fair margin.

Sheet bars have been sold at the equivalent of $33, Pittsburgh, a decline of $1 a ton. Billets and slabs are down $1 a ton to $32.

An inquiry for 6,000 tons of basic pig iron in the Pittsburgh district is said to have brought out a price of not less than $16 Valley.

Both of The Iron Age composite prices remain unchanged at last week's levels, that for finished steel at 2.341c a lb., and that for pig iron at $17.23 a ton—$1.73 lower than a year ago.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, June 13.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 5 to 8 points. Overnight selling brought in by the weakness of yesterday afternoon was absorbed by trade buying and covering, combined with local buying for a rally from yesterday's low prices.

Fairly steady Liverpool cables, and reports of further showers in the south, encouraged buying, which sent prices up to 20.35 for October or 14 points net higher. The volume of business tapered off somewhat on the advance, but the market held steady at the end of the first hour.

Private cables said local liquidation had been absorbed by continental and Bombay buying on a scale down in Liverpool and larger cloth demand from India was maintained, but demand from China was poor.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—Under continued liberal offerings of duty free sugars, the raw sugar market declined 1-32c to the basis of 4.24c delivered, the lowest price this year. Sales on the decline consisted of 14,000 bags of Philippines nearby and 15,000 bags of Porto Rican, prompt shipment to local refiners, with additional quantities available at the same level.

The raw sugar futures market opened unchanged to 3 points higher on covering and commission house buying, apparently inspired by cables from Cuba stating that President Machado had signed the decree segregating 300,000 tons of sugar out of the original allowance for the United States for shipment to European countries. The demand, however, was soon supplied and following the call prices reacted under renewed long liquidation and some hedge selling by European interests, particularly of the new crop deliveries. All the upturn was lost, with prices at midday 1 to 2 points net lower and at new low records for the season. The selling seemed to be inspired by the decline in the spot market and weakness abroad.

No changes were noted in the refined situation, with prices ranging from 6.05 to 6.10c for fine granulated. The trade continues to draw against old contracts and shows little disposition to place new orders owing to the continued unsettled feeling in the raw market.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

THE ownership of department stores is rapidly passing into the hands of the general public. The movement has been going on throughout the country for several years. It has gained special impetus in Pittsburgh in the past month with the change of the Joseph Horne Company and Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc., from close corporations to organizations whose stocks are widely held.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made yesterday that a large block of Kaufmann's common stock will be offered for sale by Goldman, Sachs & Company who have purchased the stock from an estate. A month ago 40,000 shares of Joseph Horne Company common stock was offered at $38 a share. Over a year ago the Kaufmann & Baer Company passed from private ownership to that of a publicly owned corporation when it was bought by Gimbel Brothers.

EXPERIENCE has shown that every industry which has given the public, and particularly its customers, a chance to share in its ownership has materially benefited. The individual who shares in the profits of a business gives it his personal patronage and is a potential salesman for it. Year by year corporations are realizing more fully the truth of this and many are now regularly reminding their stockholders of the part that they can play in furthering the enterprises in which they have an interest.

IN the cases of Horne's and Kaufmann's the same managements which have built up the enterprises to their present state will remain in control of the business. There is romance behind these two stores which have grown with Pittsburgh and have developed year by year to reach their present place in the city's business.

JOSEPH HORNE started 79 years ago with a notion store in a single room at 79 Market street. He was joined later in partnership by C. B. Shea and A. P. Burchfield as partners. The sons and grandsons of these men have successively managed the business and year by year increased the store's importance in Pittsburgh life. Horne's sales are now over $20,000,000 a year.

KAUFMANN'S is younger but has a similar story. With a capital of $1,500 it was started 57 years ago. It has never had an unprofitable year. Sales have grown to $20,000,000 a year.

BOTH organizations are well managed and profitable.

In the [illegible] ended January 31, 1928, Joseph Horne reported net profit of [illegible]6,396, which was equivalent [illegible]3.23 a share earned on the 240,0[illegible] shares of common stock after deducting dividend requirements on the $7,500,000 of 6 per cent preferred.

Kaufmann's [illegible] the calendar year of 1927 shows [illegible] net income of $1,668,280, which was equivalent to $21.08 a share earned on the 75,000 shares of [illegible] par value common stock, [illegible] deducting dividends on [illegible],400 of 7 per cent pre[illegible]

The [illegible] common stock will be [illegible] for one basis. [illegible] stock paid [illegible]ually, a very [illegible] comparison [illegible]

TH[illegible] company is [illegible]0,000 for im[illegible] store building. [illegible] organization's [illegible] most of this will be [illegible] current operating ex[illegible] at the earnings report[illegible] this year will be reduced by [illegible] expenditures which are [illegible] capital investments.

CURRENT sales of department stores are fairly good. The unseasonable weather has curtailed buying of many lines. There has been some activity in men's and women's wearing apparel and dry goods. Sales of shoes have been poor. Straw hat buying has not been encouraged by the recent week of rain. This condition, however, is only temporary.

THE Blaw-Knox Company is operating its plant close to capacity. Current sales are in large volume. Several new products are in preparation. Reports of an impending split up of the stock are being heard on Fourth Avenue but these lack official confirmation. A rumor to the effect that negotiations are under way to merge Blaw-Knox with Truscon Steel have been denied by the management. Blaw-Knox manufactures equipment for open hearth and high temperature furnaces, transmission towers, steel forms for concrete construction, standardized steel buildings clamshell buckets, forge and hammer welded products and construction equipment.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Selling Pressure Absent.

Urgent selling pressure against the general market was absent today and the tone of the general list was distinctly improved. The Street believes yesterday's break will relieve the credit tension to a considerable extent, but there were no estimates as to how much the readjustment will clip off the loan totals. The liquidation of 2,000,000 shares in the last hour yesterday appears to have been the high spot of the movement temporarily, and there was a noticeable let-down in volume of transactions today. Yesterday's total of 5,193,000 shares sets a record for all time on the exchange. The tape was one hour and 54 minutes late in recording the sales, principally because of the avalanche of selling which hit the market in the last hour. Going into the last hour the tape was approximately one hour late, but it was almost two hours after trading had ceased that the last sale of the day was recorded.

Slump Not Political—Mellon.

The slump on the New York exchanges, in the opinion of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, is not connected in any way with developments at the Republican convention, Mr. Mellon stated today in an interview with a representative of the Wall Street News. "That break," Mr. Mellon said, "came before any announcement by the Pennsylvania delegation that it would switch to Hoover was made." Mr. Mellon said that a break of the kind could be expected when activity and speculation reaches such proportions as recently. Secretary Mellon, however, would not say that prices of stocks quoted either on the New York Stock Exchange or the Curb could be considered unduly high, or that stock speculation had assumed undue proportions.

Pennsylvania Crude Oil Raised.

The South Penn Oil Company has advanced the price of Pennsylvania crude oil 25 cents a barrel, the first upward movement in crude in this district since early last year. The new prices are: Bradford district oil in National Transit lines, $3.05 a barrel; Bradford oil in New York Transit lines, $3.05; Pennsylvania grade oil in National Transit lines, $2.90; Pennsylvania oil in Eureka lines, $2.85; Pennsylvania oil in Buckeye lines, $2.65 (up 30 cents); Pennsylvania oil in Southwest Pennsylvania lines, $2.90. Keister grade oil in National Transit lines was raised 10 cents to $1.20 a barrel; Cabell grade oil in Eureka lines 10 cents to $1.45, and Somerset oil in Cumberland lines 10 cents to $1.55. Ragland and Corning crudes remain unchanged at 95 cents and $1.45, respectively.

Favorable Car-Loading Report.

The Decoration Day holiday intervened to cut car loading totals down to $934,214 cars for the week ended June 2, a decrease of 86,702 cars from the preceding week, but an increase of 22,704 cars over the corresponding week last year. The increase over last year is the most favorable general business sign for some time, as the gain is the largest so far recorded this year and attests the contentions of several observers that the recovery from the recent business depression is in full swing and will see distribution of goods at normal levels by mid-year.

Willys Action Postponed.

Willys-Overland Company directors have deferred action on resuming the common dividend until June 21. No payment has been made since November, 1920. The regular quarterly $1.75 preferred dividend was declared, payable July 2 to record of June 25.

Treasury Issue Snapped Up.

Total subscriptions for the new short-time Treasury certificates to be issued June 15 were announced to be $992,363,500. The government will allot against this total certificates amounting to $428,148,000, or less than 50 per cent of the total subscribed for. The certificates will go out in two classes, one a 4 per cent issue maturing December 15, next, of which the government will issue $216,331,500, while the balance will be represented by a 3¾ per cent issue maturing June 19, next year, the total issue of which will be $211,766,500.

Studebaker-Pierce Rumors.

Wall Street's newest in automobile mergers is a combination of Studebaker Corporation and the Pierce Arrow Motor Car Company, officers of which were said to be conferring with New York bankers. Such a combination would create a company with assets of about $160,000,000, and would be a fourth great motor car manufacturing organization. Negotiations for a merger of the Pierce Arrow and Jordan companies were said to be definitely off.

Northern Pipe Capital Cut.

Stockholders of the Northern Pipe Line Company have voted to decrease the capital stock from $4,000,000 to $1,000,000 and the par value of the shares from $100 to $50. This paves the way for directors to authorize capital repayment of probably $50 in cash.

When Bargain Day Comes.

When bottom is reached, there will be the usual stampede, with sellers far in the majority; but the Rockefellers, Bakers, Morgans, Mellons and other big financiers will be there as usual, looking for bargains. The best time to buy stocks is when they are cheap and every one wants to sell. Men who have amassed millions through constructive effort know values, and are not interested when things are selling beyond intrinsic worth. They buy stocks as they would buy any other commodity, and always have credit with which to average in case the things they buy slump a little more. Patience has amassed many big fortunes.

Valley Operations Unchanged.

Mill operating schedules in the Youngstown district are practically unchanged from last week, with operating rates ranging from 70 to 75 per cent for the independents and Steel Corporation subsidiaries. Tin mill operations are averaging between 90 and 95 per cent of capacity, with American Sheet and Tin Plate Company at 92 per cent, unchanged. Can makers are busy making up stocks without letup. The $5.25 price still prevails.

Scrap Market Weak.

Steel scrap prices in the Pittsburgh district continued weak, with no movement. Heavy melting No. 1 has dropped 25 cents a ton, quotations ranging from $14.25 to $15.00 a ton. New York dealers in iron and steel scrap have reduced their buying prices 50 cents a ton on many grades. Producers of lapweld pipe in the Youngstown district, chiefly National Tube, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Republic Iron and Steel, are said to be facing keener competition from seamless tubes and electrically welded pipe. Shipments of pipe by valley makers are low at present.

New Westinghouse Director.

Charles A. Terry, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, was elected a director at the annual meeting, filling the vacancy on the board caused by the death of Gen. Guy E. Tripp. Stockholders re-elected other retiring directors and ratified a change in the by-laws, making the fiscal year of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company conform with the calendar year instead of ending on March 31. The annual meeting of stockholders in the future will be held on the second Wednesday in April instead of the second Wednesday in June.

"Business conditions," President E. M. Herr stated, "have not changed materially in the past several months. There is perhaps at present a slight droop in volume, but this is offset by indications that as soon as the presidential nominating conventions are over, the volume will increase."

Employees Bought 95,082 Steel.

Employes of the United States Steel Corporation subscribed for only 95,082 shares of the 100,000 shares of common stock offered to them at $145 a share, it was revealed today. Subscriptions were received from 50,270 employes. When the offering was made in 1927 at $122 a share, 62,145 employes took 132,846 shares, while in 1926 when the price was $136 a share, 74,351 shares were subscribed for.

May Power Consumption Off.

Consumption of electrical energy by 3,000 large manufacturing plants in the United States in May was 0.2 per cent under the rate for April and 1.3 per cent below that for May last year, Electrical World reports. This is the first time since last September that industrial activity, as measured by consumption of electricity, dropped below that of the same month in the previous year.

Rubber Imports Lower.

Importations of crude rubber into the United States in May declined to 32,883 tons from 36,569 in May last year, and for five months of 1928 to 186,705 tons from 193,656 in the same period of 1927, the Rubber Association of America reports.

Seeking Precedents.

Because the reaction has been so drastic in industrial averages from the high established on June 2, market students have been seeking a precedent on which to judge the immediate future. They have gone back to the decline in February and March, 1926. In that break the average industrial price declined approximately 18 points before sufficient support was forthcoming to bring about a sharp rallying movement. If precendent is followed, therefore, it is assumed that a fair-sized recovery could develop at any time. If the precedent of the February-March, 1926, market continues to be followed it would mean that after a rally a further reaction and still lower levels will occur before a new advance for a prolonged period can get under way. This would mean substantial drops in brokers' loans in the coming weeks.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Mostly all lines of fruit and vegetables were in demand today at the local wholesale produce district. The quotations were about unchanged.

The poultry market was about steady and the demand was fair. Supplies were liberal and the quotations were unchanged.

The butter, egg and cheese markets were steady. No change was made in quotations on these markets.

Car lot supplies were liberal, a total of 668 cars being on track. Included in the arrivals were 4 cars of apples, 9 cabbage, 1 carrots, 20 cantaloupes, 3 cucumbers, 7 celery, 2 lettuce, 1 onions, 1 oranges, 1 peaches, 1 peppers, 2 pineapples, 57 potatoes, 9 strawberries, 2 sweet potatoes, 22 tomatoes, 4 watermelons and 1 plum.

Pledge to the Public

On Used Car Sales

1. Every used car is conspicuously marked with its price in plain figures, and that price, just as the price of our new cars, is rigidly maintained.

2. All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as CERTIFIED CARS have been properly reconditioned, and carry a 30-day guarantee for replacements of defective parts and free service on adjustments.

3. Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for five days, and then, if not satisfied for any reason, turn it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used. (It is assumed that the car has not been damaged in the meantime.)

NO. 326.

AN ORDINANCE — Authorizing and directing the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works, for and in behalf of the City of Pittsburgh, to enter into an Agreement with the County of Allegheny, through its Commissioners, and the Allegheny County Steam Heating Company, wherein permission shall be granted by the City of Pittsburgh and the County of Allegheny to the Allegheny County Steam Heating Company to construct, maintain and operate in the tunnel extending on, over under and across the City-County Building premises, additional steam lines to supply the Grant Building and other buildings located in the vicinity of the City-County Building, and providing for the rental to be paid to the City of Pittsburgh and County of Allegheny, respectively, therefor.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works, for and in behalf of the City of Pittsburgh, shall be and they are hereby authorized and directed to enter into an Agreement with the County of Allegheny, through its Commissioners, and the Allegheny County Steam Heating Company, wherein permission shall be granted by the City of Pittsburgh and the County of Allegheny to the Allegheny County Steam Heating Company to construct, maintain and operate in the tunnel extending on, over, under and across the City-County Building premises, additional steam lines to supply the Grant Building and other buildings located in the vicinity of the City-County Building, to-wit:

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

This Agreement Made this ...... day of .... A. D., 1928, by and between the City of Pittsburgh, a municipal corporation of the State of Pennsylvania, acting in this behalf through Charles H. Kline, Mayor, and Edward G. Lang, Director of the Department of Public Works, party of the first part; the County of Allegheny, of the State of Pennsylvania, through its Commissioners, Joseph G. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and Charles McGovern, party of the second part; and the Allegheny County Steam Heating Company, a corporation, of the City of Pittsburgh, State of Pennsylvania, by its President or Vice President, and attested by its Secretary or Assistant Secretary, being duly authorized thereto, party of the third part; the parties of the first and second part being for convenience hereinafter termed the "City-County" when spoken of collectively, and the party of the third part termed the "Steam Heating Company."

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS—The City-County are joint owners of the City-County Building, located in the City of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on the premises bounded by Grant Street, Diamond Street, Ross Street and Fourth Avenue; and,

WHEREAS—The Steam Heating Company has for some time past been supplying steam for building and water heating to the City-County Building and other municipal buildings in the same vicinity, which steam heat is supplied by steam lines located in the tunnel extending on, under, over and across the entire length of the Diamond Street side and part of the Ross Street side of the City-County Building premises aforesaid; and,

WHEREAS—In order to supply steam to the Grant Building and other building located in the vicinity of the City-County Building, the Steam Heating Company desires to obtain from the City-County the right and permission to construct, maintain and operate in said tunnel such additional steam lines and return piping, together with the necessary facilities, including those required for lighting said tunnel as will enable it to furnish said steam service to said Grant Building and other buildings; it being understood and agreed that such lines will at no time exceed the capacity of the said tunnel; and

WHEREAS—The City-County are willing to grant said right and permission upon the terms and conditions and for the consideration hereinafter set forth:

NOW, THEREFORE—In consideration of the premises and of the mutual covenants and agreements hereinafter set forth, the parties hereto do covenant and agree as follows:

FIRST: The City-County hereby grant to the Steam Heating Company, its successors and assigns, the right to use the tunnel extending on, over, under and across the City-County Building premises now containing the steam lines and return lines of the Steam Heating Company, which tunnel extends along the entire length of Diamond Street side of the City-County Building, and on the Ross Street side for a distance of approximately One Hundred Fourteen feet for the purpose of constructing, operating and maintaining therein such additional steam lines and return piping, together with such facilities, including those required to light said tunnel, as may be necessary in order that the Steam Heating Company may furnish adequate steam service to the Grant Building, City of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and buildings in the vicinity, according to the present capacity of the said tunnel, together with the right, at all reasonable times, to enter upon the portion of the premises of the City-County Building occupied by said tunnel for the purpose of constructing, maintaining, repairing, renewing, replacing and finally removing said steam lines and facilities or any steam lines and facilities constructed in substitution thereof, together with the right to connect the steam lines and facilities so to be constructed in said tunnel with continuations of said lines and facilities to be constructed in conduits leading from the City-County Building premises at such points as may be necessary in order to provide steam service to the Grant Building and other buildings in the vicinity.

Second: In consideration whereof the Steam Heating Company agrees with the City-County as follows:

(a) To pay to the City-County a total rental of Three Hundred ($300.00) Dollars per annum, that is to say, One Hundred Fifty ($150.00) Dollars per annum to the City of Pittsburgh, and One Hundred Fifty ($150.00) Dollars per annum to the County of Allegheny, payable in advance, beginning October 1, 1928;

(b) To be solely responsible for and to indemnity and save harmless the City-County, and each of them, from and against any and all damages to persons or property, including employes and property of the City-County, resulting from or arising out of the use by the Steam Heating Company of said tunnel pursuant to the grant aforesaid and/or from or out of the presence, operation and/or maintenance of said steam lines and facilities, in said tunnel of the City-County Building, occasioned by negligence on the part of the Steam Heating Company.

Third: The parties hereto agree that the rights heretofore granted and the annual rental to be paid in consideration thereof shall continue in force and effect until terminated by the City-County, or either of them, or the Steam Heating Company giving one year's written notice to the other of its desire to terminate this Agreement, at the expiration of which time all rights and obligations hereunder shall cease and determine, and the Steam Heating Company shall, at the expiration of said time, at its own proper cost and expense, have removed its steam pipes and facilities from said tunnel, and it shall leave the tunnel in as good condition as it was at the beginning of the new installation.

This Agreement as relates to the City of Pittsburgh is made by and in pursuance of the authority of Ordinance No. .... approved ....and as to the County of Allegheny, by a Resolution adopted at a meeting of its Commissioners on the ..... day of .... 1928.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF this Agreement is signed and executed in triplicate, in the name of the City of Pittsburgh and for the City of Pittsburgh, party of the first part, by Charles H. Kline, Mayor, and Edward G. Lang, Director of the Department of Public Works, by virtue of the directions of the Act of Assembly in such case made and provided, and the seal of said City of Pittsburgh is by the Mayor hereto affixed; and in the name of the County of Allegheny and for the County of Allegheny, party of the second part, by the Allegheny County Commissioners, Joseph G. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and Charles McGovern; and by the Allegheny County Steam Heating Company, party of the third part, the day and year first above mentioned.

FILM FAN FODDER

Gloria Swanson as "Sadie Thompson."

By Goldie Gush

(The Film Fan's Friend)

HOLLYWOOD—"What do I think of your last picture?" I asked Gloria Swanson, when I found her putting up canned fruit in her palatial, yet simple, kitchen.

For even though Gloria Swanson is now a "Marquise" she will alwys be Gloria Swanson to her many friends in filmdom.

"Well, what do you think of it?" she asked, as she politely opened the door for me to go.

"It is your greatest role," I answered, simply.

Our interview had ended, and as I walked out into the bright sunlight I could not help but say to myself, "The world is a small place after all."

Meeting in Kansas City Shows Town Hall Need

In editorial articles reviewing the questions on which citizens will vote Tuesday, June 26, on proposals to increase the indebtedness of the county by $43,680,000 for specified purposes, The Sun-Telegraph has detailed the prospective benefits of the bridge and road programs, for which $14,650,000 and $10,930,000, respectively, are carried in the loan.

Next in cost are proposals for repair of improved public roads, $6,550,000, and the town hall, $6,000,000. These are questions Nos. 1 and 6 in the bond list. The money provided under No. 1 would include payment for repairs, widening, straightening, constructing and reconstructing highways, paying the county's share of elimination of grade crossings, provide for safety barriers and the elimination of dangerous curves. The merit of this proposal is evident and it commends itself.

The money to be obtained through the adoption of question No. 6—$6,000,000 for a town hall—would be expended to acquire property, by purchase or through condemnation proceedings, and for the erection thereon of a public auditorium.

The necessity for a town hall is especially evident at this time, when a great national convention is being held in Kansas City, which, for years, has had a hall sufficiently large to care for such a great assemblage. The favorable advertising Kansas City receives through the gathering there of the Republican hosts is worth more to that city than the Convention Hall originally cost, and it has paid for itself in similar ways many times. Pittsburgh at present could not find room for a great meeting like that in Kansas City and the one to be held later in Houston.

But it is not for visitors alone that we need a town hall. We need it for ourselves. We need it for social gatherings, for cultural assemblages and for civic betterment. We need it because there is a lack of advantages which it alone can supply. We know that it will maintain itself because that is the record of similar structures in other cities, including Cleveland.

Be sure to vote for Questions Nos. 1 and 6 in the peoples' bond proposals, Tuesday, June 26.

Happy and Well Dressed

Congratulate His Hindu Subjects.

H. H. THE MAHARAJAH OF RAJPIPLA

This handsome young Maharajah is one of the local rulers in India, kept on their thrones by grace and permission of the British government, living comfortably on fortunes and taxes that represent the toil and misery of millions of Hindu subjects.

Concerning this good-looking, cheerful, well-fed, well-dressed young person you read that he has arrived in England for his customary six months' holiday. His Highness is a well-known owner on the turf. He has built a private polo ground at his home near Maidenhead, and last year WAS RATED THE BEST-DRESSED MAN in the British Isles!

What a perfect picture of a gentleman, riding through life on the backs of others. We have many of the same kind in America, spending money they never earned, enjoying safety they never deserve, coming in, at one end of life, with a golden spoon in their mouths, going out at the other end with hardening of the arteries.

However, miserable as they are now, you may well congratulate poor Hindus that pay taxes as slaves and servants of the Indian Rajahs and Maharajahs.

Those ruling Maharajah gentlemen are kept in check by the British, and so, for that matter, are the other inhabitants of India. British power represented only by the 100,000 white men in India, compel 300,000,000 in India to live in an almost civilized way.

When the ancestors of this young man ruled, without British control, famines and plagues swept India at intervals. And the great mass of "untouchables," the lowest Hindu cast, lived in misery beyond comprehension.

The marriage of little girls nine and ten years old to middle-aged men was the USUAL thing. No mind can picture the suffering of those unhappy children, married almost in their infancy.

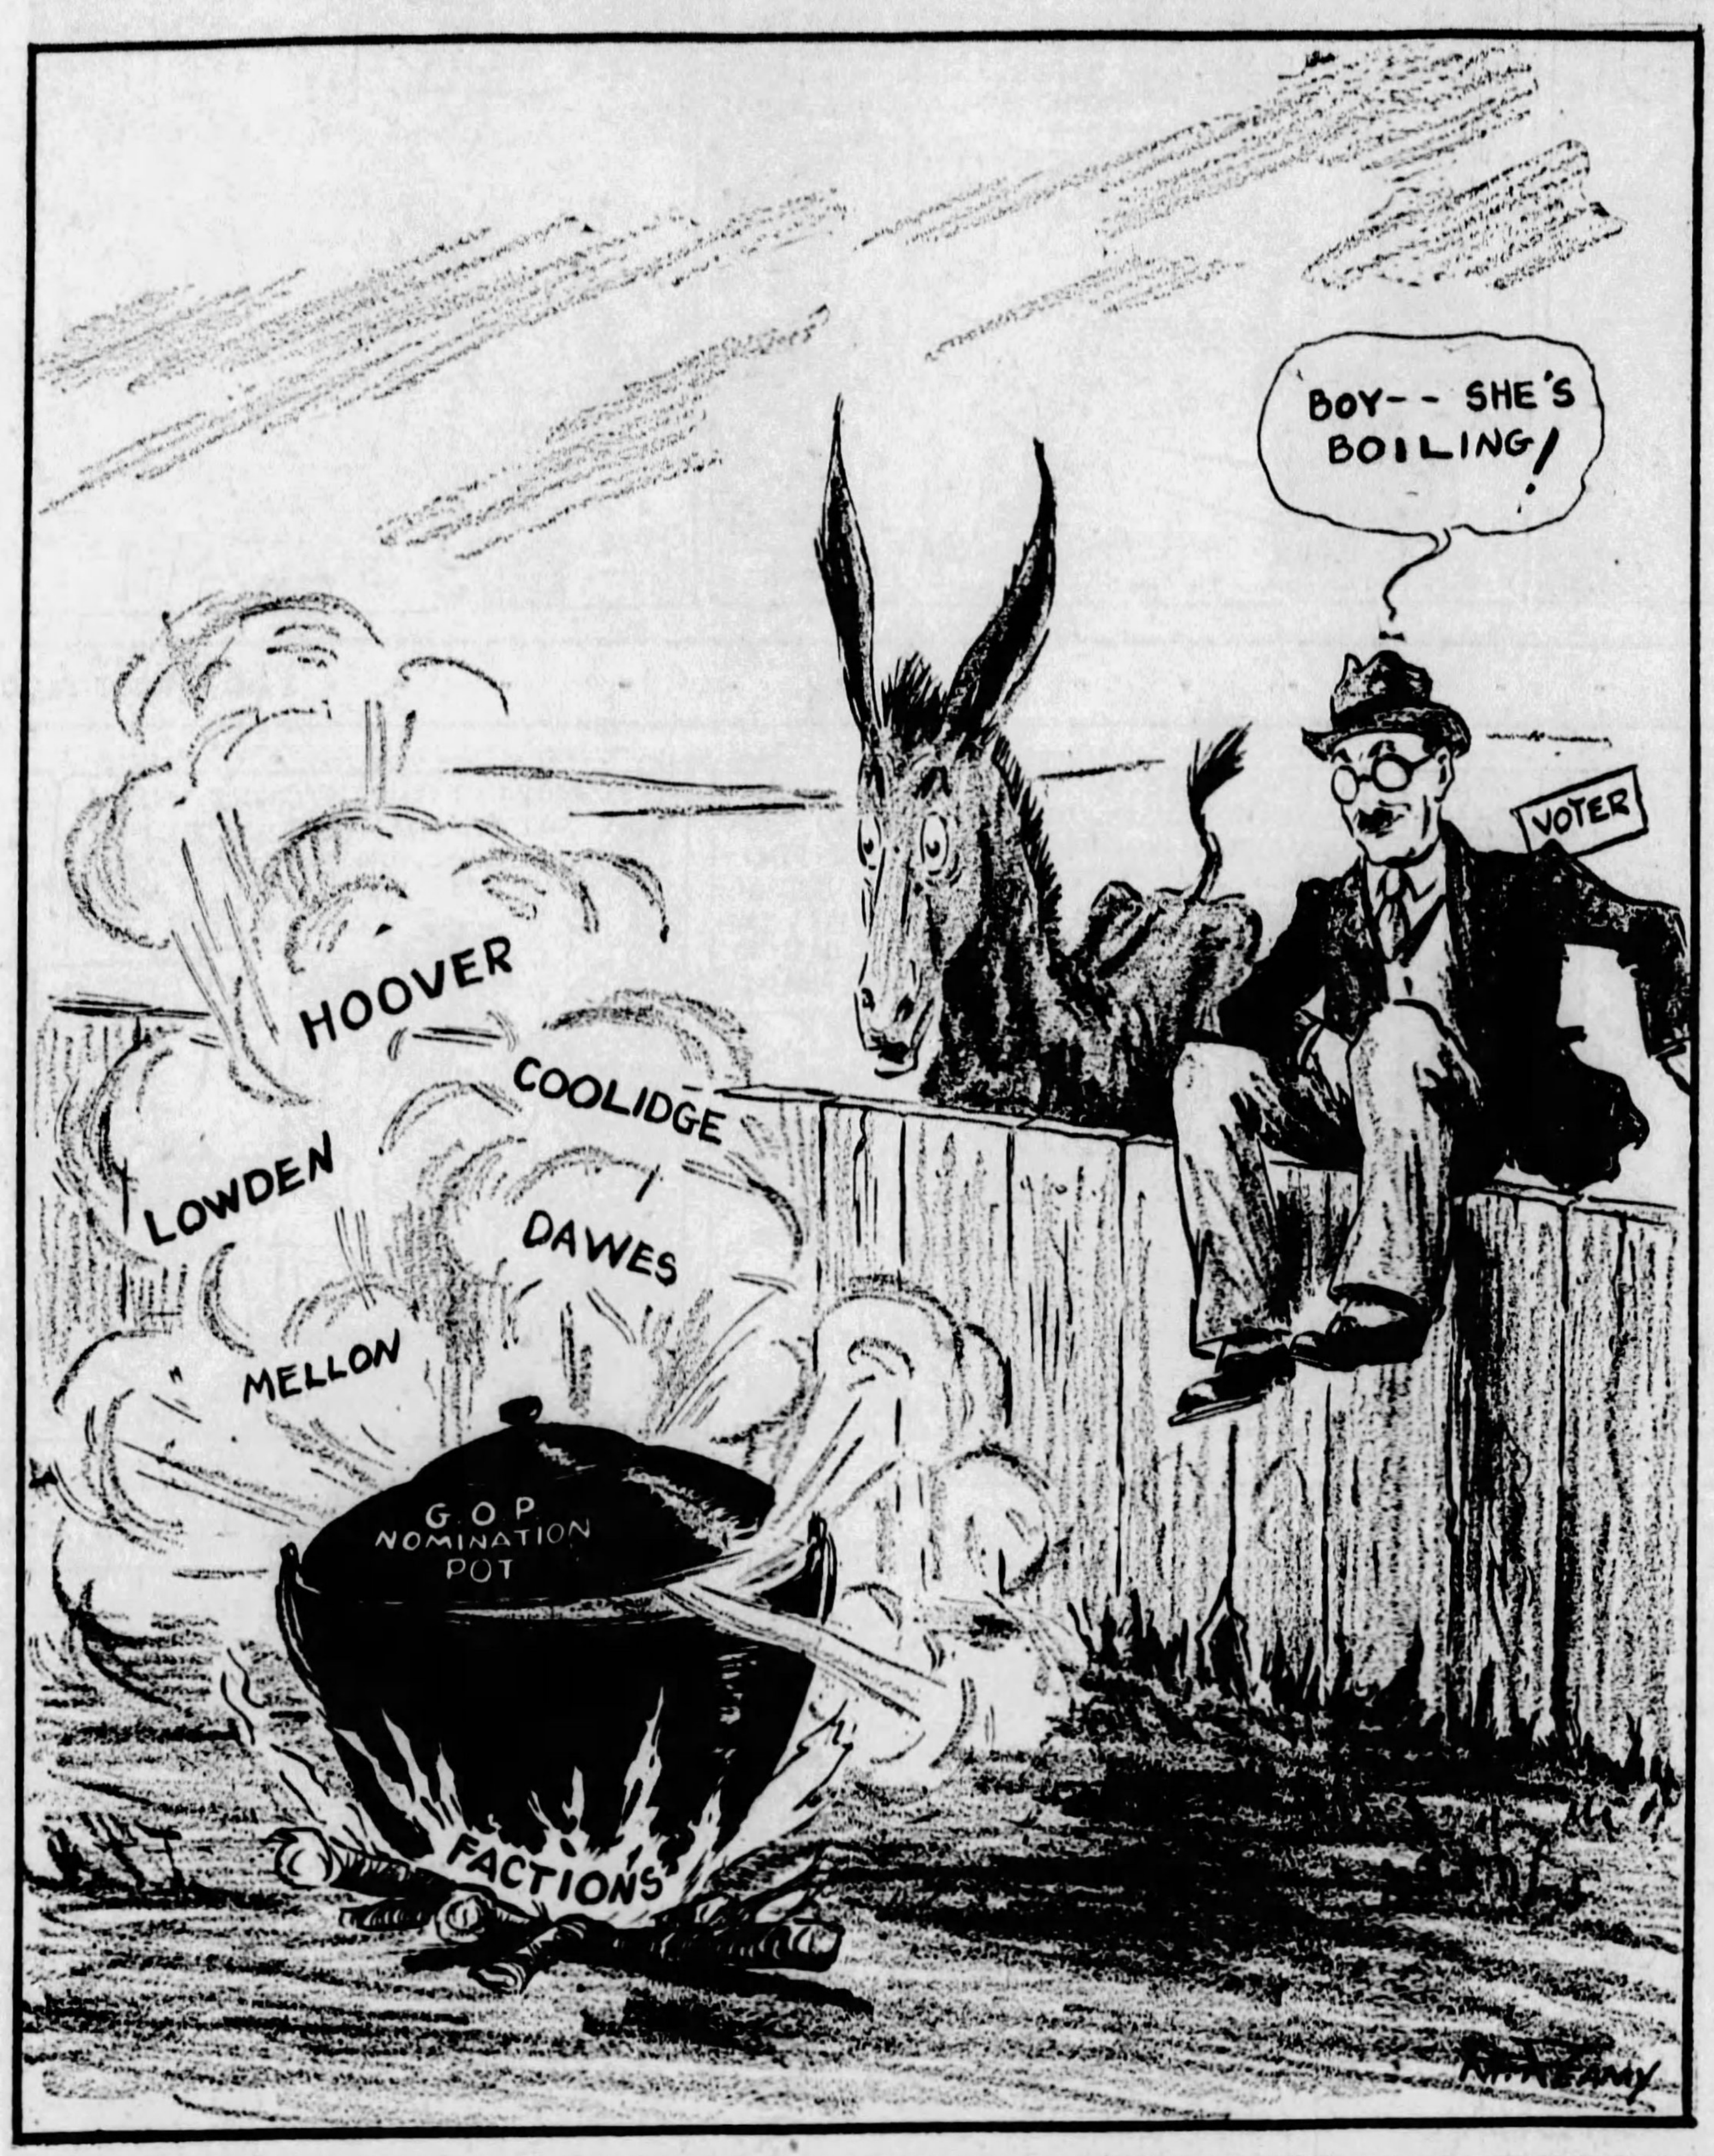
And to cap the climax, when the old husband died public opinion demanded that the miserable wife should be BURNED ALIVE upon the fire that consumed his body. The British have stopped the burning alive, called "suttee," to a great extent. Here and there it still breaks out among fanatical Hindus.

The marrying of children to old men has NOT been stopped.

Parents are taught that a girl not married when she is young is disgraced. And for fear that she may never marry, the child is made a wife before she is finished in early girlhood. All the power of England has not been able to stop this.

Meanwhile, the young gentleman whom you see here, well educated, behaving himself very well, undoubtedly, never marrying any child of ten, playing polo and "best-dressed man in the British Isles," enjoys life thoroughly.

WATCHING THE NOMINATION STEW



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

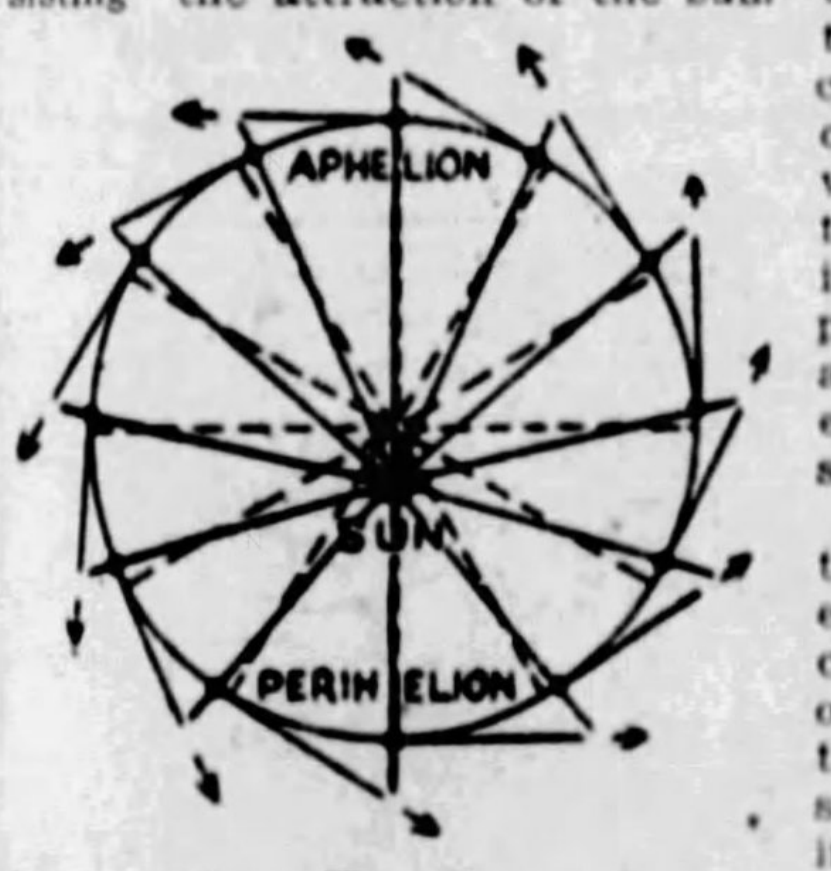
The Way of the Earth

"Assuming that the earth's motion is due to momentum it seems to me that if the sun's attraction is exactly resisted when the earth is at aphelion, causing it to travel around the sun, the earth's power to resist would be about one-sixtieth less than the sun's attraction, and therefore it would be drawn in just a little closer to the sun each year at perihelion, and that such drawing in would tend to increase the earth's speed. Would appreciate some facts in regard to the solar system.—Q. G. W., Little Rock, Ark."

FOR a complete logical explanation of the motions of the planets around the sun you must appeal to the science of celestial mechanics, which requires a considerable knowledge of mathematics. But a general conception of the matter, which is all that the layman needs, may be formed by the aid of such considerations as are involved in the accompanying drawing.

Here we see the earth at 12 sucessive points in its yearly journey around the sun. If its orbit were a circle it would travel exactly the same distance each month (supposing, of course, the months themselves to be of equal length). The speed of the earth would then be always exactly such as to keep it moving at a right angle to the radius vector, i. e., to the line joining it and the sun.

This is what you evidently mean by the earth "resisting" the attraction of the sun. One may say that there would be a complete balance of forces all the way around, the tendency to fly off in a tangent being precisely counteracted by the tendency toward the sun.



How the Earth goes around the Sun.

But, in reality, the orbit of the earth is not a circle, but an ellipse of small eccentricity, so that the sun, being placed in a focus of the ellipse instead of in the center, is at a continually varying distance from the earth. At only two points in the ellipse the motion of the earth is at a right angle to the radius vector; these points are aphelion, or greatest distance, and perihelion, or least distance. The diagram shows you this fact. At the first point the sun's force is least; at the second it is greatest. But in each case it corresponds with the force necessary at that particular distance to make the earth, at that moment, move at a right angle to the radius vector. When the earth is at perihelion its velocity is greatest and its momentum causes it to recede from the sun. But its rate of recession decreases until upon reaching aphelion it vanishes, and for an instant the earth neither recedes from nor approaches the sun. You may liken its situation to that of a stone thrown upward until, its momentum being lost, it begins to fall back to the earth. For an instant, you may say, it remains motionless.

So the earth, having reached the aphelion point where its momentum of recession ceases, turns in its course and begins to descend again toward the sun, gaining velocity every moment until at perihelion again the recessional force once more prevails.

The whole thing is covered by Kepler's law that the radius vector of a planet sweeps over equal areas in equal times. Kepler discovered this as a fact based on observation long before Newton developed a strict mathematical explanation of it. It is graphically shown in the diagram, which if drawn true as a representation of the earth's orbit, or the orbit of any other planet, would show the perfect equality in area of all the triangular figures inclosed between the successive positions of the radius vector. Newton proved that any body moving in a circular or elliptical orbit around the sun MUST travel in this way, and can neither fall into the sun nor escape from the sun unless in consequence of outside interference.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

You Are About Average

IT'S rather shocking to you sometimes to have a writer seem to look into your secret life and take therefrom things that you thought none knew.

Instinctively that writer rouses in you a feeling of either fear or antagonism.

You wonder why editors print some of the things that you can see apply to you, for you feel that few persons would be interested in them.

It is easy to apply to yourself certain accusations which you know exist in truth, but you don't want others to think these things about you.

Don't be sensitive.

If you have particular faults, others have the same.

There is not much difference in the run of humanity.

Unless you are unusual, there are many as bad, many much worse, and few who are much better at heart than you are.

The trouble is, you think of yourself as a little better than the average.

Very likely you are not so much better and that is what hurts.

Perhaps you don't mind being what you should not be, but you don't want others to know it.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Behind the Mask

THE careless saw a patient face
Whereon the slowly passing years
With cunning steel of hopes and fears
Had surely, sharply etched their trace;
But others saw a mask instead,
Through which a radiance sometimes shone
As of a mounting flame, wind-blown,
Saw sudden glories dawn and spread.

Some saw a life all commonplace,
Barren of lovely, subtle things;
A forest without whir of wings,
A garden lacking bloom and grace;
But seekers sometimes found a word
Or deed of such rare majesty,
When kindly chance would let them see
Behind the mask, they went soul-stirred.

Tales that are Told

Adaptable!

"IODINE!" Mrs. Harrison shouted down the back stairs to her colored laundress. "I have a whole drawerful of good collars that belonged to Mr. Harrison; if they will fit your sweetie he can have them."

"Hear dat, honey?" Iodine whispered to her boy friend who was turning the wringer. "What size does you-all wear?"

"Lemme see now," was the equally low reply. "Ah kin wear thutteen, thutteen 'n a half, fo'teen, fo'teen 'n a half, fifteen, fifteen 'n a half, sixteen, sixteen 'n a half, sebbenteen, eight—"

"Yes'm!" Iodine shouted back. "Dey'll fit!"

Tremendous Task

THE circus skeleton found the strong man in his tent weeping loudly.

"What's the matter, old man?" said the skeleton sympathetically.

"The—the elephant has died," sobbed the strong man as if his heart would break.

"But—but why are you crying over that?" persisted the skeleton.

"Well—well," sobbed the strong man, "the boss says I've got to dig his grave!"

Not Far Off

THE bank was closed for the day and the clerks were finishing off their work when the manager came out of his private office and asked whether the cashier, a dour Scot, had gone home.

"No, sir," replied one of the clerks, "he must be still in the building somewhere."

"Are you certain?"

"Quite sure," was the answer. "There's a half-penny stamp lying on top of his desk, sir."

No Knowing

"WHICH is the shortest way to Winchester?" asked the motorist.

"Well, zur, it be loike this," said the old man in the smock. "Some say as this be the shortest (pointing to the right), an' others say that way be the shortest (pointing to left), but I've lived here for ninety years an' more an' I say there's no knowing which be the shortest way, an' I'm not far wrong neither."

What Was It?

THE film director was making a western thriller and had been working very hard to get some action into it.

Finally, after one scene, he turned from the brink of a cliff, mopped his brow, and glanced down at a dummy made of straw and old clothes.

"Good heavens!" he shouted, "what was it we threw over the cliff?"

His Road to Ruin

A PENYGROES tradesman examined at Bangor Bankruptcy Court said he was a teetotaller, and did not bet or gamble.

"Have you been spending your money any other way?" asked the Official Receiver.

"At Penygroes it's a bit heavy the way they are after you with tickets for concerts and bazars," replied the tradesman.—London Tit-Bits.

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

EVERY evening at dusk a small army of gray-haired motherly women move toward the Rialto and pass through the stage entrances of theaters to their tasks. They are wardrobe mistresses—often dull echoes of a glamorous past.

It is their job to take care of costumes and keep them in repair, but they function in a larger way. Their lives have usually been entirely cast in the theater, chiefly in small character parts, although some have taken important roles and a few have seen their names in lights.

They are frequently mother confessors to chorus girls, and some have been adopted as stage mothers, sharing apartments with their charges. They are stumbling blocks in the path of the brash stage door Johns. Of all people back stage, they are the best beloved.

Most of them are devoutly religious and have a tender sympathy for birdlings so often trapped in the Broadway pitfalls. Secrets have been confided to them that would rock the front pages, but they maintain a tight-lipped silence.

They have read the mash notes of prominent husbands straying from the family fireside to canter along the White Way. They are equally wise to the fact that the cute little blonde, who last week accepted the cabriolet from the rich bounder, will next week elope with the trap-drummer.

Despite humble posts in the theatrical background, they often display a keen and extremely valuable stage sense. One has for years sat in the front of the house with the producer, who employs her to offer suggestions during the final rehearsals. And her ideas are invariably adopted.

When a company leaves New York to go trouping the wardrobe mistress often becomes the official chaperone for younger girls. They consult her, and, as a rule, accept her advice. And in this way the wardrobe mistress has kept many straying lambkins out of dangerous paths.

Restaurants and hotel dining rooms have computed there are 500,000 people in New York who breakfast after mid-day. Invariably late breakfasters are heavy coffee drinkers.

Damon Runyon, the celebrated sport writer, is the reputed king of the Broadway coffee consumers. Mr. Runyon is a teetotaler so far as alcohol beverages are concerned, but he has been known to toss down 15 cups of java at a sitting. The late Diamond Jim Brady often gulped a dozen glasses of orange juice before breakfast.

Old Rector's had a systematic worldling who ate a breakfast of soft boiled eggs, toast and coffee at exactly 11 a. m. for 12 consecutive years. And his face reflected his mechanical existence. It had the blank button-eyed expression of a mattress.

There is a distinguished editor whose favorite breakfast dish is onion soup. He acquired the taste during student days in Paris and has succeeded in having it listed regularly on the menu at the hotel where he lives.

Sutton Place was an effort to carve a social roost out of the slums. It is on the banks of the East River, with the glowering Blackwell Island prison at the doorstep. A few pardon-the-glove names from the Social Register lodged there, but in the last few months the section seems to have gone ultra-Bohemian. Among the latest to signify their intention to rent quarters there are Irving Berlin and Alexander Woollcott. Elizabeth Marberry is a resident.

One of the depressing morning views from Sutton Place is the dingy tugs leaving with their cargoes of human misery for Blackwell's Island. And not even calling it Welfare Island brightens the picture.

Fog

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Baron Gunther von Huenefeld, of the Bremen crew, which successfully made the flight westward across the Atlantic some time ago, writes that the greatest enemy they had to overcome in their flight was fog.

Think of whirling through the air at 100 miles an hour or so and not being able to see two lengths of the plane ahead of you! It is like flying in thick night.

In addition to this fog a heavy wind was blowing and the compass was out of order, which made it difficult for the navigators of the air to plan their course.

Of all dangers of the sea and the air over the ocean the greatest is fog.

An inability to see constitutes the greatest danger of life everywhere. If we could all see plainly there would be fewer misunderstandings.

You may know that when a man wrongs you it is because he does not understand, for if he did he would not do so, and when you are angry with him because of his tort your angel has blinded you so that you cannot see.

We all do much fumbling in the dark in our passage from the cradle to the grave, and those who can clear our vision render invaluable service to humanity.

We are continually bumping our nose and stumbling our toes because of the darkness that fills our eyes. Much trouble in the divorce courts could be obviated could both parties see clearly and were they not blinded by some sort of passion.

Trouble between fathers and children would not be of so frequent occurrence if all could see clearly.

Perhaps the best prayer any one can make is for wisdom and vision. The greatest mistake we all make is not seeing love. We stumble through this world thinking that everybody is hostile to us, when all around us are hearts aching with a desire to help us.

The worst blindness that can befall humanity is this blindness toward life.

Spurgeon has well said somewhere that "To trust everybody is to be bitten sometimes, but to trust nobody is to be devoured."

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

A YOUNG woman of 22 is suing Ernest Gagnon, wealthy realtor, for refusing to marry her after he had kissed her. She wants $75,000 for breach of something, and it is called "heart balm." (The money, not the kiss). She says she never was kissed before and told him so, and she also told him that the only man who could kiss her was the man who would marry her.

Where did a girl who has escaped being kissed for 22 years, hear about "heart balm?"

Her name is Brass. (Miss Florence).

John Slater, a medium living in California, told his congregation that they labored under delusions regarding the happiness of the married state, and when a widow asked him if she should marry again he answered: "You went through hell once, do you want to do it all over again?"

The lady did or she wouldn't have asked him.

A woman being tried for the murder of her sweetheart, in Niles, Mich., says: "Look at me! Do I look like a heartless slayer?"

Oh, lady, they don't any of them look it!

As a defense that is hooey.

I have talked with 25 women who shot and killed men and not one of them looked as if she would do such a thing. But the men are as dead as if they had looked it.

Dr. William Hickson, of Chicago, psychiatrist, says that a boy who kisses a girl and runs away is not crazy. He says: "Neither is he extraordinarily bright."

He is just scared, probably, which would indicate he is extraordinarily dumb.

Alphonso Sepulveda, scion of an old family on the West Coast, was divorced by his second wife because whenever he got drunk he called up his first wife and tried to make a date with her. The first wife testified for the second.

After all the trouble of making the change, they so often find that the second is as aggravating as the first if not more so, and it is indeed a brave man who keeps trying till he finds the right one.

Margot Asquith once ventured the opinion that early marriage is advisable because it seems they usually have to start with the wrong one.

Patience

IF THE smoke nuisance is costing the merchants of New York $100,000,000 a year, as the Merchants' Association reckons, it must be costing the remainder of the population a great deal more.

It isn't a necessary evil. Like its twin, the loss from fires, most of it can be remedied. A chimney belching black smoke always registers a careless stoker who is wasting fuel.

What other people in the world, facing so heavy a toll of damage and discomfort, would be so patient?
